Service Commission Finds Proposed Capitalization Unjustified by Prospects.

FIXES VALUE OF PROPERTY

And Concludes Inflation of Capital Would Tempt Managers to Make Returns at Expense of Service.

The Public Service Commission gave out yesterday a decision adverse to the plan of reorganization proposed by the bondholders of the Third Avenue Railroad. It suggested, however, means by which the adjustment of the securities of the Third Avenue Road might be brought within the principles laid down, and announced that in its desire to facilitate the reorganization of the Third Avenue system it would withhold the issuance of its formal order until the bondholders should elect whether they wished to consider the matter in accordance with the commission's suggestions. The decision is in an opinion by Commissioner Maltbie.

The commission differs with the Third Avenue bondholders on three fundamental propositions, to say nothing of many minor ones. The first is whether the bondholders have a right in a reorganization to issue securities up to the amount of the securities legally issued and outstanding, irrespective of values. The second is whether the value of the property of the Third Avenue Road justifies the capitalization placed upon it by the bondholders' plan, from whatever standpoint regarded. The third is whether the earnings of the Third Avenue system, now or under any reasonable estimate for the future, justify such a capitalization.

The commission decides in the negative with respect to the proposed capitalization of $54,916,000 on each of these propositions. With respect to the value of the property it finds, in summary, as follows:

VALUE OF THE PROPERTY.

Reproduction cost Sept. 1, 1909	$42,907,816
Depreciation to present condition	11,306,691
Value net	$31,601,125
Expenditures on property to Feb. 28, 1910	588,142
Value Feb. 28, 1910, say	$31,600,000
Add promoters' profits and development charges	3,500,000
Add current assets	1,746,637
Total assets	$36,846,637
Deduct current liabilities	18,710,744
Net assets subject to capitalization	$18,135,893
Allowances for new capital: Organization expenses	800,000
Receivers' certificates, &c	6,000,000
For new tracks, &c., on Third Avenue and subsidiaries	2,000,000
Total assets subject to capitalization	$26,950,000

To which the commission will allow to be added a proper discount upon a new issue of bonds, this necessarily to be determined by the interest rate, &c., under which such bonds may be issued. A fair approximation is the aggregate capital which, under the decision, the commission indicates it will allow, would be somewhere between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000. This idea as to the relationship between capital to be issued and the value of the property to be capitalized, the commission backs up by an analysis of the earnings of the Third Avenue system present and prospective, in contrast to the financial requirements of the plan submitted by the Reorganization Committee.

The issue of securities under the proposed plan of reorganization called for a total disbursement in annual dividends and interest charges of $2,753,800.

As against this the commission takes up first a statement by William D. Guthrie, counsel for the Reorganization Committee, made in the course of one of the hearings on the plan. Mr. Guthrie said on this occasion:

"The property to-day is not earning 4 per cent. on the cost of reproduction. The figures show not $2,400,000 a year net income in hand, but hope for $2,400,000. Do you realize that to-day it is less, probably, than $1,800,000? Have you not got a demonstration right here that if anybody wanted to put up $50,000,000 or $60,000,000 to reproduce that property there would be several years before even 4 per cent. would be earned? Who is to guarantee to the capitalist who puts in between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000 that from the beginning he will get $2,400,000 net? The bankers hope that it will be so in future if they can build up this business, but it is not fair to take this property to-day as actually earning net $2,400,000, and the figures do not justify it."

From this admission by Mr. Guthrie Commissioner Maltbie goes to the actual earnings of the Third Avenue system and to the estimates of the reorganizors. Taking the year ended Sept. 30, 1909, the report of the receiver showed a surplus after paying the interest on underlying bonds, taxes other than franchise taxes, car hire, rent, and extraordinary improvements, of $1,682,000. The reorganizers deducted approximately $382,000 to cover franchise taxes and depreciation, leaving $1,300,000 applicable to the requirements of the new plan.

Far Short of Requirements.

The estimates of Harry Bronner of the Bondholders' Committee, covering various savings, sales of power, and an estimated increase of $200,000 a year in gross earnings from operation, brought the aggregate figures up to $2,287,000 before deducting franchise taxes and depreciation, and Mr. Whitridge offered an estimate that in three or four years it would reach $2,400,000. Commissioner Maltbie considered, however, the figures for nine months ended March 31, 1910, and worked out a balance for the current fiscal year after allowing for depreciation practically on the basis adopted by the reorganizers, of $1,900,000, as against the $2,700,000 requirement of the new plan.

Or, assuming the gross earnings to increase from $6,304,719, as they were for the year ended Sept. 30, 1909, to $8,000,000, excluding the Yonkers, Mamaroneck & Tarrytown roads; assuming operating expenses to be reduced from 65 per cent., which Receiver Whitridge figured about the minimum, to 60 per cent.; assuming taxes to decline somewhat below 5 per cent. of the gross earnings, all reserves to be omitted and depreciation to be reduced, Commissioner Maltbie managed to squeeze out $2,300,000 net income applicable to the securities proposed to be issued under the plan.

The Figures Do Not Hold.

But the Commissioner is far from accepting these figures as showing the true net earning capacity. The commission and the reorganizers are a good way apart on the subject of depreciation, which the reorganizers estimate at $300,000 a year or approximately 5 per cent. of the gross earnings from operation. The opinion cites the statement of Receiver Whitridge in the Third Avenue-Fifty-ninth Street Crosstown transfer case, to the effect that 10 per cent. was necessary for depreciation in addition to proper maintenance charges, and also the admission of Mr. Bronner, while supporting the $300,000 annual depreciation

Ohio Sheriff Has Papers in a Lawsuit to Serve—Expects No Trouble.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 2.—Sheriff Hirstius and his deputies face a problem such as confronted New York and Federal process servers some years ago, that of getting a legal paper into the hands of John D. Rockefeller. With the Standard Oil Company he has been made defendant in a suit for $550,000 damages, alleged to have been sustained by independent oil men of Findlay, Ohio. The Cuyahoga County Sheriff received the papers to-day, and must serve Mr. Rockefeller within ten days.

Though Mr. Rockefeller is guarded like a monarch in his Forest Hill estate, the Sheriff does not expect the trouble that was encountered some years ago when the oil man was wanted as a witness in the famous suit tried by Judge Landis at Chicago. At that time Mr. Rockefeller was chased through several States in vain. Finally he went to Chicago voluntarily and testified.

"I don't expect any trouble," said Sheriff Hirstius to-day. "When the deputy who has the papers gets ready he will ride out to Forest Hill in an automobile and serve Mr. Rockefeller. We don't think the guards will halt us, nor do we think Mr. Rockefeller will try to dodge. We will go about it just as we would with any other man."

HERE TO FIGHT FOR CHILD.

Woman Comes from Germany to Sue Alleged Father for Its Custody.

Elizabeth Kaiser of Mayence in the Duchy of Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, stood in the Kings County Court House yesterday and looked hungrily at the seven-year-old child whom she claims as her own. At the instance of the Consul General of the German Empire, Mirabeau L. Towns had brought habeas corpus proceedings compelling William Zang, a wealthy, retired architect of Brooklyn, to produce the child in court.

Elizabeth Kaiser charges that when Mr. Zang was 59 years old he represented himself to her as a widower, won her with promises of marriage, and later confessed that his wife was living, but held out promises of a divorce setting him free to keep his pledge with her.

In the Spring of 1909, she says, he sent his wife to Germany to beg that the child be brought him, that he might see it before he died, and in pity she consented. They kept the child, she says, and she has now come over to America, where her first appeal was answered by the door of the Zang home closing in her face.

Yesterday Mrs. Zang brought the child into court, and when an adjournment was taken in the proceedings the woman begged for one word with the little girl. It was granted, and the two met in an adjoining room. Elizabeth Kaiser was trembling with emotion, but the child grew frightened and fled behind the protecting skirts of Mrs. Zang. The hearing was adjourned until next Thursday.

Yale Men Go 1,600 Miles with a Wedding Gift to Labrador Missionary.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIAN HARBOR, N. F., Aug. 2.—George Rowland of Greenwich, Conn., the young Yale man, has safely arrived here in the forty-foot hospital tender Yale, which he had built along lines of his own, raised the cost of construction by personal subscription, and then, with a crew of students, took the boat from Booth Bay, Me., along some of the worst coast in the world, and presented it to Dr. Grenfell, the Labrador missionary, as a wedding present to be used in his Labrador work.

Young Rowland, who is only 21 years old, is a son of George Rowland, a New York business man, whose country home is in Greenwich, Conn., and a brother of Henry Rowland, the novelist. The trip was a rough one of more than 1,600 miles, bad weather being encountered most of the way, but it was accomplished without mishap.

The Yale sailed on June 18 and reached Halifax on July 5. After a rather bad trip, during which all hands were almost worn out, they arrived at Battle Harbor, Labrador, where they found that Dr. Greenfell was at St. Anthony, N. F., to which they sailed, and at his request took the boat to Indian Harbor, about 200 miles north of Battle Harbor. They arrived there last night.

The Yale is 44 feet 8 inches over all and 34 feet on the water line. She has a width of 12 feet and a draught of 6 feet 8 inches. She is ketch rigged, with an auxiliary engine using kerosene, as gasoline cannot be obtained in Labrador.

"CHEIRO" A BANKRUPT.

Palmist Who Became Broker Has Liabilities of $215,000, Assets $50.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—A meeting of the creditors of Louis Hamon was held today under a receiving order made last June 10.

Hamon, who originally came from Chicago, has had a variegated career. Under the name of Cheiro he was for years one of the most successful palmists in London. Ten years ago he purchased The American Register, a weekly paper published first in Paris, and afterward in London, and from 1905 to 1907 he carried on a financial business under the style of Hamon & Co.

Charges were made against him by American women clients who declared that he unlawfuly retained possession of certain stock that they had given him to negotiate.

The Official Receiver said that no statement of the debtor's affairs had yet been lodged, but Hamon had estimated his unsecured liabilities at £43,000. ($215,000.) The only assets disclosed were ten shares of £1 each in a registered company.

THOUGHT FIRST OF HORSE.

Mounted Policeman, Hit by Auto, Revives and Asks Comrade How It Fared

Mounted Policeman John Hennessey of the Parkville Station was on duty last night at Ocean Parkway and Lawrence Avenue when an auto driven by A. W. Smith of 505 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, came from Coney Island at a good pace.

It had to take the middle of the road to pass two other machines, and rain on the wind shield obscured the view of Smith, who knocked Hennessey off his horse. Hennessey was knocked unconscious, and was bruised and cut. He was carried into the drug store of A. W. Brandenburg, and when he revived he asked Patrolman James O'Day:

"How's the horse?"

"It's got its leg broken," was the answer.

"Poor old Young," said Hennessey. "Go and put him out of his pain."

So O'Day shot the horse.

BOYS BURIED ALIVE UNDER TONS OF SAND

Three Taken Out Dead from a Trench in a Vacant Lot Where Embankments Caved In.

DIGGING A TUNNEL IN PLAY

Unshored Heaps, with Loose Rocks, Shaken Down by Jarring of the Elevated—Their Cries Were Unheard.

On the big triangular vacant lot—a waste of sand, bordered by Broadway, Howard Avenue, and Madison Street, in the Bushwick section of Brooklyn—where Percy G. Williams is preparing to build a vaudeville theatre, three little boys of the neighborhood went to play on Monday afternoon. At noon yesterday, when the police, aided by the Fire Department, had dug away something like three tons of sand and rocks, the bodies of Alfred and John Sohn, brothers, aged 9 and 6 years, respectively, and Harold Verhas, aged 9, their cousin, all of 823 Madison Street, were found.

The call of the vacant lot has been strong on every boy in this densely populated section of Brooklyn. Until a short time ago the lot was covered with rickety frame buildings. The boys rejoiced in the open space for their baseball games. Later, when the contractors employed by the theatrical manager had dug a deep trench all around it for the foundations of the future structure, it was rendered useless for baseball practice, but invested with the lure of the unknown, for the contractors built a high fence around and the embankments presented coveted opportunities for juvenile tunneling and construction of caves in the soft sand.

Went Out Hatless to Play.

The last time the three boys were seen alive was on Monday afternoon. After their midday meal the two Sohn boys and their cousin left their home, which is a block away from the vacant lot. It is the belief of the parents and the police that they must have gone direct to the spot where they met their fate. When the boys failed to return to their homes on Monday evening Mrs. Carrie Thompson, an aunt of the youngsters, who lived with the Verhas family, went to the Ralph Avenue Station and reported them missing. The police were told by the woman that the boys had left home hatless, and took their time about sending out a general alarm under the impression that they could not have gone far.

The next word that reached the distracted families of the missing boys after a night's vigil was their bodies had been found, disfigured and crushed, in the trench on the vacant lot beneath tons of sand and stone.

Alexander Sullivan, a 10-year-old boy who lives at 50 Howard Avenue, directed the police to the spot where three lads had been buried alive. Early yesterday forenoon he went to the vacant plot to play and took along his fox terrier Spot. Spot is keen on the scent, eager, and lively. For a while he raced about the sandy trench scattering the soft sand about him in clouds. Then Spot began to whine, and two or three times ran to the spot where the bodies were afterward found, sniffing and howling, each time returning to his youthful master as in an effort to lead him to the spot.

Dead Hand Above the Sand.

Young Sullivan followed the dog to where the limp hand of a boy protruded in the sunlight from under a pile of sand and rocks in the excavation.

Sullivan ran until he met Patrolman Charles Hoffman of the Ralph Avenue Station and guided the policeman to the trench. Hoffman turned in an alarm and then began to dig the sand away with his bare hands. It did not take long to uncover a dead boy. He lifted him tenderly out of the trench and sent word across the street to the Bushwick Hospital. Drs. Jayne, Lewis, and Holden of the hospital staff responded. They picked the boy up and ran with the body to the hospital. They found that life had been extinct for many hours.

By this time the news had spread throughout the district, and a great crowd gathered about the excavation. In this crowd were mothers frantic with fear for the safety of their own children.

Police Inspector Harkins and Capt. Shevlin of the Ralph Avenue Station had reached the spot, too. The Inspector sent some of the reserves to keep the excited crowd back, and others to aid in the search of the trench. Then, with the crowd looking on, the bodies of John Sohn and Harold Verhas were taken from the excavation. The first body found was that of Alfred Sohn, the elder of the two brothers.

Struggled Against Tons.

The two Sohn boys were identified shortly after their bodies had been unearthed by their father and an aunt. It took some time before the identity of the third body was established, so disfigured was it from the avalanche of stones and sand under which it had been buried. The positions of all three bodies when found indicated that the boys had made a struggle until suffocated against the weight that pinned them down.

As to what caused the cave in, there are only conjectures to offer. The bodies were found on the Broadway side of the excavation where the embankment, consisting of loose sand, not protected by shoring of any kind, is from ten to twelve feet high. The theory is that the boys had been engaged in tunneling their way into this embankment, and that the vibration caused by the trains which rush by overhead on the elevated structure in a constant procession had caused the bank to give way. It had fallen along a stretch of from ten to fifteen feet, and had carried along with it some of the large flagstones from the Broadway sidewalk.

The police believe that the boys met their death from ten to twelve hours before their bodies were found. The fence surrounding the excavation is at least ten feet high on the Broadway side, shutting off a view of the excavation entirely from the street, and the rumbling of the trains overhead is such as to drown any outcry that the boys may have made as earth and rock engulfed them.

PARROT CHASE IN THE STREET

Bird Eluded Small Boys Who Climbed Trees After It.

A middle-aged woman in a pink teagown ran down Eighth Avenue from 127th Street yesterday afternoon crying at intervals:

"Catch my pet! Catch my pet!"

Her pet was a large and elusive parrot, green as an emerald, which flew from tree to tree, to the great delight of ten small boys and two policemen who gave chase. As they climbed each tree the bird went to the next, always shrieking triumphantly. On the roof garden of a Harlem resort an attendant there, known as Red, threw his coat at the bird, who dodged from under and went on its way.

The crowd drifting out of the resort watched with vast interest as the bird vanished over the roof of the Winthrop Hotel, flying high and easily. Its mistress, teagown and all, had disappeared leaving no name.

COACHMAN ELECTED OVER MILLIONAIRE

Harry Payne Whitney's Head Man Defeated S. H. Mason for Manhasset School Board.

ISSUE MADE ON CHILDREN

Coachman Insisted That Being the Father of Family He Was More Eligible Than His Childless Opponent.

A coachman defeated a millionaire owner of a country estate in running against him for place on the School Board in Manhasset, L. I., the election having been held last night. The coachman is employed by Payne Whitney, and had his employer's string of carriages and automobiles to assist him in getting voters to the polls. He made his campaign on the issue that he was the father of a family, while his opponent, though married, could boast of no children, and as a consequence was not capable of taking sufficient interest in the affairs of the school.

The victor, William A. Warren, is well known in Manhasset as Mr. Whitney's head coachman, while Stephen H. Mason, his defeated opponent, is President of the Mason Taxicab Company of New York. He has a big place near Payne Whitney's.

Mr. Whitney himself was not at the election to lend the color of officially sanctioning the coachman's use of the Whitney stable in his campaign. Mr. Whitney's chauffeur was also out gathering voters in his car, and after the election Mr. Whitney was informed of the result at Newport.

Mason made his campaign on his record for the term which he is just completing. He refused to solicit voters and announced that if the people wanted him for another term they would have to hustle out and vote for him of their own accord. The contest was a close one in spite of the coachman's transportation facilities, Mr. Mason receiving 59 votes to 69 for his opponent.

The fight over the place in the School Board started several weeks ago, when Mrs. Francis Hodgson Burnett, famous as the authoress of "Lord Fauntleroy," began an agitation in favor of a special primary school at the suburb of Plandome. She maintained that it was too far for the little tots to walk to the main Manhasset School Building.

Coachman Warren accepted Mrs. Burnett's views and began to talk in favor of them. Then he made a discovery that all of the wealthy men serving on the School Board were childless save one, who was a grandfather well along in years. He decided to become a candidate on the family-man issue, and accordingly attacked the record of his opponent and his associates, which he gave as follows:

Charles Coles, 78 years old, grandfather.
Thomas O'Connell, bachelor.
Owen Kennedy, bachelor.
S. H. Mason, married, but no children.
William Smith, married, but no children.

Friends of Mason met the attack on his childless state by asserting that the coachman owned the real estate on which the village hotel stands, and that liquor was sold in the hotel, which made him an undesirable influence in the board.

He replied that he had bought the land as a speculation and had no interest in the hotel, which was built under a lease. The election was held in the main assembly room of the schoolhouse and was lively while it lasted.

The Rev. Charles L. Newbold, pastor of the Manhasset Protestant Episcopal Church, placed Warren in nomination in a speech in which he emphasized the spur that the possession of children would prove to a School Board member. Owen Kennedy, an associate of Mr. Mason on the present board, reviewed his career in nominating him and said he stood upon his record. The votes were then cast, after which a special vote was taken on Mrs. Burnett's proposal of a special primary school. It was defeated.

Ralph Pulitzer and Louis Sherry are residents of Manhasset, but were not at the election.

SUFFRAGE TICKET DEFEATED.

Though Many Women Vote at Tarrytown's School Election.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Although almost all the women of Tarrytown were unusually active to-day scurrying about from house to house in automobiles, carriages, and afoot in an effort to interest others in the annual school meeting held to-night, yet after a hard battle the ticket advocated by them was defeated by more than 4 to 1. It was a sad blow to the followers of the woman's suffrage cause. The election was held at the Washington Irving High School. More than 600 votes were cast, mostly by women, and it was 11:15 P. M. before the result was known.

Dissatisfaction over the way the school has been conducted prompted a number of women to exercise their right to vote, and some time ago they began the agitation which resulted in a second ticket of School Trustees being put in the field in opposition to the old board. This ticket, which met with defeat, was headed by F. H. Pierson, Frederick J. Hall, and Dr. James H. Burtenshaw. These candidates only received about 126 votes each. The other ticket, known as the "regulars" and which won by 538 votes, was headed by F. H. Pierson, who was on both ballots; Clarence S. Davidson, and Dr. Charles W. Fairchild.

Among the women who voted were Mrs. Frank V. Millard, Mrs. Charles D. Millard, Mrs. Charles C. Briggs, Mrs. Charles F. Smith, Mrs. Victor S. Pongberg, Mrs. F. W. Labau, and many others.

At Pocantico Hills the School Trustees ticket favored by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was elected.

FISHKILL LANDING, N. Y., Aug. 2.—At the annual school meeting to-night in the fourth district, town of Fishkill, Mrs. Catharine Wolcott Verplanck was defeated for Trustee by Chief of Police Elijah Moser, who was re-elected. There was a large attendance and much interest was shown in the contest. Mr. Moser received 57 votes and Mrs. Verplanck 42. This is the second time she has run against Moser and been defeated.

Mrs. Verplanck is a former State Regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She made a speech congratulating Mr. Moser on his success.

INSURGENT SWEEP IN KANSAS PRIMARIES

Four Standpat Congressmen Beaten for Renomination—No Returns on Others.

BIG MAJORITY FOR STUBBS

Republican Progressives Generally Successful in Fight Against Men Who Supported Speaker Cannon.

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 2.—At 11 o'clock to-night returns from the primaries showed that six of eight insurgent candidates for nomination as Congressmen from Kansas were successful. Returns from the First District, D. R. Anthony's, were late, and the same condition existed in the Third District. These two were the strongest stand-pat districts, and while the insurgents believed they had a chance to defeat Anthony and Campbell, the districts were not really claimed. They must still be considered in doubt, however, as a result of the landslide to the insurgents in the other districts.

At a late hour reports from the various headquarters showed.

First District—In doubt; no returns.

Second District—Alexander Mitchell, Progressive, defeats Congressman C. F. Scott, Standpatter.

Third District—In doubt; no returns.

Fourth District—Fred S. Jackson, Progressive, defeats Congressman J. M. Miller, Standpatter.

Fifth District—R. R. Rees, progressive, defeats Congressman W. A. Calderhead, standpatter.

Sixth District—I. D. Young, progressive, defeats W. A. Reeder, standpatter.

Seventh District—E. H. Madison, insurgent, returned uncontested.

Eighth District—Victor Murdock, insurgent, returned uncontested.

Gov. Stubbs, progressive and supporter of Murdock and Bristow, has defeated Wagstaff, stand-pat candidate for Governor by an overwhelming majority.

At the Democratic primaries George N. Hodges was nominated for Governor and Lot Ravenscraft for Lieutenant Governor.

For weeks, ever since Congress adjourned, in fact, the eyes of the Nation have been on Kansas in the political fight that ended with the primary election to-day. The battle really began in the last session of Congress, when a Kansan in the Senate and a Kansan in the House of Representatives defied the power of the oligarchy in control of legislation at Washington, challenged it to open combat, and then declared their intention of putting their attitude before the people for approval or rejection.

It was because Victor Murdock, the red-headed Congressman from Wichita, was recognized as leader of the insurgents in the House that Speaker Cannon singled him out for especial rebuke. The movement led by Murdock in Congress had come nearer shearing Cannon of his power than any similar uprising ever started in the House. In the fight for new rules Cannon had received the support of all except two of the Representatives from Kansas, Murdock and Madison had voted consistently against him. Calderhead, Reeder, Scott, Anthony, Miller, and Campbell cast their lot with the Speaker.

The reactionary Congressmen from Kansas, in voting to sustain Cannon's power, did so in spite of decisive warnings from home. Letters of protest from their constituents poured in on them at Washington. The six loyal Cannon Congressmen came to be known as the "six little Rhode Islanders from Kansas."

Cannon kept his promise to aid them. He came to Kansas. The heat was terrific, and the fight the insurgents were making on him made it still warmer for the Speaker. He spoke at a Chautauqua meeting at Winfield, and had to stop in the middle of his speech on account of the heat. Cannon said a good word for those who had stood by him in Congress, and left declaring that he had Murdock on the run.

"I recognize no insurgency in the ranks of the Republican Party," he declared. "Murdock and his whole crowd are Democrats, trying to disrupt the party."

Then Murdock and Senator Bristow, who had told things about Senator Aldrich's connection with the Tariff bill, got busy. They made the last two weeks of the Congress session hum. Both went into the districts of all the "six little Rhode Islanders" and told the voters about their stand-pat Congressmen.

MISSOURI INSURGENT WINS.

Progressive Beaten for Nomination in Kansas City District.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 2.—Congressman Borland has beaten Frank M. Lowe, ex-Prosecuting Attorney, for the Democratic nomination for Congress. Howard F. Lea, progressive, has beaten I. B. Kimbrell, stand-patter, for the Republican nomination. This is the Fifth Missouri District, including Kansas City.

Insufficient returns have been received to indicate the result in the Fourteenth District, where two Republicans are seeking the Congressional nomination on the insurgent and stand-pat issue.

Six of the ten Democratic Congressmen were renominated without opposition, including Champ Clark, minority leader in the House of Representatives. All the present Congressmen from Missouri, with the exception of Harry M. Coudrey of the Twelfth District, sought renomination.

OKLAHOMA REGULARS WIN.

Three Congressmen Opposed by Insurgents Apparently Renominated.

Special to The New York Times.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 2.—Returns from the Oklahoma primary for State and county officers, Republican and Democratic, at a late hour to-night indicate a very close race between L. Cruce and L. P. Ross, Democrats, and John Fields and J. W. McNeal, Republicans, for Governor. There was no general issue in the campaign between insurgents and regulars.

The First, Second, and Third Congress Districts are the only localities with insurgent and regular candidates. Returns received early to-night indicate the renomination of Bird McGuire, D. T. Morgan, and C. E. Creager, all Republican standpatters, for Congress. They were each opposed by one or more candidates running on platforms more or less insurgent.

Indications are that the grandfather clause has carried by a small majority. Under this proposed amendment to the State Constitution the illiterate negro voters of Oklahoma, numbering from 10,000 to 20,000, will be disfranchised in the event of its adoption. A special act of the last Legislature paving the way for the amendment provides a method of counting ballots said to be designed to make its adoption more certain.

WAR AVERTED, SAYS ROOT.

Would Have Come Between England and America but for Hague Tribunal.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 2.—Senator Root began the closing argument for the American side upon the Newfoundland fisheries case before The Hague Tribunal to-day. Sir W. S. Robson, the British Attorney General, having earlier concluded his speech, to which he devoted nearly six days.

Senator Root in his argument pointed out that the prolonged pleadings in the case were fully justified by the importance of the dispute, which was so great that, without the arbitration tribunal, it could not have been adjusted without resort to war.

The Senator claimed that the difference between the English and American points of view largely arose from the fact that Great Britain regarded the question as one of sovereignty, while America stood upon the rights accorded by treaty.

America, he said, was ready to recognize British sovereignty in the matter, but was opposed to laws incompatible with the treaty of 1818.

W. H. Alexander of Englewood Saves His Life, Though Car Is Wrecked.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., Aug. 2.—W. H. Alexander of Englewood had to jump for his life to-day, when an Erie express train crashed into his auto at the Park Avenue crossing, in Rutherford, near here. Mr. Alexander had driven his car on to the tracks and before he cleared the crossing, the gates were closed down, hemming him in.

He tried to drive back, but the wheels of his car became wedged between the rails. A hundred persons held their breath as the onrushing passenger train neared the crossing.

Mr. Alexander leaped from the car just a moment before it was struck and carried 600 feet down the tracks, where it was thrown against a guard rail, a twisted and tangled mass.

APPEAL TO MRS. LONGWORTH.

Nebraska Endeavorers Want Her to Join War on Cigarette Smoking.

Special to The New York Times.

FAIRBURY, Neb., Aug. 2.—Without a dissenting vote the four Christian Endeavor Societies of this city voted to-day that a public request be sent to Mrs. Nicholas Longworth asking her to give up cigarette smoking. It was pointed out at the meeting that the influence of an ex-President's daughter would count for a gerat deal with the younger generation in America.

This action of the societies came as a surprise. It was the climax of a warm discussion folling the reading of a paper on narcotics. The name of the member who proposed writing to Mrs. Longworth on the subject of cigarettes was not made public at the close of the meeting.

Society leaders in general who defend the cigarette habit were severely scored during the discussion.

ARREST ORDER WAS TOO LATE.

Woman Killed Before Police Received Mandate to Keep Tracks Clear.

Thirty minutes after the Long Island City police were ordered to arrest all trespassers on the Long Island Railroad tracks, a young woman was instantly killed by a locomotive near Dead Man's Curve, just west of Water Avenue, last evening. She was identified as Loretta Drewitt of 174 Washington Avenue, Laurel Hill. Her body was mangled, nearly every bone being broken.

The order to the police, which had not yet had time to be put into execution, followed a conference between the Public Service Commission, the officers of the railroad, and the City Magistrates of Queens, called to stop the great number of accidents reported on the tracks of the railroad.

The Magistrates promised to fine all arrested for doing so in the future.

COASTING ON ICE IN SUMMER.

Heavy Hail Enables Boys to Have Winter Sport in August.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH GROVELAND, Mass., Aug. 2.—Coasting on the ice in the Summer time was the experience of some boys of this place to-day, due to a heavy hail storm which happened in the course of the afternoon.

For more than ten minutes the storm contiuued, and when the hail changed to rain the hail did not quickly disappear from the ground. It was then that the boys got busy with their sleds, and for quite a while they enjoyed Winter sport in August. Considerable damage was done by the storm.

ROOSEVELT TOURS AMONG THE MINERS

Fails to Keep Secret His Visit to Anthracite Coal Region to Study Social Conditions.

CALLS AT MANY HOMES

"What! Ye Be Teddy?" Asks a Farmer—Ex-President, Wearing Old Clothes, Pleased as a Boy.

Special to The New York Times.

SCRANTON, Penn., Aug. 2.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt spent to-day investigating the social condition of the miners and silk-mill workers and their families throughout a portion of the anthracite coal region surrounding this place. The Colonel wanted to see conditions at first hand in order to get material to write a sociological story for the New York magazine of which he is contributing editor. The Colonel, in company with two women writers who lived hereabout for several weeks and wrote their impressions of the home life of miners and silk-mill girls for a New York magazine, rode in an auto through several typical mining camps, and talked with miners and their families on a footing of familiarity. To-night he was a guest with John Mitchell, the labor leader, at the home of Bishop Hoban. It is the first time he has been entertained by a Catholic dignitary since the Colonel's famous controversy with the Pope at Rome.

To-morrow, with Mr. Mitchell, Col. Roosevelt will continue his investigations through the mining region around Wilkesbarre. When he finished his trip to-night, so dust-begrimed that he might easily have been mistaken for a miner himself, the Colonel said he had not found conditions among the social life of miners and mill hands to be as bad as he had been led to believe.

The Colonel's trip was one of the most remarkable an ex-President of the United States ever made. It had many humorous features, due to his desire to make it as secret as possible, as he was afraid that if it had been too widely advertised he would not have been able to meet the people in the manner he desired.

Col. Roosevelt said to-night that he had planned the trip for a long time and had made definite arrangements to take it with Mr. Mitchell last week. He said the subject was first called to his attention by the article the two women investigators, Miss Florence Lucas Sandille and Miss Fannie Cochran, had written, and he made an engagement to meet them at a Scranton hotel at 10:30 o'clock this morning and go over the ground they had already covered.

Fails to Keep Trip Secret.

The Colonel took only the Oyster Bay correspondents of the New York newspapers into his confidence, and arranged to meet them at the office of The Outlook early on Monday morning. The trip was to be kept a profound secret and the world was not to have known anything about his wanderings until he had actually reached the mining region. The zeal of a firm which had placed an automobile at the Colonel's disposal in order to get some free advertising nearly spoiled the whole arrangement, however, and put the Colonel in a bad temper. A few minutes before the Colonel was to leave New York on Monday, a member of the motor company called up all the afternoon papers in New York and informed them of the trip. The only thing that wasn't divulged was the destination of the contributing editor. When Col. Roosevelt heard what the auto man had done, he called up the firm, canceled his order for the machine, and engaged another from a different concern, incidentally telling the auto man what he thought of him.

As a result of the tip that had gone out, an army of newspaper men and photographers lay in wait for the Colonel at the foot of West Twenty-third Street. He sprang a surprise on them, however, by going to the foot of West Forty-second Street instead.

The Colonel chose to go by auto to Scranton, as he thought it easier to escape observation. He left Weehawken in company with Lawrence Abbott, son of the editor of The Outlook, about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and reached Delaware Water Gap at 9:30 the same night, stopping at the Water Gap House. Mr. Roosevelt was quickly recognized at the hotel and received an impromptu reception. He shook hands with several hundred people and retired soon. Bright and early this morning the Colonel and Mr. Abbott started for Scranton. The news of the mysterious trip had been flashed ahead by this time, and the countryside was aroused. The fact that an ex-President of the United States, and Col. Roosevelt at that, was going to the mining regions, spread like wildfire. Both the Colonel and Mr. Mitchell are exceedingly popular with the miners since the great coal strike in which the Colonel interfered and brought about better labor conditions when he was President, and he could not have gone into any corner of the United States where he would have been more enthusiastically received

Big Throng Greets Him.

When the Colonel reached here, about 11 o'clock this morning, everybody in Scranton knew about it. For hours extras had been on the street, and a vast throng was at the Jermyn Hotel when he stepped out of his machine. The Colonel was cheered lustily, but to all demands for a speech he merely shook his head. He was dressed like a farmer, and his democratic appearance appealed forcibly to the multitude. He wore an old, crumpled suit of clothes, and a well-worn Panama hat flapped about his ears. The Colonel was as pleased as a boy on a holiday, and made no effort to disguise his identity when he was yelled at as he sped along the roads and through the towns.

As he left Scranton the party got a little puzzled about the direction, and the Colonel stopped and asked a farmer the way.

"By the way, I'm Col. Roosevelt, the ex-President," said the Colonel, with his identifying smile as the farmer stared.

"What! You be Teddy? Well!" said the farmer, and stood staring after the famous man until he was lost to sight. The region which the Colonel traversed after leaving Scranton is known as the Lackawanna Valley, and lies between the Green Ridge Mountains on one side and the Moosic Mountains on the other. It is the very heart of the anthracite region, and mining camps dot the hillsides for miles. Occasionally great black culm piles and enormous coal breakers marking coal shafts rise like miniature extinct volcanoes. Here and there are villages, silk mills, and a few farmhouses. The population is mostly miners and the land mainly uninteresting and forbidding. The roads are execrable, and so dusty that the Colonel was hidden for most of the time in great dust clouds. The Colonel took the State Road, which leads to Binghamton, and his first stop was Dickson City, a typical mining camp. Priceburg Borough, another camp, is close by. Leaving his machine, the Colonel started to climb up the mountainside to a miner's shanty.

Talks to a Barelegged Girl.

On the way he stopped to talk to a barelegged girl, who gave her name as Anna Trykowcky.

"How old are you?" asked Col. Roosevelt.

"Well, I said I was 15 in order to work in the mill," replied the girl.

"Is that so?" said the Colonel, making a note of it.

"I'm Mr. Roosevelt," volunteered the ex-President.

"Lor'!" ejaculated the girl, and sped like a deer to communicate the startling tidings. The Colonel walked up to the miner's shack. It was occupied by a miner named Popek, who said he was a Burgomaster in the old country and had served with the First Delaware Volunteers in the Spanish war. That put the two on a friendly footing, and thereafter they called each other comrades. Popek had just returned from the mine, and his face was smudged black. The Colonel sat on the veranda swinging his feet and talking as fast as he could.

The news of his visit had spread up and down the valley, and within five minutes a score or two of natives, barefoot, bashful children in homespun, miners who had run from their homes, some coatless and hatless in their hurry, loungers, and women in gingham dresses with their bare arms still steaming with the suds from their washtubs. They stood, a motley group, open mouthed, in the little sunflower-filled garden about the miner's home. While the Colonel and Popek were talking, a man in miner's garb, lantern in cap, and the coal grime on his face, elbowed his way through the gaping crowd and confronted the Colonel.

"Hey," he said, without ceremony, "aren't you Col. Teddy Roosevelt?" he asked breathlessly.

"That's right, I'm the Colonel," said the ex-President, with a grin.

"Well, by the Lord, I knew it. I'm Jake Kennedy, and I want you to put her there," said the visitor, holding out a grimy hand.

The Colonel shook it with vigor.

From there the Colonel went to the home of Charles Earley, a civil war veteran. Mr. Earley's stepson, William Sears, who has only one eye, and runs a candy store, refused for a long time to believe that it was really Mr. Roosevelt who was inside the shanty talking familiarly with his family.

"You can't josh me," said William, with conviction. "Why should Teddy come here? Go along now and don't bother me."

Buys a Bottle of Milk.

Mr. Roosevelt stayed in Mr. Earley's house a full hour. Afterward he said he had learned a great deal there about the conditions in the mining region. Outside Mr. Sears did the biggest day's business in the history of his store. The newspaper men threw pennies to the children, and they bought all the candy Mr. Sears had. Mr. Sears also keeps a dairy, and when Mr. Roosevelt bought a bottle of milk and drank it with the crowd looking on, Mr. Sears finally was convinced that his visitor was really the great Colonel, and he laid away the empty bottle as a souvenir. There was almost a tragedy as the Colonel departed. A barelegged, freckled-faced little girl in her excitement, swallowed her gum and was seized with a coughing spell. Mr. Roosevelt slapped her on the back like a discerning father, and when the trouble was over everybody cheered. As the Colonel was getting into his machine John Pressman, a large-sized Dutchman, who lives hard by, pushed to the front.

"Teddy Rosenfeld," he shouted, "I voted for you once and I am going to vote for you again in 1912."

"Well, well," said the Colonel, with a smile, "we won't talk about that now."

At the next house the Colonel stopped, where lived a man named H. E. Dyckman, the Colonel had a long talk. He found Mr. Dyckman a student and a philosopher and wanted to know all about how the people thereabout amused themselves. He said that the principal complaint of the reformers was that there were too many dance halls attached to saloons. This question of amusement interested the Colonel mightily and he heard more about it before he left. When Mr. Roosevelt stopped at the home of Ezra Jenkins Mr. Jenkins had just come from the mine and was in his bare feet.

Climbs a Coal Breaker.

"Wait a minute until I get my shoes on and I will take you to the breaker," said Mr. Jenkins. The Colonel waited, and soon the party, the Colonel in the lead, was climbing the steep, winding wood stairs of Breaker Johnson No. 2. The coal dust was choking and lay thick on everything. The Colonel didn't mind, however; he climbed to the very top of the breaker, watched the boys separate the coal from the slate, and philosophized on everything he saw.

"I thought I had done about everything there was to do," said the Colonel, "but I never climbed up a breaker before."

From here the Colonel was whisked along the dust-blinding road to Olyphant, where he stopped for luncheon. The meal was primitive. It consisted of a glass of milk, sold by a miss of 15, whose hair was braided in pigtails, and who was so overcome by the important occasion that she stood speechless for ten minutes. When speech returned she asked to be excused and rushed to a store where there was a telephone. She called up a girl chum and told her to come over immediately. A few minutes later a pretty sixteen-year-old girl put in an appearance.

"Jennie," said the dairymaid with a catch in her voice, "allow me to introduce Col. Theodore Roosevelt, ex-President of the United States."

Jennie was so overcome by the announcement that tears came into her eyes, and she seized Mr. Roosevelt's hand and kissed it. The Colonel continued on to Peckville and Winton, and at the former place met Michael W. Cummings, the Superintendent of the local schools.

In Winton the Colonel visited the Bliss Silk Mill and found conditions, he said, much better than he had expected. The bobbin and spool girls were not under age, and every one appeared to be perfectly satisfied with their lot. The only complaint the Colonel found was that there were no sitting benches for the girls. Conditions in the mill, he was told, had been vastly improved during the past year.

Returning to Olyphant the Colonel called upon Father Murphy and learned more about the amusement features of the community. Here he visited the Slavack Catholic Parish House, and found it a well-built structure, clean and commodious. The Colonel suggested to the priest that dancing be allowed on Sundays, but the priest was not in favor of dancing at all.

Liked Astonishing the Natives.

Everywhere the Colonel went he was quickly recognized, and in many instances he introduced himself and seemed to relish profoundly the consternation with which the news was received. He shook hands with miners until his hands were as black as the natives' and he chatted with the housewives and joked with the children until he made himself even more popular, if that were possible, than before.

He got back to the Jermyn Hotel in Scranton about 4:30 o'clock this afternoon and found the street in front of the hotel and the hotel corridors jammed with people. The entire Board of Trade of Scranton was there, with a request that the Colonel make a speech at the opening of the Industrial Exposition here on Oct. 5. The spokesman said he wanted the CVolonel at the exposition just to get even with Wilkesbarre, which had been boasting ever since about the visit Mr. Roosevelt had made there several years ago. The Colonel refused the invitation courteously but firmly.

While the Colonel was on his inspection trip John Mitchell arrived from New York, and after the Colonel had taken a bath and changed his clothes the two went to the home of Bishop Hoban. At the dinner given to him there many Catholics, Judges, and local politicians were present. A number of the latter called upon the Colonel at the hotel, but he refused to talk politics.

Late to-night the Colonel went to the home of Father J. J. Curran at Wilkesbarre, where he will remain all night, and continue his trip through the mining region to-morrow.

The Colonel refused to comment upon his trip beyond saying that he had tried to find out the social conditions of the community, particularly in regard to what form of amusements existed.

The only efficient way to prevent harmful amusements, he said, was to establish the right sort. Beyond dance halls, that mostly adjoin saloons, he found, he said, that the principal recreation features were nickelodeons. The Colonel will sum up his impressions in the magazine he represents, he said. He will return to Oyster Bay on Thursday.

KEPT BODY IN STATION HOUSE

Coroner Holzhauser Refused to Send Car Victim to the Morgue.

John Knight of 460 Manhattan Avenue was killed last evening by a southbound car in Eighth Avenue. He stepped in front of the car in avoiding one going in the opposite direction at 119th Street.

The man's body was held at the West 125th Street Station, by order of Coroner Holzhauser, for three hours, while the police tried to locate his brother, as a body cannot be surrendered to an undertaker until it is identified by a relative.

Outside the station stood a wagon owned by Clement Morrison, an undertaker of 280 West 118th Street, and a wicker basket to remove the body rested on the floor of the inner room.

Coroner Holzhauser was asked if the body would be left there until identified or removed to the Harlem Morgue. He said it would be left there, and then went out with the representative of the undertaker.

MONTT TO VISIT TAFT.

Chilian President, Who Arrives To-morrow, Will Go to Beverly.

Marco Chiapponi of Santiago, Chile, arrived at the Hotel Belleclaire yesterday to make arrangements for the visit of President Pedro Montt of Chile, who arrives to-day on the Tagus. President Montt, his wife, Donna Sara del Campo de Montt; his secretary, and an official suite will be taken off the Tagus on a revenue cutter and landed at West Forty-ninth Street and North River, when they will proceed to the Hotel Plaza, where President Montt and his party will remain four days.

President Montt, who will spend two weeks in this country before proceeding to Europe, during which he will visit President Taft at Beverly, Mass., is on his way to a sanitarium at Bad Nauheim, Germany. He is taking a four months' vacation on the advice of his physicians. He would have resigned the Presidency of Chile, but the Council of State would not permit it.

President Montt was elected President for a five-year term in June, 1906. Previously he had been Senator and Vice President of the Council of State. He was Secretary of the Interior under President Jorge Montt, and his father, Manuel Montt, was President from 1851 to 1861. President Montt was a member of the revolutionary Junta in the United States in 1891 and was its diplomatic agent. The revolution was successful and the new administration made him Minister to Washington.

The President of Chile has been a firm friend of the United States in several crises which have arisen between the two countries, and took a large part in the preparation of the notable Chilian exhibit at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo in 1901.

TAFT KEEPS SILENT; BALLINGER DEFIANT

President Known to Have Received Many Protests Against His Secretary of Interior.

SAYS HE WON'T RESIGN

Ballinger Declares That Meeting with Crane Had Nothing to Do with His Place in the Cabinet.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 2.—There were increasing evidences here to-day that the recent bombardment of the President with letters from Republican leaders in all parts of the country protesting that Secretary of the Interior Ballinger was proving an embarrassment in the laying of plans for the coming Congressional campaign is beginning to have an effect, if not upon the President himself, at least upon the advisors who are closest to him.

No attempt was made to-day to deny the reports that Senator Crane at the very outset of his political pilgrimage in West, had probably suggested to Secretary Ballinger, at Minneapolis, yesterday, that his duty to the party might require that he sacrifice his place in the Cabinet. All that Secretary Norton would say after having considered the matter nearly all day, was that it would be necessary to ask Senator Crane.

The statement was reiterated, however, that President Taft "would not so much as lift his little finger if by so doing he could secure the retirement of Secretary Ballinger as head of the Interior Department."

In addition to the letters he has received, the President has heard verbally from a number of the party leaders regarding the sentiment toward Secretary Ballinger. They have talked frankly with Mr. Taft on the subject, it is said, and while they have agreed with the President apparently in his position that nothing has been proved against Secretary Ballinger, they have put the matter purely on a party basis and have said that the compaign would be much easier with the Ballinger issue eliminated. The leaders have declared that the fight is going to be a hard one at best, and while they feel sorry for Mr. Ballinger, they regard his presence in the Cabinet as a handicap.

President Taft was frankly told a few days ago that the movement behind James R. Garfield in Ohio and the votes cast for him in the State convention were a protest against Secretary Ballinger. The Ohio leaders recognized the strength of this movement by making many platform concessions to the Garfied wing of the party.

There was no disposition in Beverly to-day to treat the meeting of Senator Crane and Secretary Ballinger in Minneapolis yesterday as "accidental." It was clearly intimated, however, that whatever move was being made against Secretary Ballinger had its inception and being with the active party leaders and not with President Taft. The President, it can be positively stated, will never ask Mr. Ballinger to resign.

If the Secretary should feel called upon to resign, however, there is said to be little doubt that resignation would be accepted.

BALLINGER NOT TO RESIGN.

Says Vicious Attacks by Unscrupulous Men Do Not Affect Him.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Secretary Ballinger denied to-day that his conference with Senator Crane in Minneapolis yesterday related to or would be followed by his resignation. He said the matter discussed was not even of direct interest to him. He denounced his foes in strong language and said he intended to ignore entirely their demand for his retirement.

His denial was issued after reading dispatches from Beverly which indicated that Senator Crane's mission to the West was to carry the hint that Mr. Ballinger would aid the party in the forthcoming elections by withdrawing at this time.

"There's no resignation on the card, I can tell you," was Mr. Ballinger's reply to this. "I am simply on my way to the coast for a little rest. Some of them want me to make my rest permanent, but it will not be so long as President Taft is satisfied. I met Crane yesterday morning through no arrangement of mine, and the matter we discussed—politics, of course—was nothing which interested me directly at all. Mr. Crane wished to consult me on the matter and came to where I was, that's all. There's nothing mysterious about it. I guess he's gone back East now.

"All this vicious attack by unscrupulous men, backed by newspapers with even less scruples, goes off my back like water off a duck. It never will induce me to resign."

TAFT'S PLANS FOR ECONOMY.

Asks Experts to Study Department Methods and Suggest Reforms.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 2.—President Taft to-day took the first steps in the plan for bringing about greater business efficiency in the different departments of the Government and thus effecting wide economics by sending to Washington experts who are to make a preliminary study of the situation and submit a programme for carrying forward the work. Some one of these plans, or perhaps parts of all of them, may be accepted. The plans to be submitted, however, are to be in the nature of competitive bids.

The President has an appropriation of $100,000 for the purpose of reorganizing departmental methods. It is proposed that some executive officer in each department and independent bureau at Washington be designated to serve on a commission which will co-operate with the experts in bringing about the big reform. The undertaking is voluminous and the President wants to get it under way at the earliest possible moment. The inquiry will not be devoted so much to cutting off a clerk here and there as to formulating an entirely new structure of methods wherever present practice seems to demand such treatment.

Among others who have been asked to submit a written programme are Arthur Young & Co., the accountants who have been at work for a year in the Treasury Department; Major Charles Hine, the organization expert of the Harriman lines; Gunn, Richards, & Co., who have done similar work for the Interior Department in the past, and Harwick, Mitchell & Co., who have devised a cost accounting system for the navy.

The President already has taken up the subject of the department estimates for the next fiscal year and has served notice upon the different department chiefs that their figures must be held down to the lowest notch consistent with good service. Mr. Taft's position is said to be the same as it was last year on this point, when the departmental estimates were cut several millions of dollars.

Gen. Leonard Wood, Chief of Staff of the army, spent some time with the President this afternoon, going over the estimates of the army for next year.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Hilles also was here. Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh may run over any day from his Summer place at Dublin, N. H.

Senator Wetmore of Rhode Island talked with the President this afternoon on the subject of the Government Art Commission. He also asked Mr. Taft to reconsider his declination of the invitation to lay the cornerstone of the new Naval Y. M. C. A. building at Newport in September. The President said his declination would have to stand.

Twenty-six Boston business men, members of the Atlantic Conference, called to pay their respects to President Taft this afternoon. They were on an outing to the North Shore.

GRISCOM DENIES REPORT.

No Meeting of Taft and Roosevelt at His Place Arranged.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 2.—Lloyd C. Griscom denied this afternoon that President Taft and ex-President Roosevelt had accepted invitations to meet at Mr. Griscom's Summer home at Black Rock at an early date. Mr. Griscom said he had made no such arrangements and that the report was news to him.

He said he did not contemplate extending any such invitations "at the moment." He added, however, that he would not say that the President and Col. Roosevelt might not meet at his home some time.

BRYAN MAN WITHDRAWS.

W. R. Patrick Not to Seek Nomination for Governor of Nebraska.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 2.—W. R. Patrick of Omaha to-day announced that he has forwarded to the Secretary of State his withdrawal from the race for the Gubernatorial nomination by the Democratic Party. Mr. Patrick is an avowed advocate of county option, and has been supposed to have the backing of William J. Bryan.

Richard L. Metcalfe, editor of Mr. Bryan's paper, who is in the race for the United States Senate, has announced that he is supporting Gov. Shallenberger for renomination. This in connection with the withdrawal of Mr. Patrick from the Gubernatorial race is believed by political leaders here to indicate that Mr. Bryan intends to come out in favor of the present Governor.

SURE DEMOCRATS WILL WIN.

John A. Dix and E. M. Shepard Cheer Kings County Committee.

John A. Dix, the new Democratic State Chairman, and Edward M. Shepard addressed the Kings County Democratic General Committee last night on the prospects of Democratic success in this State this Fall, at a meeting in the Thomas Jefferson Building, Brooklyn.

Chairman Dix declared that the Republicans had failed to make good their promises and were opposed to the wishes of the people, which, he said, should spur Democrats to nominate men of high ideals whose candidacy would insure party success this Fall. One reform demanded, he said, was a proper revision of the tariff. Mr. Dix urged that Democrats put aside any differences and, working in harmony, grasp the opportunity for success.

Mr. Shepard also emphasized the need of harmony. He warned his hearers of the danger of overconfidence. While the situation favored the party, Democrats should not feel that success was assured.

MAY BAR WOMAN ON BALLOT.

Connecticut Officials Expected to Act on Nomination by Socialists.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 2.—The legal opinion given in New Hampshire that the name of Mrs. Marilla M. Ricker of Dover cannot legally go upon the official ballot to be used in the primary election for nominating a Republican candidate for Governor has attracted attention in Connecticut, where a somewhat similar question may arise.

The Socialist Party has named Ella Reeve Bloor of Waterbury for Secretary of State on its State ticket. While no action has yet been taken it is expected that the Attorney General will be asked for an opinion on the power of the Secretary of State to place Mrs. Bloor's name on the Australian ballot, which will be used for the first time in the November elections.

Mrs. Bloor's nomination, it is believed, is the first one of a woman for a State office in Connecticut. She has been prominent in Socialist Party ranks, coming here from Colorado, and two years ago doing considerable compaigning. She was a member of the commission appointed by President Roosevelt to inquire into stockyard conditions.

The State Constitution provides that no person who is not an elector of the State has a right to vote for Governor. This qualification is presumed to govern the election of other State officers. No law has ever been passed making women electors under this section of the Constitution.

DEMOCRATIC HEADQUARTERS.

State Committee Takes New Rooms in the Century Building.

Local headquarters of the Democratic State Committee will be opened to-day on the top floor of the Century Building in West Thirty-fourth Street, opposite the Waldorf-Astoria. John A. Dix, Chairman of the committee, was in the city yesterday supervising the fitting up of the rooms. The Century Building was chosen as headquarters for the Democratic National Committee in 1904, when Alton B. Parker was the candidate for President.

OSBORNE DELEGATES NAMED.

Wayne County Democrats Denounce Republican Extravagance.

Special to The New York Times.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 2.—The Wayne County Democratic Convention was held this afternoon at Newark and delagates favorable to the nomination of Thomas M. Osborne for Governor was named.

A resolution severely condemning Republican extravagance and corruption was adopted on motion of Charles McLouth.

GRAND TRUNK STRIKE COMES TO AN END

Settlement Helped by Government Intervention, Due to the Ministers of Labor and Militia.

MEN GET SOME CONCESSIONS

But Not All They Struck For—Agreement Is a Compromise, Which Satisfies Their Leaders.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 2.—Mackenzie King, Minister of Labor, announced to-night that the Grand Trunk Railway strike had been settled as a result of Government intervention. He stated that the successful issue of the negotiations was due mainly to Sir Frederick Borden. Indeed, he remarked, had it not been for the services of the Minister of Militia he did not believe the strike would be ended to-day.

The settlement is a compromise. While the company has been willing that the standard rates should go into force in 1913, it has agreed that they shall do so in 1912. The working rules which have gone into force on the Canadian Pacific have also been agreed upon. They are particularly favorable to the men.

The terms of the settlement are as follows:

1. The company will reinstate as soon as possible the men other than those who have been or may be found guilty of acts of violence or disorderly conduct, no coercion or intimidation to be used toward the new men.

2. The company will put into effect as from May 1, 1910, the rates named in the schedule of rates dated July 18, 1910, these rates to be embodied in the present schedules now in effect, it being understood that they shall in no instance effect a reduction in any existing rate.

3. The company will, on Jan. 1, 1912, make effective in its train and yard service the rates of pay and the rules contained in the schedule or agreement on that date in effect on the lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway east of Fort William.

The above three conditions will apply also to the Central Vermont Railroad Company, the said railroad to be substituted for the Grand Trunk Railway and the Rutland Railroad to be substituted for the Canadian Pacific wherever the same are used or understood in the above.

The men have been on strike since July 18, and the strike has been marked by considerable rioting.

By the settlement they receive, as from May 1 last, an advance of approximately 18 per cent., and, beginning Jan. 1 1912, a rate of wages slightly below the Eastern Association schedule, for which they struck, but an advance in many instances of over 30 per cent.

The men thus obtain two concessions over the terms offered by President Hayes on the day they struck. First, the standardization of pay and rules with those recently conceded by the Canadian Pacific takes place on Jan. 1, 1912, instead of Jan. 1, 1913, as offered by Mr. Hayes, a gain of one year. Against this must be placed the fact that the Canadian Pacific standard and rules are not quite those of the Eastern Association, which the men demanded from the Grand Trunk.

Secondly, the offer made by Mr. Hayes to the men on July 18 is accepted, to hold until the standardization is adopted on Jan. 1, 1912, but the increased rate of pay made in that offer is retroactive, dating from May 1 last. The men, therefore, gain two and a half months of the increase.

Against these two gains there must be placed the fact that the men are only to be restored to their former positions "as soon as possible." How much they lose in this way only time can tell, as the company is not under obligation to discharge any of the men it has taken on since the strike was called, nor to reduce them in rank.

In the case of the Central Vermont, the same settlement applies, with the exception that the standardization to be applied on Jan. 1, 1912, is to be that of the Rutland Railway, a road in the same territory, and not that of the Canadian Pacific, which only will apply to the Grand Trunk system.

President Garretson of the Conductors and President Lee of the Trainmen both declare they are satisfied with the terms of the settlement. Both pay a high tribute to MacKenzie King and Sir Frederick Borden, the two Ministers who worked assiduously in bringing the parties together.

The agreement was signed by President Hayes and the men's representatives.

ULTIMATUM TO CLOAKMAKERS

Must Accept Agreement To-day or Employers Will Open Shops Anyhow.

The crisis in the strike of the 70,000 cloakmakers in this city was reached yesterday. The employers give the strikers until 10 A. M. to-day to accept or reject an agreement drafted on Monday by Louis D. Brandeis, who was Chairman of the conferences of the committees of the Manufacturers' Association and the cloakmakers last week, and Julius Henry Cohen, counsel for the manufacturers. Meyer London, as counsel for the strikers, accepted the agreement. Yesterday afternoon the manufacturers concluded that further conferences with representatives of the union would not help matters.

In a statement issued yesterday the employers said:

"The agreement practically was a concession by the employers on almost every disputed point brought up by the strikers. Grievances which the employers felt could not be settled satisfactorily by them they consented to submit to an arbitration committee, and bound themselves to abide by its rulings. They agreed to recognize the union to the extent of co-operating with it for the general benefit of the trade, and pledged themselves to give preference to union men in the matter of employment when rival union and non-union candidates for jobs were of equal efficiency.

"They declined to submit to the control of the union in the matter of a 'closed shop,' taking the stand that this one contention had been theirs from the beginning of the strike, and that it had been a written stipulation prior to the conferences between them and the union officials that the question of an 'open' or a 'closed shop' should not be raised.

"Despite this understanding among the conferrees, several attempts were made by some of the union delegates to introduce the subject under various disguises, particularly offering it as a remedy to existing conditions. Mr. Brandeis, as Chairman, prevented the discussion of this subject on each occasion of its introduction, and finally on Saturday the union delegates announced that the conference might as well come to an end, as 'no agreement evidently could be reached on wages and hours.'

"The proposal was objected to as a subterfuge by Mr. Cohen, who stated that the real reason for the desire to end the conference was the inability to cause to be introduced a discussion of the 'closed shop.' It was decided then that while the conferences as such should be discontinued, negotiations should be continued by Messrs. Cohen, London, and Brandeis, and that these three should endeavor to formulate an agreement which would prove satisfactory to both sides."

In the agreement as drawn up the manufacturers announce that they believe in the union, but will not surrender the control of their factories to the union.

It was said that in all probability there will be no concerted movement for all the manufacturers in the association to open their factories in a body in case of no reply to-day. Each will open his factory when he thinks best, and the Police Department will be asked for protection.

The leaders of the strikers appeared to be equally divided on the question whether the closed shop demand was waived before the conferences, which failed to bring about a settlement took place. Some of them believed that the grievances were still susceptible of adjustment, but a large and influential faction favored the closed shop in its rigid sense and were against any proposal that did not carry the closed shop provision.

President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor addressed the Executive Committee of the strikers at 161 West Thirty-fourth Street yesterday morning. It was stated that he is taking no part in running the strike.

STABBED IN A STRIKE RIOT.

Watchman for a Cloak Manufacturer Accused—Was Attacked by Crowd.

John Eller of 40 Carmine Street, a young watchman employed by a cloak manufacturer, was performing his nightly service of escorting a companion through the danger zone of the strike sympathizers yesterday, when the two were set upon by a group of men who came into Spring Street from Sullivan Street. Bricks flew in the air and there was a temporary tempest.

Policemen from the Macdougal Street Station descended on the crowd and took into custody Tony Fusga of 2,128 First Avenue and Jacob Greenberg of 32 Delancey Street. Fusga fainted in the station, and it was found that he had been stabbed in the back, the blade penetrating the lung, so that his condition is critical. He was revived by Dr. Keefe of St. Vincent's Hospital, long enough to accuse Eller, the watchman, of having stabbed him.

Eller was arrested, charged with assault.

IOWA CONVENTION TO-DAY.

Progressives and Insurgents to Battle Over Platform Declarations.

DES MOINES, Aug. 2.—Politics was in active eruption here to-day, preliminary to the Republican State Convention to-morrow. The stand-patters gathered several hundred strong to-day and decided to insist on a plank indorsing President Taft and the official acts of his Administration and those of the recent Congress, and to indorse the Iowa insurgent delegation only in so far as it has supported the Administration on the tariff and railroad legislation.

On the other hand, the progressive leaders conferred and agreed to the general effect that Taft should be mentioned only to the extent of being praised for endeavoring to carry out the pledges of the Republican National platform.

At the stand-pat meeting ex-Congressman Lacey sounded the keynote. Other speakers were George D. Perkins of Sioux City, former Congressman Hepburn, and Congressman Hull, recently defeated for renomination at the Seventh District primaries by the progressive candidate, Judge Prouty.

Among those at the insurgent meeting were Senator Cummins, former Judge Jesse A. Miller, Attorney General Byers, and Warren Garst, the defeated progressive candidate for Governor.

Senator Dolliver arrived during the day and was immediately slated for permanent Chairman to take the gavel when laid down by Senator Cummins, the temporary Chairman.

SELIGMAN BACK, OPTIMISTIC.

Banker Returning from Europe Says Dull Times Are Overestimated.

When Jefferson Seligman, who has been abroad two months, returned yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, he said he believed the financial outlook in this country was good, and that improvement was coming.

"Dull times are overestimated," he said. "The situation is not nearly so grave as some would have one believe. The present situation is brought about by legislation. When the departments of the Government get together officially business affairs will straighten out.

"There are plenty of good bargains to be picked up in Wall Street. I believe more business will be handled this Fall than ever before."

allowance, that he had never known of a street railway where 5 per cent. was deemed sufficient.

Taking the basis adopted by the Supreme Court of the United States in the special franchise tax decision, 9 per cent. of the gross earnings would have to be allowed for depreciation, or $630,000 in the case of the Third Avenue. So Commissioner Maltbie adopts for his comparisons an item of $500,000 for depreciation as the minimum, which makes the figures run even further against the reorganizers.

Commissioner Maltbie, who has the unanimous support of the three other members of the commission who are here, emphatically dissents from the proposal to issue the securities called for in the reorganization plan on the theory that some day they may enjoy the income return that is promised on their face.

It is at once apparent that as the results for the year 1908-9 would barely be sufficient to pay interest on refunding bonds, the holders of the other securities would receive nothing. In 1909-10 and 1910-11, the holders of income bonds might receive 2 or 3 per cent. But earnings would have to be very materially increased and expenses decreased to enable the company to pay 5 per cent. on the income bonds. Earnings will probably increase from year to year, but the evidence does not warrant the prediction that the stock would receive even a small dividend for many years to come, and it is most uncertain when full interest would be paid on the income bonds.

Excessive Issues an Injury to Service

"If the plan were approved the effort to earn interest and dividends upon the securities would inevitably tempt managers to give inferior service at high rates. No matter how excessive the issues of stocks and bonds, the manager feels that he is expected to earn dividends and interest thereon, and every time he is able to increase the rate of profit by a fraction of 1 per cent. he adds to his reputation. Naturally, therefore, he is very strongly tempted to try to squeeze an extra 1 per cent. out of the service or the fares. Whereas, if the capitalization were smaller it would be easier to earn interest and good dividends without robbing the service.

"The State has not undertaken to guarantee a return upon investment, but certainly there is an expectation that this commission will not allow securities to be issued which are not represented by property and upon which there is no probability that there will be a return."

There is in the opinion this much consolation for the Third Avenue stockholders, who are far removed from any earnings under any view of the situation:

"In this connection it may be pointed out that the rejection of the plan now before the commission does not necessarily involve a refusal to allow the stockholders of the old company to participate in the profits of the new company unless they make a generous contribution to pay an assessment. The share of the earnings allotted to them does not depend upon the amount of stock they hold. They would receive the same share with an issue of $1,600,000 par value or $800,000 as with $16,000,000."

The plan which has just been rejected is the second submitted by the Third Avenue bondholders. The first was rejected about a year ago, and this one came along in December of 1909.

The commission held more than a hundred hearings on the reorganization plan. Chairman Willcox and Commissioner Maltbie sat at most of the hearings, but as Chairman Willcox is now in Europe the case was decided in his absence. Lawyers for the Third Avenue interests said last night that as they had not yet seen the decision of the commission they could not discuss it. At the hearings they have threatened to fight the commission in the courts if their plan should be rejected.

HARMON WILL TRY TO SETTLE STRIKE

Brings About Conference Between Columbus Street Car Officials and the Men.

COSTS STATE $10,000 A DAY

Governor Anxious to Stop This Outlay, but Denies That He Will Send Troops Away at Once.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 2.—Negotiations started by Gov. Harmon to-day to settle the street car strike were not terminated to-night, an adjournment of all parties concerned being taken until to-morrow morning. The Governor returned to-day from a short stay in Cleveland, and denied the statement attributed to him that he was about to order the withdrawal of the troops. He says the troops will not leave until all danger of disorder is over.

He summoned Robert H. Sheldon, President, and E. K. Stewart, General Manager of the street railroad company, and the Executive Board of the Carmen's Union to appear at his office at 5 o'clock this evening. In the meantime he held long and separate conferences with E. K. Stewart and Charles Miller, manager of the Carmen's Association. Mr. Stewart objected to the presence of Frank S. Monnett, attorney for the strikers, and that gentleman withdrew. He then objected to Fred Fay, President of the Executive Board of the National Association of Street Car Employes, being present, saying he wanted to treat only with actual ex-employes. Mr. Fay said it was his duty to be present at all negotiations relating to strikes, and refused to leave. Seeing that nothing definite could be accomplished, Gov. Harmon suggested that, as only five of the Executive Board of the Carmen's Association were present, the meeting adjourn until to-morrow. This was agreed upon. Nothing was said by either side as to the terms of the proposed settlement.

The men continue to hold out for an increase to 27 cents an hour, the recognition of the union, the privilege of wearing the union button, and an arbitration clause in the agreement. The company is obdurate to these demands. The Governor will attempt to have both sides abide by the decision of the Board of Arbitration. This means that the company, having been found "guilty" of discriminating against union employes, will sign an agreement not to discriminate in the future, and, in addition, will restore to their former positions all union men discharged as a result of discriminatory tactics. The union, on its part, will not attempt to coerce non-union men into joining the union.

Gov. Harmon is making it plainer each day that there must be a speedy settlement of the strike. The cost to the State of maintaining 3,000 soldiers in Columbus is reaching close to $10,000 a day, and at that rate a big dent is being made in the State Treasury. The $60,000 appropriated by the Emergency Board will have to be supplemented with an additional appropriation if the strike is not settled within the next few days.

The company is running comparatively few cars at a loss of many thousands of dollars a day. Disorder continues. Business is almost at a standstill. Some wholesale houses are refusing credit to merchants on account of the gloomy outlook, and a panic is feared.

Two cars were wrecked and partially burned on Leonard Avenue early this morning. The first car out of the West End barn found a switch spiked. When the crew attempted to repair it they were driven away. The car was then started down the track with no one on it. Another car was on the same track, and when the crew saw it bearing down upon them they fled. The two cars crashed and were afterward set afire. The police in automobiles extinguished the fire. No arrests were made.

A car ran over a stick of dynamite in Buckingham Street. A rail was split, but no further damage done. The troops found another stick near the scene of the explosion. Two sacks of powder fitted with percussion caps were found on the car tracks on Oak Street just as a car reached it. On Leonard Avenue the bombarding of cars was reduced to a system and the volleys directed by a leader. In one instance the gang was directed to concentrate its fire on the front end of a Leonard Avenue car and ruined the vestibule. Trolley wires were cut in other districts.

PASSAIC INDORSES LEWIS.

Republicans Name Him for Governor at Dinner at Which He Is Guest.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 2.—Vivian M. Lewis was formally indorsed for the Republican nomination for Governor by the Passaic County Republican Committee at a dinner to-night at which he was the guest of honor. More than 100 Republicans representing all parts of the county were present. Postmaster George W. Pollitt, Chairman of the County Committee, presided.

"I appreciate this compliment," said Mr. Lewis, when called upon after the reading of the resolutions. "Three years ago the Passaic County delegation went to Trenton to advocate my nomination, but others had a different programme, which resulted in the nomination of the present Chief Executive. If my election is brought about it will be due in large measure to the movement which you started three years ago."

Mr. Lewis referred to the benefit of political organizations, and said that organization was essential to success of a party.

Mr. Lewis said he was in favor of amending the Public Utilities bill if it were found to be ineffective, and that he was in favor of State conservation of the portable waters.

Mark Well the Distinction Between "Player Pianos" and the Real PIANOLA PIANO

The success and the wide-spread acceptance of the Pianola Piano have led both the press and others into a tendency to use the term "Pianola Piano" in speaking of any piano containing a piano player.

This confusion is accentuated by the seeming similarity of the terms "piano player," "player piano" and "Pianola Piano."

The chief sufferer from this confusion is the purchaser who, supposing he is buying the famous Pianola Piano itself, finds out when too late that he has acquired merely a weak imitation.

The Aeolian Company has spent many thousands of dollars to protect the public against this mistake.

Learn These Facts BEFORE You Buy

The Pianola was the first successful piano player. The Pianola Piano was the first successful player piano.

Both are the only instruments of their kind made by The Aeolian Company, the largest and most important music house in the world.

Their sales are, and always have been, larger than the sales of any of their imitators.

They have been endorsed in writing by nearly every great musical artist, teacher, conductor and authority living—to the exclusion of other similar instruments.

They are the only instruments of this nature which enable the person without musical training to duplicate the playing of a skilled pianist—as opposed to the mere sounding of notes in their right order.

They are the only instruments containing such helpful devices as the Metrostyle and the Themodist—the importance of which has never even been suggested in type.

The Pianola Is Built Into Only Five Pianos

Either before you purchase or after you purchase, you will learn the vast difference between the Pianola Piano and its imitators. To learn this before means a lasting delight. To learn this afterwards means a lasting regret. The Pianola can be had only in five pianos. These five Pianola Pianos are the Steinway, the Weber, the Steck, the Wheelock, the Stuyvesant.

You are cordially invited to visit Aeolian Hall—the only place in Manhattan where the Pianola Piano can be obtained.

CRIPPEN IS HELPED BY LONDON FRIENDS

Arthur Newton, Well-Known Solicitor, Telegraphs They Will Pay for His Defense.

LENEVE GIRL STILL LOYAL

Refuses to Tell the Police What She Knows—The Prisoners May Be Taken to England Secretly.

Special to The New York Times.

QUEBEC, Aug. 2.—The following telegram from London to Dr. Hawley H. Crippen was handed to him to-day after it had been examined by Magistrate Anger and Inspector Dew:

> Dr. H. H. Crippen, care of Inspector Dew, Quebec:
>
> Your friends desire me to defend you and will pay all necessary expenses. Will undertake your defense, but you must promise to keep absolute silence and answer no questions, and don't resist extradition.
>
> Reply confirmation, as good deal must be done at once. ARTHUR NEWTON, Solicitor, London.

Mr. Newton is one of the best-known solicitors for criminal cases in London, and it is supposed, as a result of the receipt of the telegram, that Crippen has more influential friends than had been believed.

Whether Crippen has accepted the assistance offered by these friends could not be learned to-night. Inspector Dew and Chief McCarthy had nothing to say after their visit to him. Neither could the identity of the friends who volunteered their funds be ascertained.

Ethel Leneve, it is believed, still remains loyal to Crippen and refuses to tell the police what she knows regarding the alleged murder of Belle Elmore. A report was circulated here to-day that Miss Leneve had told Inspector Dew at the hospital of the city prison, whither she has been removed from Magistrate Anger's house, that she knew nothing about a murder—that she had been under the impression that Mrs. Crippen had died, and that was why she had accepted her jewelry.

Inspector Dew, when questioned about this report, declined either to confirm or deny it. He tried to avoid the reporters as much as possible, and says that he dislikes publicity in connection with his business.

It is more than likely that Miss Leneve will not be taken to the Court House either on Aug. 8 or Aug. 16, in order to spare her the ordeal of riding through the public streets, which, in the opinion of the prison surgeon, might give her a more severe shock than the arrest on the Montrose. The only glimpse the public have had of her was when she landed, and then she was so heavily veiled that only the lower part of her face could be seen.

A number of the Knights of Columbus and their wives obtained leave to go over the city prison, where they all asked permission to get a look at the two famous prisoners. The jailer refused their requests on the ground that Dr. Crippen and his companion are only there under detention, and it is against the law to allow visitors to see prisoners unless the prisoners themselves request it.

Joseph Morin, the jailer, says Crippen was rather depressed this morning and had lost his calm air, but he had taken his meals regularly. His daily bill of fare is a simple one—oatmeal gruel for breakfast and supper, soup for dinner with half a pound of bread at each meal and meat twice a week. He has an hour's exercise in the morning and one in the afternoon in the wide stone corridor which overlooks the prison courtyard.

He to-day expressed a desire for some books, and Morin went to the matron on the women's side and borrowed Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" and the "Lives of the Early Saints." These were the only books printed in English that were obtainable in the prison, the majority of the prisoners being French Canadians.

Crippen was asked to-day whether he wished to give out any statement to the newspapers for his friends in the United States to read, and he replied: "I have nothing to say." Any interviews with the prisoners, it was stated, would only be allowed in the presence of Inspector Dew.

It is very probable, from what leaked out to-day from police circles here, that Inspector Dew will try to keep Crippen and Miss Leneve away from reporters and photographers on the voyage across the Atlantic by selecting a vessel sailing from a port other than Quebec and keeping the prisoners' departure secret. The time of arrival in London will also be kept secret, it is said, and will be at night.

Crippen to-day received a long telegram from his aged father, who lives in Los Angeles with the prisoner's son by his first marriage. It was handed to him after being perused by Magistrate Anger and Inspector Dew.

The clothes lent to Miss Leneve by the stewardess of the Montrose were returned to the ship to-day, and the prisoner received a plain dark gray costume and other necessary apparel, which had been purchased by the matron of the prison.

All expenses connected with the two fugitives during their stay in this city are being paid by Scotland Yard. Miss Leneve will have the same bill of fare as Crippen unless the prison surgeon considers it advisable to order other diet on account of her condition, which is now said by the Magistrate to be normal.

Cabmen are doing a roaring trade by driving strangers around the city prison and pointing out a strongly barred window which, they declare in their broken English, is the window of the cell in which "that Crippen fellow he be."

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Arthur Newton, the London solicitor, who has cabled to Dr. Crippen his willingness to undertake Crippen's defense, is a well-known and successful criminal advocate.

He has been connected with many cases of a sensational character.

MANY LONDON WITNESSES.

Fifteen Persons Make Depositions Before a Magistrate.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Fifteen persons, mostly women, who will be called as witnesses at the trial of Dr. Crippen, appeared before the Bow Street Magistrate at a private hearing to-day for the purpose of making depositions to facilitate the proceedings in Canada.

Paul Martinetti and his wife, who dined with the Crippens at their invitation on the evening of Jan. 31, the night on which Mrs. Crippen is said to have disappeared, were among those who gave testimony to-day. The documents which were prepared after the hearing and the other papers connected with the extradition of the couple now in Quebec, will be carried by Sergt. Mitchell, who will sail on the steamer Lake Manitoba on Thursday.

Scotland Yard officials said to-day that the warrants of arrest charge both Dr. Crippen and Ethel Leneve with murder. They must therefore be charged together, and will return to London on the same steamer. The question of changing the charge of murder against the Leneve woman to one of lesser degree has not yet been discussed, and if it were decided to recommend such a course this could only be done by application to the presiding Judge at the commencement of the trial.

Scotland Yard to-day denied a report that Inspector Dew had been notified that the body found at the Crippen home had been definitely identified as that of Belle Elmore.

Mr. Metcalfe is from Ossining, but has been employed by leading New York City architects on competition work. At one time he taught architecture in the Mechanics' Institute, New York City. He is a graduate of Pratt Institute School of Architecture.

VITRIOL BURNS TEN CHILDREN

Carboys Broke in Accident to Vehicle on Which They Were Riding.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—Two children were fatally injured and eight other children and four men were seriously burned as the result of a peculiar accident here this afternoon.

A Fire Department supply wagon, carrying four 15-gallon carboys of vitriolic acid, on which ten children were riding, broke an axle as it was turning out of a street car track to let a trolley car pass. The breaking of the axle upset the vehicle, spilling the children and the carboys. The carboys broke and in an instant the ten youngsters were covered with the deadly acid.

Their screams were frightful as the vitriol burned off their clothes and began eating away their flesh. The driver of the wagon, Richard Grear, the trolley car's passengers, and a policeman promptly went to their rescue and tore the clothes from them as best they could. Each one who touched the saturated clothing of the children was burned, some so painfully that they were unable to give further help. The children and their rescuers were hurriedly sent to the nearest hospital.

Five of the children on the wagon belonged to Grear. Their ages range from 5 to 13 years. The other five children were their playmates, and Grear was giving them all a ride in making the rounds of the fire stations.

RESTELLI STILL AT LARGE.

Quincy Citizens Want Reward Offered—Quarries to be Dynamited for Body.

QUINCY, Mass., Aug. 2.—Although the Quincy police and the citizens generally had a busy day to-day running down what for a time looked like a good clue, Luigi Restelli, the much sought double murderer, is still at large to-night. Six hundred persons joined the police in the pursuit to-day, threshing a swamp off Pearl Street near South Braintree, following the statement of John Reardon, a Braintree boy, who told of having been accosted by a man answering the description of Restelli. Three men fell into the toils of the police during the search, but in each instance it was soon proved that the man was not Restelli.

A petition is being circulated by prominent citizens asking that a reward be offered for the murderer's capture and money is also being subscribed for the purchase of dynamite with which to charge the quarry holes in the North Common section. Many persons still believe that the man has drowned himself in one of these quarry holes, and that the use of dynamite will bring the body to the surface.

ROOSEVELT, JR., BACK TO WORK

Resumes His Old Job as an Employe in a Carpet Factory.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., is at work to-day at the salerooms of a carpet and rug company. He is just an ordinary employe and says he wants to be known as plain Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., a citizen.

"I want to become a good citizen of California," he said yesterday, during his first day's work since his marriage, as he looked up for a moment from a pile of new rugs over which he was bending. "I am working here the same as the rest of the men. I report for work at 8:30 in the morning and quit work at 5:30 P. M. The work is not new to me, as I put in two years in the company's factory in the East. I want to be known merely as a San Franciscan, in the carpet business for a living."

Roosevelt resumed his work, and with three or four other young men engaged in piling rugs, checking them, and putting them away.

Young Roosevelt and his wife will remove in a few days to a modest two and a half story house at 1,910 Pacific Avenue.

HER 25,000-MILE AUTO TRIP.

Mrs. Fisher Leaves Chicago on Last Lap After a World Tour.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Mrs. Harriet Clark Fisher, proprietor of a factory at Trenton, N. J., left Chicago to-day on the last lap of a 25,000-mile automobile trip that has taken her through several European and Asiatic countries. She is accompanied by her secretary, Walter Brooks; a maid, and a valet.

Mrs. Fisher left the United States on July 19, 1909, and upon arriving in Europe, motored through France, Germany, Switzerland, and Italy, and then crossed the Mediterranean to Egypt. The automobile carried its four passengers up and down the banks of the Nile for several hundred miles, and also went through India, Ceylon, Japan, and China.

The party landed at San Francisco on June 17. Mrs. Fisher made the trip overland without accident. She expects to go directly from Chicago to Trenton.

WON'T PAY BANK ASSESSMENT

Two Stockholders of Wrecked Cambridge Bank Summoned by Receiver.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 2.—Former Gov. John L. Bates, as receiver for the National City Bank of Cambridge, the institution wrecked by George W. Coleman's manipulations, to-day entered two suits for $2,500 each in the Norfolk Superior Court at Dedham against Linn Boyd Porter, the novelist, and Harry M. Haynes, both of Brookline.

The declarations, similar in each case, set forth that on April 8 an order was issued by the Controller of the Currency at Washington for an assessment of $100 on each of the shares of the bank's capital stock outstanding, that each of the defendants held twenty-five shares of this stock, and that each refused on demand to pay any part of the assessment.

The receiver now seeks to recover the $2,500 on the capital stock held by each of the defendants and interest thereon.

FOREST FIRE AT LAKE GEORGE

Lightning Causes a Serious One on Mountain Opposite the Village.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKE GEORGE, N. Y., Aug. 2.—For the second time this Summer a forest fire of serious proportions has broken out on French Mountain, opposite Lake George village. The blaze is attributed to lightning which struck several trees on the mountain during a storm last Thursday.

Since Saturday a force of men under the direction of E. J. Worden, Supervisor of the town of Caldwell, have combated night and day with the flames, which are subdued at night but are fanned beyond control by the winds during the day. Recent rains have had little effect on the fire.

Supervisor Wood estimates the burned area at one thousand acres. The fire is still spreading.

INDEMNITY FOR LYNCHING.

Licking County, Ohio, Liable to Pay $5,000 for Detective's Death by Mob.

SPRINGFIELD, Ky., Aug. 2—George Bohon of Harrodsburg qualified here today as administrator of Carl Etherington, the detective hanged by a mob at Newark, Ohio, on July 8. He executed a bond of $10,000.

This is the first legal step toward the recovery of the $5,000 indemnity for which counties in Ohio are liable for every person lynched in their confines. The administrator will at once preceed to enforce the collection of the claim against Licking County.

DENIES MAXWELL RESIGNED.

Officer of Cement Company Also Says President Hasn't Sold His Stock.

A report current for several days past in Wall Street that J. Rogers Maxwell had resigned from the Presidency of the Atlas Portland Cement Company, and that he had disposed of his holdings of that company's stock was denied yesterday by Vice President A. de Navarro. He said that not only was the story of Mr. Maxwell's resignation untrue, but that there had not recently been any important shifting in the ownership of the company's stock.

Control of the company, Mr. de Navarro said, had never been in any individual's hands, so it could not be true that Mr. Maxwell had lost control of it.

PROMOTER'S WIFE ACCUSES MRS. BULL

Conspired with Allan Ryan, Says Mrs. Qualey, to Get Possession of Her Husband's Company.

FORECLOSURE SUIT DELAYED

But Complaints of Others Duped in Purchase of Asbestos and Other Stocks Come from Many Places.

From their cells in Jefferson Market prison, John A. Qualey and Harvey Wiley Corbett directed a legal fight in the courts of New Jersey yesterday to save the property of the Stone Age Plaster Company from sale under the hammer of the Sheriff, to whom it had been consigned by a decree of the Court of Chancery.

Allan A. Ryan and Mrs. Mary Nevins Bull, who accused the two men of defrauding her of $35,000, were named as dedendants. Mrs. Elizabeth F. Qualey of New Rochelle, Qualey's wife, was the nominal plaintiff. She charged Ryan and Mrs. Bull with conspiracy to obtain possession of the plant, which is the principal property of the Qualey-Corbett Magnesia Asbestos Company.

Telegrams addressed "Hon. John A. Qualey, Jefferson Market Jail," told the two men of the progress of the fight. Frank M. McDermitt finally wired that he had succeeded in staving off the sale of the plant which had been ordered under foreclosure proceedings brought by Clarence P. Browning, holder of a $41,000 mortgage against the property.

In her bill of complaint filed with Vice Chancellor Edwin F. Walker, Mrs. Qualey says that the claims against the Stone Age Plaster Company amount to $33,000, and that at the time of her husband's arrest in New York last week she was making arrangements to pay off his indebtedness and to clear off all claims against the Newark plant. She said she invested $200,000 of her own money in the Magnesia Asbestos enterprise and also put $60,000 into lands and plant of the Stone Age Plaster Company, which she says is valued "at a conservative estimate" at $300,000.

She also declared that in the last three months $65,000 has been paid out for improvements, including new machinery at the Newark plant. She asked that the sale of the plant be not made at present because the actual land value of the three plants of the Magnesia Asbestos Company is $600,000, against which there is issued $150,000 of preferred stock.

Mrs. Qualey Charges Conspiracy.

Mrs. Qualey charged that a private offer of stock was made to Allan A. Ryan and he was favorably impressed with the proposition. Later, she says, Mr. Ryan formed an agreement with Mrs. Bull "to obtain illegal control over the stock of the Stone Age Plaster Company, and with this in view entered into a conspiracy to obtain control of said property by reason of obtaining the incarceration of John A. Qualey and Harvey W. Corbett in jail. The object of the said charges was to dismantle, disrupt, and break up the business of the Stone Age Plaster Company in order to obtain possession themselves."

The sale was postponed to allow argument on the application. This argument will probably be heard in Trenton tomorrow.

Supreme Court Justice Lehman sustained the contention of John F. McIntyre, counsel for Qualey and Corbett, that Magistrate Krotel did not have sufficient evidence before him when he held them to be examined for extradition to Newport, R. I. He ordered their release on writs of habeas corpus.

As soon as Justice Lehman's order was signed a telephone message carried the news from the County Court House to Jefferson Market Court. Magistrate Krotel immediately reissued his warants of the day before, charging the men with bringing stolen property into the State. The warrants were deposited with the keeper of the Jefferson Market Prison, and were served on the men, a moment after their formal discharge, by Detective Frank Price of Headquarters.

Magistrate Krotel, over the protests of a representative from the District Attorney's office, reduced the bail of the two accused promoters from $20,000 each to $10,000 each when they were arraigned before him on the charge of bringing stolen property into New York State. The men said they would not furnish bail until to-day.

Gov. Hughes at Albany refused to extradite Qualey and Corbett yesterday unless stronger evidence is brought against them.

Complaints Pouring In.

Further accusations against Qualey, it was learned, were coming in from various parts of the country. One letter received by an attorney interested in the prosecution of Qualey was from E. V. Coulston of the Champion Steel Range Company, 2,050 Pearl Street, Cleveland, Ohio.

The letter inclosed a clipping referring to the present case and informed the attorney that Qualey had worked a similar scheme in Philadelphia in 1896 and 1897. The letter said that further information could be supplied by Franklin Baker of Franklin Baker & Co. and Marvin E. Clark in Philadelphia.

The letter also referred to a New York doctor whose name Coulston thought Baker or Clark might supply. This doctor's wife, Coulston said, had been persuaded by Qualey to invest in one of the companies he was promoting, and both the doctor and his wife lost all their money in the venture.

J. A. Desmond, a lawyer of Boston, sent a letter stating that Qualey promoted the Slatine Company of America in Boston about five years ago, and got away with about $6,000. He returned to Boston about two years ago, Desmond said, and in September, 1909, was arrested by a Deputy Sheriff at the Hotel Lenox on a charge growing out of his promotion of the Slatine Company. A woman who was known as his sister, gave cash bail for Qualey, Desmond wrote, and Qualey left Boston quickly for New York, without waiting to answer the charge.

William T. Seeger of 73 City Hall, Boston has papers calling for Qualey's arrest in that city, Desmond wrote. Qualey's last visit to Boston, Desmond said, was for the purpose of promoting the Magnesia Asbestos Company. Desmond referred his correspondent to Attorney Charles R. Darling of 43 Tremont Street, Boston, for further information. Many women were induced by Qualey to invest in his companies, Desmond said.

John J. Feneeno, who formerly lived at Browne's Chop House in Broadway, near Thirty-ninth Street, was mentioned by Desmond as one of those who lost large sums by investing in Qualey's enterprises. Feneeno, it was said last night at the chop house, had returned to Boston several months ago.

Another Qualey Scheme.

D. L. Prendergast of the Bureau of Real Estate, Boston Elevated Railway Company of 101 Milk Street, Boston, wrote a letter to Charles L. Craig, one of Mrs. Bull's attorneys, which was made public yesterday. This letter also referred to John J. Feneeno as one of Qualey's investors. It read:

> Dear Sir: In the interest of justice, I feel that I ought to notify you that some months ago a man named Qualey, claiming to have knowledge of chemistry, ame here and raised money to organize a company for the purpose of making a substitute for soapstone out of the refuse of slate quarries.
>
> The investors claim to have been swindled out of their money, as the promoter "flew by night," and with him disappeared his formula, which is supposed to be the best asset of the company. The Hon. John J. Foneeno, formerly of Boston, but now I believe of New York City, was the principal loser. Yours truly,
>
> D. L. PRENDERGAST.

Just as Qualey and Corbett were being led back to their cells yesterday two women rushed into the prison entrance and Qualey kissed them through the bars of the gate.

Corbett would not answer questions in regard to a letter given out by Attorney Craig, in which Corbett is quoted as advising Mrs. Bull to build a loft building in West Thirty-fourth Street to cost $141,000 on his plans, by contractors of his own choosing, and advising her to sell her Newport property. Qualey said: "Mr. Corbett never wrote such a letter or any letter to Mrs. Bull."

Qualey said he would yet bring Mrs. Philip Van Valkenburgh into the case, but refused to say when or how. Mrs. Van Valkenburgh sailed yesterday for Europe, after denying that she had ever met Qualey or Corbett. Mrs. Van Valkenburgh's attorney is Edward Lauterbach, partner of Charles L. Craig, who is prosecuting the case against Qualey and Corbett on behalf of Mrs. Bull.

EXTRADITION REFUSED.

Gov. Hughes Says Evidence Against Qualey Is Not Sufficient.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 2.—Gov. Hughes of New York has refused to grant the extradition to this State of John Qualey and Harvey Wiley Corbett, who are wanted by the police of Newport on the charge of conspiracy in defrauding Mrs. W. T. Bull, widow of the noted surgeon, out of $35,000. The Governor rules that sufficient facts to justify a warrant have not been presented. He also holds there is no case whatever against Corbett.

REVENUE CUTTER LOST.

The Perry Goes Ashore in Bering Sea—Crew Escape Uninjured.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The Treasury Department to-day learned that the revenue cutter Perry ran ashore in Bering Sea on July 26 and is a total loss. All her officers and men, numbering about fifty, escaped uninjured.

The accident occurred at Tonki Point, a low reef projecting from Paul Island, in the Pribiloff group. The Perry was commanded by Capt. Haake, who is considered an experienced and able officer, familiar with conditions in northern waters.

The wreck occurred in a most dangerous locality. A reef runs around a great part of Paul Island at a distance of a mile and a half to sea, while the currents there are so rapid and vary so greatly in direction at different times of the year that it is impossible adequately to chart the island's coast line. During a large part of the year the island is wrapped in fog, and as yet no fog signals or lighthouses have been established there.

When the Perry ran ashore she filled at once and sank. Capt. Foley, who is ranking officer in the Bering Sea cutter fleet, at once visited the wreck, and after seeing that she was a total loss ordered that she be stripped and left her. No machinery for raising her is available in that latitude. The crew of the Perry were distributed among other vessels, and Capt. Haake for the present will act as aid to Capt. Foley.

The Perry was engaged in patrolling the Bering Sea for seal poachers. She was the first of the American patrol ships to make a capture this year, taking the Japanese poaching ship Takoi Maru on June 26. She ran ashore near the spot where the United States ship Adams grounded several years ago, though that vessel managed to back off and make away.

Capt. Foley reported to the Treasury Department by way of Nome, Alaska.

The Perry is 161 feet long, was built in 1884 at Buffalo, and was originally assigned to duty on the Great Lakes. In 1893 she was transferred to the Pacific Coast.

SEATTLE, Aug. 2.—A telegram from Alaska says that the officers and crew of the revenue cutter Perry were taken off by the revenue cutters Tahoma and Manning. An inquiry into the wreck will be held at Valdez on Sept. 8.

The Tahoma, which had a Japanese seal poaching schooner in tow, was summoned to the rescue by wireless telegraphy.

SHIED BOWL AT MAGISTRATE.

Angry Woman's Aim Was Bad and Police Sergeant Got It on the Head.

Magistrate Murphy, in the Night Court last night, sentenced Mary Nelson to the workhouse for sleeping on a bench in Mulberry Bend Park. In high disapproval of this disposition of her case the woman seized a brass bowl from the bridge and carefully took aim for the countenance of Magistrate Murphy.

Her throw was checked in the nick of time by Sergt. Auer, who caught her wrists in his hands and her weapon on his head.

The woman was carried to the pen loudly giving forth as she went her opinion of the court's magisterial qualities.

FIGHTS OVER SPAIN'S DISPUTE WITH ROME

Participants in Rival Demonstrations Come to Blows at Vigo.

MINISTER BLAMES VATICAN

Senor Prieto Denies That Its Attitude Has Been Conciliatory—Fallieres Entertains Spanish King.

VIGO, Aug. 2.—The police here intervened to-day to disperse rival demonstrations the participants in which came to blows over the dispute between Spain and the Vatican.

The Capucines were marching in procession, acclaiming the Pope, when they were attacked by the anti-Clerical elements of the population.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Aug. 2.—Garcia Prieto, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, in an interview to-day, in which he recited the history of the negotiations between Spain and the Vatican, denied that the Holy See had adopted a conciliatory attitude. He added:

"The Government asked only two things—first, the suppression of the convents and monasteries which were established in Spain illegally; second, that the Pope should authorize the Bishops to suppress or transform the establishments unnecessary to aid the priests in their ministrations.

"The Government offered a year for the transformation which was desired by the secular clergy, whose existence is gravely compromised by the monks."

Señor Prieto declared that Cardinal Merry del Val, the Papal Secretary of State, had adopted dilatory tactics from the first, alleging that the Speech from the Throne contained points against the Catholic religion.

"We protested our good faith and our desire to reach an agreement," said the Minister, "when we enforced the decree of 1902, against which neither the Curia nor the Episcopate had protested. Cardinal Merry del Val demanded that the decree remain a dead letter, although the Vatican has since that date granted numerous authorizations without the sanction of the Spanish Government.

"Finally, the demand of the Vatican for the withdrawal of the bill permitting non-Catholic organizations to display the insignia of public worship was deemed inadmissible. The recall of Marquis de Ojeda, our Ambassador at the Vatican, was in full accordance with diplomatic usage when a power with which another power is in relations refuses to admit the justified pretensions of the latter or adopts an arbitrary course."

Discussing the chronology of the dispute, Señor Prieto said that the Spanish note to the Vatican on May 26 had insisted upon a reply to the general demand of the Spanish Government contained in it, but the Vatican remained silent until June 11. On that date Cardinal Merry del Val notified Spain that the reply of the Vatican had been suspended on account of the declaration of religious policy made in the Speech from the Throne. A note giving reasons for further delay was delivered on June 20. Finally on July 9 Cardinal Merry del Val stated that the Vatican would reply to the Spanish note of May 26 provided the Spanish Government took no steps to enforce its programme.

To this the Spanish Government answered with renewed insistence upon a reply to the note of May 26.

"Now," said the Minister, "Cardinal Merry del Val offers as a reason for declining further negotiations the general attitude of the Government and the introduction of the bill allowing non-Catholic organizations to display the emblems of public worship—this, too, in spite of the fact that when the Marquis de Ojeda explained to Cardinal Merry del Val the purport of the bill and the expressions in the Speech from the Throne referring to it the Cardinal accepted the explanation and, through Marquis de Ojeda, expressed regret for the attitude of the Roman Catholic press."

MADRID, Aug. 2.—The Liberal press officially denies the insinuations of the Vatican that it demanded the withdrawal of the bill prohibiting further religious orders only until the Concordat had been revised.

It also points out that the bill in question did not violate the Concordat, which recognizes only three orders.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—King Alfonso and Queen Victoria, who are stopping here en route to England, were the guests of President Fallières at a luncheon at Rambouillet to-day. Premier Briand and Minister of Foreign Affairs Pichon were present at the luncheon.

The King and Queen will spend the night in Paris, returning to Rambouillet to-morrow to take luncheon with Señor Sáenz Pena, President-elect of Argentina, who is here as the official guest of President Fallières.

TO END CHINESE BLACKMAIL.

Court Decision in Philippines Will Suppress Power of the Tongs.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The recent decision of the Supreme Court of the Philippines sustaining the power of the Governor General to deport objectionable aliens, will put to an end, in the opinion of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, here, to the common practice of the Chinese tongs in the islands to blackmail their wealthy compatriots. Heretofore the officials have been handicapped in getting sufficient testimony from the Chinese to obtain convictions.

Details of the schemes worked by the Chinese secret organizations are little known here. It is said, however, that they omitted nothing to compel a system of tribute from the respectable Chinese merchants and others. In one way and another well-to-do Chinese were terrified into giving up their money to the tongs.

Similar schemes have been worked in San Francisco among the Chinese. The courts could do little, for witnesses were intimidated and the slippery offenders always found ways of evading justice.

Both in San Francisco and in the Philippines the police finally went at the matter roughshod, and, with the cooperation of Chinese Consular officers, seized the criminals.

DECLARATION BILL PASSED.

House of Lords Agrees to the Change Adopted by the Commons.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The Accession Declaration bill, providing for the striking out of the phrases offensive to Roman Catholics in the declaration made by the King after his accession and substituting for them the words "I am a faithful Protestant," was passed by the House of Lords upon its third reading to-day.

No changes were made in the form adopted by the House of Commons.

TEHERAN, Aug. 2.—The campaign of assassination carried on between the Reactionists and the adherents of the new order in Persia claimed two more victims last night.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—Judge Walter V. R. Berry, one of the American members of the International Tribunal of Egypt, resigned his post to-day. Judge Berry, who was appointed from the District of Columbia, will enter a law firm here.

SEOUL, Aug. 2.—The cruisers Charleston and New Orleans, under command of Rear Admiral Hubbard, arrived at Chemul-Po to-day. The Admiral and his staff were entertained at the American Consulate here to-night.

LIMA, Aug. 2.—It is announced that all the members of the Peruvian Cabinet, which resigned on July 25, will retain their portfolios except the Premier, Dr. Prado-Ugartche.

ESTRADA'S PROSPECTS GOOD.

He Has Gone to Interior with View to Campaign Against Managua.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Aug. 2.—According to advices received here from Nicaragua, the abandonment of Acoyapa by Gen. Vasquez, following immediately upon the defeat of Gen. Lara near Acoyapa on July 29, places the forces of Gen. Estrada in a better position than they have been for months.

Vasquez has probably retired to San José, on the eastern shore of Lake Nicaragua. Acoyapa is not far from Lake Nicaragua and all the territory to the north of the town is in the possession of the revolutionary forces, making it necessary for the Madriz commander to retreat south.

Gen. Mena, commander of the revolutionary army before Acoyapa, took possession of the town immediately on the Madriz commander's retreat, the dispatches say. He will probably be joined by Gen. Moncado, who scored the decisive victory over Gen. Lara last Friday. The combined forces will probably follow Vasquez to the lake shore, and may force him to evacuate San José and retire across Lake Nicaragua.

If Vasquez is driven across the lake it will leave the entire country east of Lake Nicaragua and Managua in the hands of the Provisional Government with the exception of a few restricted areas still held by small forces.

A campaign against the capital, Managua, with Gen. Estrada in personal command, would probably follow at once. It is known that Estrada has gone to the interior with this design.

A PLOT IN VENEZUELA.

Rumors of Plan to Kill the President and the Governor of Caracas.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Aug. 2.—Rumors are in circulation in Venezuela that the Government discovered a plot to kill Vicente Gomez, the President of the republic, and the Governor of Caracas on July 26. Arrests and the flight from Venezuela of prominent Venezuelans give color to the report.

President Gomez, who was on a tour to Valencia, returned suddenly to Caracas and imprisoned Gen. Zailo Vidal, "El Caribe," President of the State of Bermudez, one of the old enemies of ex-President Castro, and for a long time an exile in New York.

The Government, according to the reports from Venezuela, is trying to hush up the affair.

Gen. Tello Mendoza, who was Minister of Finance in President Castro's Cabinet and afterward Governor of Caracas, has continued his flight to New York, sailing from here on July 31 on board the steamship Caracas. He made his escape from Venezuela in a sailing sloop. No explanation of his flight was given.

Another reluctant arrival from Venezuela, is Benjamin Ruiz, the well-known Colombian General who besieged Porto Cabello in 1900. Gen. Ruiz was expelled from Venezuela, arriving at Willemstad on July 31.

GO TO FIGHT FOR BONILLA.

Men Who Have Been in Estrada's Army Cross the Honduran Border.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Aug. 2.—Friends of Gen. Manuel Bonilla who have been fighting under the standard of Gen. Estrada in Nicaragua are crossing the line into Honduras to join Bonilla in the revolution just beginning, according to advices received here.

Ex-President Bonilla and Gen. Estrada are close personal and political friends, and their causes are so similar that the followers of one may almost be said to be followers of the other. Bonilla was deposed from the presidency of Honduras by a revolution stirred up by Zelaya, and Estrada has on several occasions been aided by the Honduras ex-President.

Authentic information is at hand that the friends of Bonilla are going ahead with preparations for a revolution.

TO REVIVE OLD CAR LINE.

Second Ave. Receiver to Electrify Lines in North and Pearl Streets.

Receiver Linch of the Second Avenue Railroad Company received from the Public Service Commission yesterday, through a decision by Commissioner Maltbie, permission to electrify the railroad lines from Chatham Square to Broadway, running two tracks through Pearl and Worth Streets to Lafayette Street, one block east of Broadway, and one track through to Broadway itself. The application has been pending before the commission for several months.

This change was contemplated when the old Second Avenue Railroad Company in 1898 started to change its motive power from horses to electricity, prior to its absorption by the Metropolitan. But when the Metropolitan took hold, having acquired the Third Avenue Railroad in 1900, it ran the Second Avenue electric cars down Park Row on the Third Avenue Railroad's tracks, and left the Pearl and Worth Street line to be operated by horse cars. Some time afterward active operation of this connection even by horse cars was abandoned.

When the Second Avenue Road was thrown into the hands of a receiver separate from the rest of the Metropolitan system, and Mr. Linch was appointed, it was discovered that the company only had a franchise to run its cars as far down Park Row as Pearl Street, and as satisfactory arrangements could not be made with either the Third Avenue or the Metropolitan receivers for connections with City Hall, Mr. Linch abandoned operation below Chatham Square and set about to accomplish the electrification of the Worth Street extension. He believes that the extension to Broadway, even without transfers from the Broadway and Fourth Avenue cars, will greatly enhance the earning capacity of the Second Avenue Road.

The approval of the commission to the application to electrify is granted with the proviso that Receiver Linch shall abandon some of the unused tracks in the lower part of Manhattan. These tracks are not likely to come into operation again, and the commission considers them a menace to traffic.

WILL APPEAL TO GAYNOR.

Victim of Swindle Not Satisfied with What Courts Are Doing.

Michael Goroga of 2,053 First Avenue, Manhattan, who declared he was defrauded of $460 by a bogus deed given him by James R. McNally, the missing lawyer whose clothing was found about a week ago in a bathhouse in Chicago, said yesterday that he was not satisfied with the steps that were being taken to find McNally and that he would lay his case not only before the Police Magistrate in Brooklyn but Mayor Gaynor.

Besides the money claim of Goroga, it is said that McNally obtained money from other clients before he disappeared, and that he also collected $796.60 from a trust company on a bogus order.

Goroga said when he applied for a warrant for McNally in Long Island City he was compelled to wait a day. A warrant was issued on July 29.

Goroga wants the warrant turned over to the Detective Bureau and an alarm sent out for the man. Following his disappearance, McNally wrote that he intended committing suicide, but the Chicago police after dragging the lake said they believed he had left his clothing in the bathhouse and rowed away. He lived with his wife at 9 Euclid Avenue, Forest Hills. Mrs. McNally said yesterday she was going West to try and learn the fate of her husband.

Blind Man Assists U. S. Attorney.

United States Attorney Henry A. Wise has appointed Raymond G. Brown, a blind man, a member of his staff of assistants. Mr. Brown is a graduate of the Harvard Law School and is reputed to be a young lawyer of much ability. He will be employed in the preparation of cases. Mr. Brown prepares his papers on a typewriter, having citations from the authorities read to him.

WU TING-FANG AGAIN IN HIGH POSITION

Ex-Minister at Washington Appointed Counselor to the Foreign Office at Peking.

TSAI-TAO IS HURRIED HOME

But Another Imperial Prince Is Coming on a Visit to Us—The Proposed Boycott of American Goods.

PEKING, Aug. 2.—Wu Ting-fang, ex-Minister to the United States, who upon his retirement from the diplomatic service and return to China was thought to have been relegated permanently to private life by the new forces at Peking, has now, contrary to expectation, re-entered office.

He was to-day appointed Counselor to the Foreign Office, which recognizes the need of a man of strength and foreign experience since the dismissal by the Regent of Yuan Shi-Kai.

Peking was also surprised this morning by the arrival, unheralded, of Prince Tsai-Tao, uncle of the young Emperor, whose long and expensive recent tour through the United States and Europe caused considerable criticism of the dynasty. Prince Tsai-Tao wished to extend his stay in Europe, but was ordered to return quietly to Peking, the measure being evidently intended to prevent any anti-dynastic incident, against which the Government has of late taken unusual precautions.

In spite, however, of the criticisms of extravagant peregrinations, Prince Tsai-Hsun, a brother of the Regent, and several less exalted members of the imperial family will sail for the United States on Aug. 24, nominally to study naval methods in America, though any increase in the Chinese fleet is not expected for many years.

A contingent of sixty students, the expenses of whose education is coming out of the indemnity fund returned to China by the United States, is also about to sail for the United States, as well as delegates to the Prison Reform Congress and the Conference of Army Surgeons.

HONGKONG, Aug. 2.—The Chinese Self-Government Society of Canton to-day received a letter from Chinese inhabitants of San Francisco inclosing $1,000 for the preliminary expenses of the propaganda now carried on by the society. In the letter the establishment of a boycott against American goods, as a reprisal for the alleged grievances of the Chinese in their treatment in the detention sheds on Angel Island, San Francisco, is urged.

The Canton society takes a sympathetic attitude and has called a meeting to discuss the matter.

SERGT. OLLSEN DISMISSED.

Found Guilty of Extorting Money from Street Peddlers.

Sergt. John Ollsen of Traffic Squad B has been dismissed from the Police Department. Ollsen was tried a week ago before Third Deputy Commissioner Walsh on charges growing out of complaints made by Greek street peddlers that they were compelled to pay for the privilege of doing business in the vicinity of Union Square. Ollsen was trapped recently by Lieut. Daniel Costigan, who had given a peddler three marked five-dollar bills to put in the street, where Ollsen picked them up.

Commissioner Baker also announced yesterday that he has decided that Lieut. Timothy J. McAuliffe of the Alexander Avenue Station is entitled to pay from April 25 to May 27 last, during which period he was under suspension, pending trial on charges growing out of his arresting Coroner Schwannecke of the Bronx.

It was also announced at Headquarters that Capt. James McGlynn of the lower Fulton Street Station in Brooklyn had been retired at half pay.

$12,500 TO FISKE RECEIVER

And a Like Sum to His Counsel—Special Master's Report Confirmed.

Judge Hough, in the United States Circuit Court, yesterday confirmed the report of Seaman Miller, the special master appointed in the bankruptcy proceedings of J. M. Fiske & Co. The report is chiefly encouraging to the various individuals who have been running the Fiske & Co. bankruptcy proceedings.

It gives to Irving L. Ernst, the receiver, $12,500 for his services since last January and a like amount to Hays, Hirschfield & Wolf, the receiver's counsel. The Standard Auditing Company, which went over the books, gets $5,000; three appraisers, $100 each; Special Master Miller, $50, and a stenographer $15.

Receiver Ernst, after disbursing these funds, is directed to turn over the remaining funds to the trustee in bankruptcy. By and by there will be another report providing for the compensation for the trustee in bankruptcy, his attorney, and various others connected with that stage of the proceedings.

WIRELESS BOOKS TURN UP.

Messenger Boy Carries Them Into Court, Purging Directors of Contempt.

The arrival of an American District Telegraph messenger boy with the missing stock ledgers of the United Wireless Telegraph Company in the room of the Federal Grand Jury at 11:05 yesterday morning relieved the tension that has characterized the Government's investigation of that company for the last week or so. It also eased the situation a bit, for Christopher C. Wilson, President; Samuel S. Bogart, Vice President; W. A. Diboll, Treasurer; Cloyd Marshall, Secretary, Francis X. Butler, counsel, and L. C. Wallace, Director of the United Wireless, by purging them of the contempt in which Judge Hand had declared them last week when the non-appearance of these eighteen stock ledgers had come judicially before him.

Of course nobody knew yesterday where the books had been or how they came back, save that the messenger boy brought them. Some one connected with the company said that they were found in the vicinity of Forty-second Street and Broadway, but even that location was too indefinite to enable a serious guess at how they really got away, who kept them, and who sent them back. The Government knew they were in the offices of the company prior to July 1. On July 23 a subpoena was issued for these particular stock transfer ledgers, covering that period of the company's existence which is under investigation, and it came back unsatisfied.

In fact, Attorney Butler happened to remember on the morning that Marshal Henkel was serving the subpoena that he had intended to resign as a Director for some time, and so he dictated his resignation and left it on the Secretary's desk just an hour or so before the subpoena arrived at the office. Assistant United States Attorney Stephenson, who is conducting the Grand Jury investigation, got suspicious over this and several other curious coincidences, and brought all the United Wireless Directors in before Judge Hand.

After listening to various protestations of ignorance and innocence Judge Hand also got suspicious, and declared the entire company in contempt unless the books should be produced by 11 o'clock yesterday. Judge Hand remarked that the Directors and officers all stood around in a circle of denials and that he believed that if the contempt order was issued they would shortly exert pressure enough on each other to obtain the production of the books by somebody. The alternative, he suggested, was the issuance of body writs for the respondents, a proceeding which would have landed them in Ludlow Street Jail. It could not be learned yesterday whether the sudden muggy turn that the weather took as the morning wore on had anything to do with the production of the books.

TO CONTEST SCULPTOR'S WILL

J. Q. A. Ward Left Bulk of Estate to Widow, Once His Housekeeper.

When the will of the late John Q. A. Ward, dean of American sculptors, is offered for probate on Aug. 9 it will be contested by Mr. Ward's sister, Miss Eleanor Ward, and probably by Mr. Ward's nephew and four of his nieces. Mr. Ward left his estate to his widow, allowing his sister an annuity, but to the others was left nothing.

Mrs. R. M. Ostrander Ward, the widow, was the third wife of the sculptor. She had been his housekeeper for many years, and had watched him live with and bury two wives. He was 76 years old when the faithful housekeeper told him she was going to leave his home to live in the West with a married brother, and Mr. Ward objected strongly. The outcome of it was a proposal of marriage, which was accepted. A family disagreement resulted.

John Quincy Adams Ward modeled the famous statue of Washington on the Sub-Treasury Building in Wall Street, and is also famous, among other works, for "The Indian Hunter," "Seventh Regiment Citizen Soldier," "Shakespeare," and "The Pilgrim," all of which are in Central Park. He was born in Urbana, Ohio, on June 29, 1830, where most of his relatives now live.

The contested estate is said to be a large one.

CARDINAL NO SUFFRAGIST.

In Brooklyn, Vacation-Bound, Expresses Views on "Votes for Women."

Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore, on his way to Southampton, L. I., for a Summer vacation, visited his old friend, Mgr. James S. Duffy, rector of St. Agnes's Roman Catholic Church, Hoyt and Sackett Streets, Brooklyn, yesterday for a few hours. He declined to talk about the present relations between Spain and the Vatican, saying:

"I am not sufficiently familiar with the situation, and I prefer not to discuss it."

The Cardinal reiterated his well-known views on the divorce question, declaring it was dreadful to think of the many homes broken up and the misery resulting from divorces.

He was not in favor of allowing women to vote.

"There are so many things that should engage their attention," he said. "The home, which is their kingdom, is their proper sphere."

The Cardinal left Brooklyn for Southampton at noon. After his vacation on Long Island he will return to Baltimore in time to prepare for a trip to Montreal, Canada, to attend the Eucharistic Congress, which is to be held there in September.

A Satisfying Food.

Appetite is Nature's signal for fuel and repairs.

Healthy appetite calls for the simple food elements that supply the natural requirements.

Healthy appetite is satisfied when the proper kind and amount of food is taken into the body at stated intervals. But the wiles of the modern chef and caterer have created in most of us a false and often unnatural appetite which leads into all the different degrees of indigestion, dyspepsia, etc.—food insanity.

Grape-Nuts

is a satisfying food—it is composed of the natural elements to satisfy the natural appetite and restore order in the digestive machinery which may have been thrown out of gear by improper though often "fashionable" foods.

The crisp, firm, "nutty" granules of Grape-Nuts make honest mastication necessary. Its wholesome flavour makes it appetizing, and the albumens, carbohydrates and Potassium Phosphate from the whole wheat and barley, makes it a satisfying food—both to the sense of taste and to the body needs.

Ten days' trial will convince any one that

FERRYBOAT DISABLED.

The Secaucus's Machinery Breaks Down on Trip from Hoboken.

Soon after leaving her slip in Hoboken on the way to the foot of West Twenty-third Street, New York, the Lackawanna ferryboat Secaucus got in trouble yesterday afternoon. Her machinery broke down and she drifted down the river. Blasts for help were sounded and tugs went to her assistance. Hawsers were thrown out from the tugs and made fast. One of them snapped and caused a scampering on the part of members of the crew of one of the tugs. After the passengers of the ferryboat had received a scare the Secaucus was finally got back into her slip in Hoboken.

There her engineers repaired the machinery, and the vessel soon went on her regular schedule.

COUNT MANY 'KILLED' IN SQUADRON FIGHT

Twelfth Regiment Is Also Engaged in a Sham Battle at Pine Camp.

SAUSAGE VENDORS ROUTED

Take to Their Heels When Firing Begins—Temporary Shortage of Bread and Water in Camp.

Special to The New York Times.

PINE CAMP, N. Y., Aug. 2.—There was a terrific little battle up here in the wilderness this afternoon, in which at least a score of well-known New Yorkers were ruled out by the umpires as either dead or wounded. To-night those whose names figure in the obituary column are scurrying from umpire tent to umpire tent trying to find out whether they are "alive" or not.

The battle was fought between two small armies, both made up of Squadron A troopers, one army being commanded by Capt. Townsend and the other by Capt. Wright. The skirmish came off near a little village called Sterlingville, reported to be one of the greatest huckleberry markets on the continent, and desipte the fact that less than 250 men were engaged it proved to be the hottest encounter of the present war.

The opposing forces met in a valley-like formation not far from Sterlingville ice house, and the battle began the moment Scout Elihu Root, Jr., wigwagged back to his commanding officers that the enemy was in sight. Such a popping of rifles had not been heard in Sterlingville since the Indian wars more than 100 years ago. For an hour these New Yorkers fought, bled, and died, so to speak.

No troops ever fought more fiercely in a time of serene peace than did they, and they were still going full tilt when the umpires signaled that the "reds," under Capt. Townsend, were the victors, and that the slaughter on both sides had been something awful. It was a full hour before anybody heard even a rumor as to who was dead and who was still alive, and even to-night the official list of casualties remains a mystery. According to rumors, however, these were ruled out as either dead or badly wounded: Elihu Root, Jr., Rutherford Stuyvesant Pierrepont, Karl H. Behr, the tennis crack; Whitney Kernochan, P. T. Stillman, Philip Leboutillier, John Sloane, Dudley P. Peabody, Alvin W. Perry, Seth E. Thomas, Alanson G. Fox, John Henry Alexander, Graham Youngs, Goelet Gallatin, the squadron farrier; Theron R. Strong, J. C. and W. P. Fargo, Cortlandt Nicoll, J. Otis Post, and George Washington.

Every one of the foregoing, most of whom are privates and none of whom is a commissioned officer, expressed the greatest surprise when informed of the terrible fate that had overtaken them. Peabody, Root, Stillman, Gallatin, Kernochan, and Washington, all of whom are rumored ruled out as among the dead, were playing ball two hours after hostilities ended. Most of the wounded went horseback riding after their 6 o'clock supper.

About the time the battle of Sterlingville came to an end that of the Big Bend, in which the Twelfth New York were the principal actors, occurred. This battle brought into action nearly 600 men, and, though it was the first skirmish in which they had ever figured on Pine Plains, both armies did terrible execution.

Major Reginald Foster commanded the attacking force, whose mission it was to capture the bridge at Big Bend. He captured the bridge all right, but it is being whispered about that he probably lost his life while leading his men on. Major Foster indignantly denied to-night that he was dead. He added that he was not even wounded.

The battle was fought within 100 yards of the Big Bend Coney Island, and maybe it didn't scare the liquor shack keepers and the proprietors of the allied amusement resorts. Trade had been dull all day, and the proprietors, bartenders, and the barkers were taking a siesta when the boys of the Twelfth came out of the woods and opened fire.

The man who runs the minstrel show took to his heels, and is reported running yet, while the frankfurter venders were so scared that they ran the wrong way, and every blessed one of them was captured. A woman who runs a quick-lunch wagon shut the wagon up, and is reported to have run the two miles to Felt's Mills, where she took a train for Watertown.

These were the only two battles of the day. The Sixty-ninth and Seventy-first Regiments, the latter of which arrived from New York this morning, were out drilling, but neither did any fighting. To-morrow they will show what they can do in that line. Nor did the regulars do any fighting. They looked on and busied themselves figuring out the list of casualties.

To come down to serious matters, it can be said that no arm of the service represented here is doing a more interesting work than the engineers, to be an officer in which arm a man must be an honor graduate of West Point. Everywhere evidence of the thoroughness with which the men who are digging the Panama Canal do things is apparent. In record time they have built up a water plant that would be a credit to any community. They have created roads where the obstacles appeared insuperable, and they expect to begin work soon with an automobile searchlight apparatus that is said to be the most wonderful thing of the kind ever invented. The apparatus is a part of the machine and the power that runs the machine also runs the light. The shaft of light that is thrown will penetrate the darkness for a distance of three miles and the machine can traverse almost impassable roads. The engineers are also ready to demonstrate for the first time the advantages of a mule-drawn pile driver, with which they will build a permanent bridge over which supply trains can pass.

The Signal Corps men are also doing fine work, and to-day they rigged up a complete wireless apparatus in less than five hours, connecting their own camp on the outer edge of the reservation, with the Hogback headquarters, several miles away. In this work the New York Signal Corps detachment ably assisted the regulars. Capt. Fries, who commands the regular engineers, also had a lot of nice things to say of the Twenty-second Engineers from Manhattan for their excellent work.

In line with the signal corps work it was rumored to-day that an aeroplane is to be brought to Pine Camp in a few days. This, however, is not verified at headquarters. Another rumor is that Col. Roosevelt may come up and look the soldiers over. Gen. Grant said to-day that he would be delighted to have the Rough Rider up here, but was afraid he would not be able to come. If he does, though, Gen. Grant says he will be joyously welcomed by every soldier here.

Two or three small fights between the soldiers have been reported, in each instance the unpleasantness being due to the effects of the Pine Camp special brand of rye.

There was a water famine in the camp from about 7 o'clock Monday evening until 11 o'clock this morning. During that time all of the men went thirsty except those who got supplies of something stronger. The water plant went wrong, and it took all night to repair it. The Sixty-ninth also did without bread Monday night. The Quartermaster issues flour which the organizations are supposed to deliver to the army bakery to be made into loaf bread. The Sixty-ninth did not know the bakery was here until this morning. The Twelfth was also ignorant concerning the baking establishment, but a wealthy officer in their regiment came to the aid of the men by buying a wagon load of bread from a private baking concern.

Knickerbocker Limited Discontinued.

It is announced by the passenger department of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad that the Sunday service of the Knickerbocker Limited between New York and Boston has been discontinued for the present. Now that the Summer resort is at its height travel between these points on Sunday is very light, and there is not sufficient business to warrant the operation of this train.

RECOUNT DISASTERS ABROAD

Dr. Hawksworth Was on the Pericles When a Fanatic Shot Miss Moore.

Two Americans who met with disaster abroad returned to New York yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse from Bremen.

Wearing a bandage to cover the marks of the wound she received, Miss Agnes Parker Moore of Terre Haute, Ind., who was shot by a Mohammedan fanatic in the Mosque of Omar, Jerusalem, got here on her way home. She is accompanied by Miss Anna Sankey, a tourist on the same excursion, who remained over to nurse her companion in the German Hospital in Jerusalem.

The other unfortunate passenger was Dr. F. G. Hawksworth of Philadelphia, who lost all his belongings and barely escaped with his life when the British steamship Pericles sank off Cape Lewin, South Australia, on March 31. Both said they were glad to be home again, though the doctor's joy was tempered by the fact that the customs officials wanted to collect duty on the outfit he was forced by necessity to purchase in England.

Miss Moore is the adopted daughter of the late Thaddeus Moore of Terre Haute. She is wealthy. Miss Moore, who had lost the sight of her left eye, told of the shooting. One other American woman was injured, Miss Nathalie Maurice of Mamaroneck, N. Y.

"I was one of a party of tourists who sailed from here on Feb. 5 on the steamship Grosser Kurfurst," said Miss Moore. "We visited many places of interest and came at last to Jerusalem. On March 9 we started out to visit the Mosque of Omar. We were divided up into parties of eight to see the city and each party was under the care of a guide. When the mosque was reached we paid our fees in the usual way, and upon arrival at the entrance left our slippers outside and lighted our tapers.

"In the centre of the central inclosure is a great stone which is said to be over the place where Abraham signified his willingness to sacrifice his own son. Under this stone is a crypt. We started to go down the stone stairs leading to the crypt when an Afghan fanatic, evidently angered at being disturbed at his devotions, got up and began firing at us with a revolver.

"Imagine our situation! We were going down a narrow stone stairway. It was dark, and we could not see beyond the flickering circle of light from our tapers. From the darkness below the man had us for a fair mark. We could not move, so unexpected and sudden was the madman's act. Five shots he fired. The first struck Miss Maurice, the second went through my arm, the third and fourth missed, and the fifth struck me in the left side of the face as I clung to the side of the stairway.

"There was much excitement before the man was seized. I was in the hospital in Jerusalem five weeks. The Patriarch of Jerusalem and other dignitaries called upon me. I have been assured that the man who did the shooting will be punished. I am mighty glad to be home."

Dr. Hawksworth has been away two years traveling with George R. Coleman, also of Philadelphia. The Pericles, which went on a rock off Cape Lewin, sank soon after she struck, but not before her crew and 543 passengers were saved.

"I was shaving at the time," said Dr. Hawksworth. "There was no great shock, and I went on deck at once. There was much excitement, and I found the passengers gathering on the deck. The vessel was bound from Sydney to Cape Town and was two weeks from Sydney when she struck. We ran through a heavy fog for two days, and when the fog lifted we noticed that we were steaming well inshore. The Captain believed that the channel was a clear one, and the rock upon which we struck is an uncharted one.

"It was impossible to save our belongings. It was a case for the quick lowering of boats, for within a short time after we reached shore the vessel sank.

"The transfer to shore was made in fourteen boats. We struck nine miles off shore, and we had to row the nine miles and land in a heavy surf. We struck at 3:30 P. M., and it was 9 o'clock before all were landed."

PECK TO GET PARTICULARS.

Court Orders Woman Who Is Suing Him to Furnish Definite Grounds.

Prof. Harry Thurston Peck repaired to the seclusion of the Century Club yesterday afternoon at the close of the hearing before Supreme Court Justice Bischoff on the motion to compel Miss Esther Quinn of Cambridge, Mass., to furnish all the dates on which she says he promised to marry her and the number of times such promises were made.

Miss Quinn, who was formerly Prof. Peck's secretary, is now suing him for $50,000 for breach of promise.

Daniel O'Reilly said Miss Quinn was out of the city, but, if granted time, she would furnish particulars. Judge Bischoff ordered the information presented within fifteen days.

At the club Prof. Peck was troubled with the suspicion that perhaps he had been too severe against the Columbia University authorities.

"I have said some pretty hard things, I admit," he explained, "but I would like to have one point made clear. Too much has been made of the fact that I refused to resign when requested in an arbitrary manner and before my status could be properly judged.

"The action of the Trustees of June 24 in suspending me was eminently proper. At present, when so much is said about the life and character of public men every reasonable opportunity should be given to a man so accused to square himself. I am suspended and I accept it. It was a perfectly proper action. Had it been taken in the first place I never would have said anything about it. If after a fair trial a man is deemed unfit to occupy a position it is time to ask for his resignation. Sometimes even a college President may act hastily and arbitrarily, where a Board of Trustees may be relied upon to act with moderation and regard for the rights of all. In suspending me the Trustees have shown this spirit, and until my case is decided no question of resignation properly can come up."

NEWS GATHERING IN PICTURES

Work of Making a Daily Paper Vividly Illustrated on Moving Films.

Patrons of moving picture shows in a few weeks will be able to see a realistic representation of life in a newspaper office. At the Edison Studio, 2,826 Decatur Avenue, Bedford Park, the Edison Manufacturing Company has just completed a film telling the story of a great 'scoop.' The scenario, as far as it shows the workings of a newspaper office, is the work of Stephen Chalmers.

The first scene shows the city editor's room. He calls a reporter, but he has dined too freely and is unfit for work. The editor discharges him and he goes home vowing never again to drink. The next day he overhears two men talking of the financial condition of a bank. One drops a paper and the reporter picks it up. He tracks them to Wall Street.

The next scene shows the Directors of the institution in consultation. The reporter gains admission by bringing back the paper and by a trick on the telephone he hears the Bank Examiner declare that the bank must close its doors. The reporter notifies the office, the presses are stopped until he appears and dictates his story to a typewriter.

When the paper is out the reporter is reinstated and his friends invite him to go out and celebrate, but he refuses. He hastens home to his wife and the film closes with him locked in her arms.

Those who saw the film at a private view yesterday expressed considerable skepticism as to the methods and morals of the great scoop, but they were loud in praise of the realism of the scenes in the newspaper office.

Austin Fletcher Dies of Hurts.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., Aug. 2.—Austin Fletcher, the fifteen-year-old son of Dr. T. A. Fletcher of New York, died to-day at the hospital, where he has been since he was injured by an automobile driven by Henry C. Walters several weeks ago. Walters is now charged with manslaughter. He will have a hearing Monday.

FINDS A SPECIFIC FOR BLOOD DISEASES

German Physician Discovers Means of Conquering Protozoa as Serums Overcome Bacteria.

ALREADY PROVED EFFECTIVE

Physicians Believe New Preparation Will Cure the Sleeping Sickness and Other Disorders as Well.

A specific has been discovered by Dr. Paul Ehrlich, Director of the Institute for Experimental Therapeutics of Frankfort, Germany, for blood diseases which have ravaked the Western world for the last 400 years. In speaking of the discovery yesterday, Dr. Samuel J. Meltzer of the Rockefeller Medical Institute declared it to be epoch-making, in that it opens up a wide field of possibilities in medicine, as it proves that at last a means has been discovered of overcoming the protozoa, or minute animals, which cause many diseases, as already the way has been shown to neutralize the bacteria or vegetable germs which cause other complaints.

"There is only one other specific known to medical science," said Dr. Meltzer, "quinine for malaria, and that was hit upon by accident. This has been invented by a series of experiments, which have only been made possible in the last five years through a series of other discoveries, rendering animal experimentation feasible, the story of which will be considered one of the most dramatic in medical history.

"Dr. Ehrlich attacks disease by injection in the muscles of the patient of an organo-chemical preparation, the full name of which is dioxydiamidoarsenobenzol, but which he calls for short No. 606, as it is the six hundred and sixth which he has experimented with. He has as yet only prepared a little of it for distribution among the leading physicians of Germany. At a meeting of the Berlin Medical Society on June 26 the most marvelous results were reported from its use.

"Doctor after doctor reported absolute cures. In no case was more than a single dose administered, and it was declared on the highest authority that the protozoa characteristic of the disease was killed. One physician said that he could detect an improvement within three hours, and cure resulted on an average within fourteen days."

Dr. Meltzer went on to explain that the trouble has been in the past to discover some substance which would fight the dangerous protozoa without affecting the patient's health.

Dr. Ehrlich about seven years ago began the study of the sleeping sickness, the ravages of which have depopulated large sections of East Africa, and which is caused by animal organisms known as trypanosomes. He at length hit upon his preparation No. 606, and was so successful with it that he sent some of it to Dr. Iverson of St. Petersburg to try on the spirilla, the protozoa causing relapsing fever, which were discovered by Obermeyer in 1873. Here again marked progress was made in fighting that disease.

Meanwhile about five years ago Dr. Schaudin of Berlin discovered that blood diseases were also caused by protozoa. They have been named spirocheta pallida and are of a corkscrew shape. They wriggle along with incredible rapidity through the patient's frame.

A little later a marked improvement was made in the microscope. The dark field microscope was invented, which rendered it possible to examine these spirocheta pallida while they were still alive and active, and at once a new weapon was placed in the hands of science.

A year or two ago Metschnikoff and Roux, the investigators of the Pasteur Institute in Paris, learned how to inoculate mice, rats, and monkeys, and immediately the path of the investigator was made easy. Then Dr. Wassermann invented his method of reaction, by which he proved that long after a patient was supposed to be cured and every outward sign of disease had passed away, the protozoa still remained in the body of the patient. He proved that many diseases of the heart, kidneys, and brain followed, and that the ravages were far more widely spread than was commonly believed.

It was this series of advances in the last five years in medical science which enabled Prof. Ehrlich to go ahead, and he seems now, according to the Berlin authorities, to have been successful. He infected hundreds of animals until he could be certain that he devised a compound that might be safely used on human beings, and by the use of the Wassermann test he was able to be sure that he had effectually cured them again.

The dose used is five grains of the compound. It is possible, Dr. Meltzer thinks, that it may be employed in fighting other complaints caused by protozoa, which have so far proved obdurate to medical skill.

A little of preparation No. 606 was received at the Rockefeller Institute and it was given to Capt. Nichols of the Army Medical Department, who used it with success on a soldier in the Philippines.

Last year the Institute of Experimental Therapeutics, over which Prof. Ehrlich is director, received from the Rockefeller Institute a contribution of $10,000.

RAILROADS EXPLAIN BUREAU.

Not to Engage in Campaign of Publicity, Statement Says.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—The railroad Presidents who are interested in the establishment of a statistical bureau in Washington, with Logan G. McPherson at its head, say the purpose of the bureau has been misunderstood, and O. L. Dickeson of the Burlington Road has issued the following authorized statement:

> The establishment of this bureau was decided upon for the purpose of securing and compiling statistical data with reference to the various branches of the railroad service so that the railroads themselves may have an avenue of authentic, unbiased information concerning the problems confronting them. In other words, the important officer of the railroad may know of the workings of his own organization but he also may be unfamiliar with the facts from time to time relating to the general railroad situation, and with the idea of furnishing freely data as between railroad men the bureau was established.
>
> After its establishment was decided upon, it occurred to the railroad men that if they were not able themselves, under the present conditions, to know all the facts concerning other railroad organizations it was difficult to correctly inform the public at large concerning the whole situation; therefore it was dtermined whenever the public or newspapers sought information pertaining to any particular question that it should be freely furnished, but it is not intended that the bureau is to engage in a campaign of publicity.

NEW DOORS FOR CAPITOL.

America Shown in Chariot Drawn by Lions Led by Child.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The new bronze doors for the western entrance of the Capitol designed by Louis Amateis, a naturalized Italian sculptor, have arrived and will soon replace the plain wooden doors that have been used for many years. They will complete the series and give to the Capitol four entrances, each closed with heavy bronze doors. There are two of the doors, each about 8 feet wide and 13 feet high. Over them is a bronze transom, and the whole is surrounded by an ornamented frame.

In the elaborate transom the sculptor has summed up the idea of the "Apotheosis of America." The transom panel represents America seated in a chariot drawn by lions, typical of strength, led by a child, signifying the superiority of the intellectual over brute force. At the sides of the chariot are figures representing education, architecture, literature, painting, music, sculpture, mining, commerce, and industry. At one side of the transom panel stands Thomas Jefferson, and at the other Benjamin Franklin.

The medallions at the four corners of this panel represent Peabody, founder of educational institutions; Emerson, philosopher and thinker; Horace Mann, educator, and Hopkins, merchant and philanthropist.

In the eight panels, four on each side of the doors proper, are scenes depicting Jurisprudence, Science, Art, Mining, Agriculture, Iron and Electricity, Naval Architecture and Commerce. On the sides of each panel are statuettes, and at the corners of the panels are medallions of famous Americans.

MUST TAKE PHILIPPINE POST.

Lieut. Col. Prince's Request to be Examined for Retirement Refused.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—In connection with the recent upheaval in the Headquarters Staff of the Marine Corps, Acting Secretary Winthrop of the Navy Department to-day refused to grant the request of Lieut. Col. Thomas C. Prince for the appointment of a board to examine him for retirement. Instead, Lieut. Col. Prince will leave Washington to-morrow for a tour of duty in the Philippines, an assignment that he claimed would prove detrimental to his health. It is believed President Taft will approve the action of the department.

Lieut. Col. Prince was an Assistant Quartermaster at headquarters. He was recently reprimanded, with others, as the result of findings of a court of inquiry that insubordination existed at Marine Headquarters.

Col. Frank L. Denny, Quartermaster at headquarters until the change, has until next Monday to leave for his new post of duty at San Francisco. After arrival there he will be examined to determine his fitness to take the horseback tests required of marine officers.

It was said to-day at the department that Gen. Elliott, Commandant of the corps, now on leave of absence, would return to Washington to resume his duties on Sept. 4. He retires on Nov. 30. His successor has not been chosen. The number of officers detailed to headquarters will probably be reduced.

TO BE DISMISSED FROM ARMY.

Taft Approves Sentence of Court-Martial on Capt. Peck of 24th Infantry.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—President Taft has approved the court-martial finding sentencing to dismissal Capt. Robert H. Peck of the Twenty-fourth Infantry, recently tried in the Department of the East and found guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, disrespect toward his commanding officer, and behavior to the prejudice of good order and military discipline. Capt. Peck's dismissal will take effect on Thursday. He was graduated from West Point in 1899.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The population of Sacramento, Cal., is 44,696, according to figures made public to-day by Director of the Census Durand. This is an increase of 15,414, or 52.6 per cent., as compared with 29,282 in 1900.

Fort Wayne, Ind., has a population of 63,933, an increase of 18,818, or 41.7 per cent., as compared with 45,115 in 1900.

South Bend, Ind., has a population of 53,684, an increase of 17,685, or 49.1 per cent., as compared with 35,999 in 1900.

WANTS ALL STOCK ASSESSED.

Illinois Tax Reform League Says Millionaires Escape Just Levy.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Frank W. Jones, President of the Illinois Tax Reform League, has filed with the Board of Review a statement alleging that $200,000,000 worth of stocks in foreign corporations owned by citizens of Cook County has been concealed from the assessors and reviewers and has not been assessed. It is held by attorneys for stockholders that stock in foreign corporations is not subject to taxation in Illinois, but the league says it is.

The communication gives the names of the owners, the names of the companies in which they are alleged to hold stock, and the par value of the securities. The list begins with these names and amounts:

Edward Morris	$39,919,700
J. Ogden Armour	32,119,700
Joy Morton	6,600,000
Arthur Meeker	5,370,000
John J. Mitchell	4,020,000
Louis F. Swift	5,129,000
E. F. Swift	5,036,000

Other men are listed as owning foreign corporation stock of from $4,000,000 down to $250,000.

According to Mr. Jones some of these men have not been assessed on anything like the amount of assessable personal property owned by them for a period beginning in 1905, and he says $15,000,000 could be added to the revenue of the county if the legal penalty should be enforced.

The association gave notice to the Board of Review of its intention to institute mandamus proceedings to compel that body to assess the stock.

CONSERVATION, WEST AND EAST.

The President, it is said, is anxious that his attitude toward conservation shall be fully understood. He will devote no small portion of his coming annual message to that subject, and he may find time to address the Conservation Congress at St. Paul on Sept. 5.

We hope President Taft will take into account the Western as well as the Eastern opinion on the broad question of conserving the National resources. The newer States of the West and Northwest are fully awake to their interest in this matter. It concerns them much more deeply than it concerns the East, the State concern in conservation is more important than the National concern. For instance, The Portland Oregonian some time ago had this to say on the subject:

> States of the West have an interest in conservation of natural resources as well as States of the East. But the two interests, though agreed, in the main, as to the necessity of saving land, forest, and stream from spoliation, are nearing conflict as to the policy with which the preserves shall be administered. Oregon, Washington, and Idaho, for example, are able to conserve their resources; they are as fully alive to the matter as Eastern influences that would use those resources for National exploitation and taxation, and they will not consent to a policy of administration that would sell or rent water powers for the benefit of the whole people. Water powers of New England are not so conserved. Then why in Oregon?

Again, The Oregonian declared that "conservation on the Pinchot plan means, in effect, that there is to be no further practical use or development of the natural resources of the Western country." This is obviously an extreme expression, but the men of the Western States have come to feel that conservation as it is understood and preached by some of its most ardent advocates in the East would ill serve Western interests. The Western States believe that if water powers and coal lands are to be leased, the rental money should go to them, not to the Federal Treasury, and they support this contention with arguments which, historically and legally, it would be hard to meet.

Above all, the men of the West insist that conservation shall not be made to mean sealing up, that it must mean reasonable development. A glaring instance of the folly and waste of conservation for conservation's sake is seen in Alaska. There are immense coalfields in that remote part of our domain, fields that should be immediately developed to the end that the people of Alaska and of the Pacific Coast may have fuel at a reasonable price. Just now coal is $12 a ton in Alaska. That is not a reasonable price. Yet the morbid fear which Eastern conservationists seem to entertain lest some great corporation should get the privilege of mining Alaskan coal threatens to prevent the mining of it altogether. In the very nature of the case coal-mining operations in Alaska must be undertaken by corporations with large capital. Railroads must be constructed, mining plants established, transportation by water provided for. It is an undertaking quite beyond individual means. If corporations are to be shut out from Alaskan coalfields the coal will remain under ground and the Alaskans and the inhabitants of the Pacific Coast States, where conditions of scarcity prevail, will continue to shiver because of the prohibitive prices of fuel.

There is such a thing as reasonable conservation, and we know very well that there is such a thing as political conservation, for we have it on exhibition before our eyes every day. The subject has got into politics, and certain politicians of the minor sort are striving to make capital out of it. The widespread interest in conservation has been put to a most unworthy use, indeed, in an obvious effort to create hostility to the Administration of President Taft. In his own interest, therefore, and in the interest of his Administration as well as in the public interest, it is well that he should take up the subject with a candid mind, re-examine it so far as new light favors re-examination, to the end that the undeveloped resources of the country may be put to better use than that of politics.

THE DRIFT TO THE CITIES.

The drift of population to the cities continues, but it has been checked within the last decade, according to the first tabulations of the recent census. Of twelve cities in the eastern half of the United States seven showed a decrease in gain of population as compared with the ten-year period from 1890 to 1900. These were Northern cities, while the five that increased their gains were in the South. But the most remarkable figures are those indicating that sixty names will be added to the list of 160 municipalities of 25,000 and upward. These are well distributed, and indicate that the territory drained by the Mississippi River is building up. According to a Washington dispatch to The World, the statisticians believe that the cities are not getting all the benefit of the increase; that there may be "just a little eddying from the cities to the farms or that fewer farm boys are responding to the call of the city."

Probably it is the eddying backward to the farms. They have now largely the conveniences of the cities. The telephone, the telegraph, the network of railway spurs, and the increase of small towns and villages have changed the conditions of rural life. The "new agriculture" is being preached and practiced: supposedly wornout lands are yielding bountifully to the new methods of cultivation. The example of the model farms and dairies is being copied. But the chief ground for hope that the eddying back to the farms has set in is in the rewards which their recultivation holds out, consequent upon the rise in the price of foodstuffs.

SWEEP OF THE REFORM IN WEIGHTS.

Some say it was Commissioner "Clem" Driscoll or Mayor Gaynor of this city who started the crusade to make a pound weigh sixteen ounces, one gallon consist of four quarts, one quart of two pints, and to establish a few "trade customs" with respect to weights and measures that would be just to the consumer. But in Boston they say it was Sealer of Weights and Measures Holmberg, who last May set about distributing among farmers copies of the Massachusetts law prescribing that berry baskets should have the capacity of one quart or definite fractions thereof, standard dry measure. And now The Tribune of Chicago credits its estimable sealer, John Kjellander—"Kelly," in short measure—who was appointed by Mayor Busse, with having been the first to discover that the housewife who orders fifty pounds of ice will invariably pay for fifty while she may be getting only forty pounds, and to "snoop" about and detect the wicked scales of the butcher, the baker, the grocer, and the candlestick maker. "Cities in various parts of the country heard of 'Kelly,'" The Tribune says eulogistically, and by their imitation of him the reform became countrywide.

Everybody seems to have forgotten Dr. F. Reichmann, appointed State Superintendent of Weights and Measures in 1906, whose report that the people of this State were being defrauded of at least $20,000,000 annually by petty tradesmen made people consider, for the first time in years, that others than the predatory "trusts" might be plundering them.

Dr. Reichmann is not seeking credit for having started this widespread and significant reform. His share in it, however, was not small. It is significant because it means that the people are taking a leaf out of the books of the big corporations, which discovered long ago the economic beauty of minding their p's and q's.

SUBSIDY GRABBING AGAIN.

It is reported from Washington that a strong effort will be made to pass a ship subsidy bill at the approaching short session of Congress. It should be fought to the end, for in principle, motive, and method it is mischievous in the extreme.

There are two arguments used for ship subsidies: That they will promote shipbuilding and give us the ability to supply ships, transports, and colliers for use in time of war; and that it will promote trade. For the first purpose subsidies are a roundabout, shifty, and highly uncertain means, sure to be very costly and not at all sure to be efficient. Our shipyards have already the monopoly of the market for the coasting trade and for supplying our own navy. They are doing well enough to compete with foreign yards in building warships. It would be easier, simpler, and cheaper to set them to building such auxiliary naval vessels as we need at prices that would pay them, than to give an annual subsidy for a lot of vessels we do not need, to be run by private owners on routes not in themselves profitable. The latter course involves not merely the risk but the certainty of continual lobbying and indirect corruption. We have tried it before and all we got out of it was loss and scandal.

As to the second purpose, the promotion of international trade, reason and experience are alike dead against the probability of success. The greatest share in the ocean trade of the world is that of England, which opens its foreign and coast trade to free competition by every one, pays no subsidies, and pays only moderate sums for the carriage of its mails. France, which pays heavy subsidies both for building and for voyages, has the smallest share of the European maritime nations. Prosperity without subsidies, the lack of it with subsidies, this is the outcome of the two most important experiments in this line. It is folly to suppose that any other could be reached in our own case.

The real obstacles to the growth of varied and thriving foreign trade for our country are not to be overcome by taxing ourselves to subsidize ships. In the first place, for nearly seventy years we have been building up the home market by enormous protection of home production. By this means we have concentrated our industrial energy chiefly on that market while the tariff wall has shut out the natural exchange for foreign goods. We have forced ourselves to buy at home and have tried to prevent buying abroad. To the extent that we have succeeded in this, we have stifled foreign trade, for any trade not gainful to both parties is as futile as scissors with but one blade. Our industries have, in this way, been unfitted for foreign trade, partly because it has been made relatively profitless and partly because our manufacturers have not been trained to it. They are ignorant of foreign needs and customs; they are indifferent to them, often despise them and vainly seek to impose their own; they have not the skill, the capital, the experience, the patience, enterprise, and judgment necessary to foreign trade, and they are apparently not eager to acquire them. It is true that in the relatively depressed conditions following the reaction from the expansion of 1896-1906, they would like to get foreign markets, but, with the high tariff maintained, they will probably fall back in a year or two on the home market. There is no resolute, sustained purpose to get and keep foreign trade.

Of what earthly use are subsidies in combating these obstacles? None. Subsidies, indeed, are but another form of protection and would rather strengthen the obstacles than tend to remove them. They would entice ventures in shipbuilding for which there would be no steady and paying cargoes either of goods or passengers. The only active demand they would stimulate would be the demand for more subsidies. When our manufacturers really wish foreign trade, when they feel a strong and stable need for it, and are ready to seek it, develop, advance, and keep it in the spirit and with the intelligence they show as to the home market, they will get it, and ships and banks and the whole varied organization and machinery required for it will gradually be provided. Meanwhile subsidies to builders for ships without enough to carry will be merely waste aggravated by robbery.

A GREAT RAILROAD MAN.

> As the years roll around the greater will be the tribute paid to the genius of Mr. Cassatt, and it is the source of the greatest pleasure to those of us who had the privilege of knowing him to feel that there has been erected to his memory in so fitting a place a statue that will truly express to those who follow the manner of man he was.—President McCrea at the opening of the Pennsylvania Railroad Terminal.

President McCrea's words of appreciation and of eulogy find ample justification in the achievements of Alexander J. Cassatt. It is fitting that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company should adorn its splendid new station in this city with a statue of President Cassatt. The work he did for the road and the communities it serves well merit such a commemoration. Mr. Cassatt had qualities that made him a great railroad President. In the first place he was technically trained, not only as an engineer, but thoroughly trained in the business of operating and managing a railroad. He had foresight. He was able to picture forth the traffic conditions of the future and the demands that would be made upon his road. Then by reason of his great personal force he was able to impress his beliefs upon others.

It is due to the genius and the energy of Mr. Cassatt that the Pennsylvania Railroad now has its great station on Manhattan Island. He had to bring to his way of thinking a Board of Directors who were sometimes well-nigh dazed by the magnitude of his plans. He had to demonstrate to them their wisdom and their practicability. He succeeded. It was he who carried through undertakings in and near this city involving an expenditure of nearly $150,000,000. No one now doubts the wisdom of the undertaking and of the expenditure.

The work was begun, probably, at a fortunate moment. There were, we believe, some slight obstacles to be overcome, obstacles of an Aldermanic nature. They were overcome in a straightforward way, the right way. We suppose that in these later days Mr. Cassatt would have had to encounter that spirit of opposition which has developed to every great undertaking requiring the use of large sums of capital. Through much muckraking and demagogic appeal a considerable portion of the public has come to entertain the curious belief that the expenditure of capital in great corporate works is somehow a menace to the public. It is incredible that the countless thousands who will profit by the use of the Pennsylvania Railroad's tunnels and its new station should entertain this belief. Primarily works of that kind must meet a public need. It is in meeting that need that profit is found. Mr. Cassatt foresaw the need. The public and the railroad of which he was President will benefit by the great work which had its beginning in his mind.

THE SUPPLY OF STAPLES.

The cotton crop is our most important crop considered in relation to our foreign trade, and to-day we have the Government report of the yield when the plant is in a forward condition, although a trifle late for the season. We have been so spoiled by prosperity that some disappointment was expressed by indications of about 12,000,000 bales. There have been only three 13,000,000-bale crops, and there is an increase of almost a couple of million bales over last year's crop. That is called a famine crop, although in fact the country used to think itself well off with that much cotton, and 13,000,000 bales were thought a misfortune through producing such an excess that some of it was burned to take its weight off the market.

That will not happen this year. Whether or not there will be any shortage for spinning requirements depends as much on the demand as the supply. The consideration is obvious, and yet neglect of it has disordered some market calculations before now. In the nearer months, at least, the lowness of stocks will stimulate a somewhat urgent demand, but if any quietness of trade or slackness of industry should manifest itself, the same number of bales which to-day seem small may look larger.

There is an encouraging similarity between the food and staple crops. In both there is that happy medium between feast and famine, between quantity and price, which makes for wholesome trade conditions. That shortness of supply which results in a price so high that the yield in dollars is large is not good for the country. And, on the other hand, the burning of cotton and corn because the supply is so large that there is no bottom to the market is also a misfortune, and little advantage to the ultimate consumers. Stomachs demand bulk, and backs demand a certain superficies of cloth, independent of price. It is not enough that the farmer should get his dollars. It is requisite also that the railways should get the tonnage, and that the eater and wearer should get the goods.

Those are the conditions this year. Only by comparison with extraordinarily good conditions is there any ground for unfavorable remark, and those conditions, as remarked above, sometimes result rather in uneconomic destruction than in freight or dollars. There is every reason to believe that this year the farmer will get more dollars than ever before, or at least equal to the eight billions which is high water. There is a shortage in bushels only in some varieties, the aggregate of bushels promising to be a record. In bales there will be some shortage compared with the years of greatest abundance, which have not been the years of greatest prosperity for the planters. This promises to be an excellent year considering together the price from the standpoint of the planter, and the quantity available for the factory and the freight car. We are making jubilation over the import of one or two score millions of gold, and here is the promise of some hundreds of millions of exports which will command gold or its equivalent. And yet some affected disappointment. It is to be feared that their market commitments biased their judgments.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

More About the Man on the Bridge.

After the appearance in the May Atlantic of "The Man on the Bridge," the steamship owners and agents did a lot of explaining and more denying of the statements made by the seemingly well-informed Charles Terry Delaney as to the overworking and underpaying of Captains and officers on the ocean liners, and as to the frequency with which time and expense are saved and danger is increased by "cutting corners" instead of following the regular and established routes. That exciting controversy has now been forgotten by the public, and whether anything was accomplished by it or any reform effected may safely be questioned, but the subject in all its old phases and several new ones has been brought up again by a long letter from Mr. Delaney which is printed in the August number of the same magazine.

He does not admit that any of the explanations brought out by his original article really explained, or that any of the denials disproved, and to support his contentions, especially as to the frequency with which "cutting corners" is practiced, Mr. Delaney presents in detail what, to landsmen at least, looks like evidence that will be hard to meet. He admits that there are Captains who honestly keep to the "lanes" on the sea as well as in their log books, but he insists that they do it at the peril of their places and their reputations, while officers who make better passages than they in vessels no faster are not asked how they manage to do it, but stand extremely well with their owners.

Mr. Delaney takes back nothing of what he said about the inadequate salaries paid to men who carry the heaviest of responsibilities for life and property and makes more specific his assertions as to the terrible number of continuous hours during which Captains sometimes remain on active duty. The clocklike regularity with which the liners cross the ocean is in itself, he declares, proof that the rules of the sea are habitually broken, and he tells how this is, or at least how it could be, done without subjecting the offender to much risk of having his transgressions reported.

Apparently Mr. Delaney speaks from knowledge—which is more than some of those who contradicted him did—but it is a pity that he does not disclose just how he came to know so much about these matters and what his motives are in revealing the secrets of what seems to be his profession. After all, experience shows that there are few safer places than an ocean steamer, and that is hard to account for if the state of affairs on them is as bad as he makes out.

Incredulous About a Dog Story.

From Hempstead, L. I., this time, comes the often-told story of a dog that, seeing a human being in danger of death, went of its own accord to summon help. In the present instance a very young child with whom the dog had been playing fell into a duck pond, and the animal, by some accounts a collie and by others an Irish setter—a discrepancy which illustrates the untrustworthiness of all such tales—hastened home and by its excited pullings at the skirts of the child's grandmother caused her to follow it to the pond. As the water was shallow, a rescue was easily effected, but too late to save the drowning infant, which died on the way to the hospital.

Now, popular history is full of narratives like this, in every one of which the dog hero shows appreciation of a peril not his own, and, after going through a rather long and complex series of reasonings, makes known, if not what has happened, at least that something serious is wrong, and leads to the scene of trouble those who are more or less competent to remedy it. Of course there must be some foundation of fact for most of these narratives, but to believe that the dogs acted as they did for the reasons that would have caused a man to do about the same thing if unable to effect a rescue himself or alone is just a little too much for the faith of those of us who lack, or who try to restrain, the anthropomorphizing tendency when the behavior of animals is under consideration.

The expression of our own doubt whether any dog ever really did what this Hempstead dog and so many others have been credited with doing, and did it with conscious intention, will probably bring from our readers many letters intended to prove that exactly such things can be and have been, to the writers' personal knowledge. Unless, however, these correspondents make an unusually clear discrimination between their facts and their deductions therefrom our incredulity is likely to persist. But dog stories are so apt to be good stories that they are usually worth printing, even when they do not convince anybody who does not already believe.

Incidentally, if that Hempstead dog was as intelligent as we are expected to admit, why did he not step into the duck pond and pull the child out himself? That would have been as much simpler as it would have been more effective than what he is said to have done.

"Coasting" Is an Absurdity.

Why is it that what everybody used to call, and all boys and girls still call, "sliding down hill," is now usually referred to in print as "coasting"? The inquiry may not seem particularly timely in midsummer, but there are hot-weather "coasters"—of the "roller" variety—as well as sleds and sleighs, and really the movement inland of a word that ought to remain just off shore is both queer and interesting.

When or where its use in the new sense began we do not know, but it was evidently the result of a misguided effort at delicacy and refinement, made by somebody who thought "sliding" a bit vulgar or rough. Of course no idea could be more absurd, but it seems to have spread far and wide, and now the shabby, stupid, and utterly inaccurate metaphor, "coasting," has almost driven its honest predecessor out of print, and is even beginning to creep into the spoken language. The spoken language of adults, that is; the children, true conservatives and sturdy exponents of good taste that they are, will have none of it. If the alternative were presented to them they would rather stay in doors than go "coasting."

Well they might! For "coasting" is not only without warrant in the etymological or the legitimate secondary meanings of the word "coast," but it is distinctly a provincialism—what our dear cousins call an "Americanism," being used in no English-speaking country except the United States. Of course a locution is not necessarily bad because it is American, since we had to make many such locutions, just as the Canadians, the Australians, the South Africans, and the Anglo-Indians had to do the same thing to meet their peculiar needs. But "coasting" was not needed, the thing itself not being new or local, and therefore is the word just foolish.

THE MATTER WITH WALL ST.

Political Conditions as a Cause of the Bear Market.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The economists explain the extraordinary fall in securities by the usual method of assigning two shopworn causes: (1) Prices of stocks were "manipulated" up to an inordinately high level, and (2) the banks, having tied up their funds in Wall Street loans, sacrificial liquidation was necessary to prevent a money market convulsion.

This is, no doubt, true enough as far as it goes, but it is only part of the story. When standard investment stocks drop from 30 to 60 points, and still nobody wants them, there must be some other cause than a mere "readjustment" of bank loans for a continued downward trend of prices.

The simple truth seems to be that the country is up against a "readjustment" of another sort. This is an era of "regulation" of our great corporations, something in the nature of a revolution in political and industrial conditions.

It is axiomatic that a "bear" market is the result of conditions, and that no combination of capital or group of men is strong enough to withstand them.

To use the pat phrase of the late Grover Cleveland, it is a condition, not a theory, that confronts Wall Street.

The political craze to "regulate the railroads" has hurt confidence. Wholesale suspensions of rate advances, threatened rate reductions, and the certainty of renewed agitation for more regulation of our railways, only serve to deepen distrust of the future on the part of investors. This is surely one condition that Wall Street, thus far, has been unable to withstand.

Again, uncertainty as to the Supreme Court decisions in the Standard Oil, Tobacco, and other cases vitally affecting the status of our industrial corporations, is another condition of constantly depressing weight.

The two factors mentioned are controlling. We may have big crops, and the country may be never so prosperous, but Wall Street remembers 1903 and 1907!

The country is in the hands of its friends (?)—the politicians—and what they will do to us is anybody's guess. That's what's the matter with Wall Street.

Against a Hudson River Bridge.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have been reading your article in to-day's Times upon the Hudson River Bridge at 179th Street, and it occurs to me to ask why any bridge across the Hudson—why not a tunnel, which would cost far less and not disfigure the noble landscape which, with the Palisades as a background, makes a picture unequaled anywhere?

Why is not this aspect of the question considered, as much as any disfiguration of Central Park? Why have our best architects submit designs for a grand water gate near 110th Street if the glorious roadstead, stretching up the river for miles, is to be walled in, as it were, by a bridge more or less ugly? Look at the fine stretches of the East River now ruined by the structures as costly as ugly; look at the ugly Poughkeepsie scaffolding.

Napoleon and a Great American.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In various store windows on Fifth Avenue and elsewhere is a picture of the tomb of Napoleon with the names of some of his famous battles set in the floor and a much-traveled American gazing pensively at the sight. The scene is labeled "Reincarnation," and the pictures have been on view since the last anniversary of Waterloo.

There must be some hidden slur intended by it, since every one knows that the great American's strong point is not grim war—the battle of San Juan was over when he arrived. Maybe it is lawmaking; maybe it is devising codes; but let us find out, please.

White Gloves for Men.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was very much interested in the letter in Sunday's paper wherein the writer advocates the use of white gloves for men's apparel. I do not think that any other glove makes so nice an appearance as a white lisle or silk glove for men—except, of course, in the extremely cold weather. Last Spring I noticed just an occasional pair of these at Atlantic City, and was impressed by their striking appearance.

A WALK IN RIVERSIDE PARK.

Observations Taken While Going South from Grant's Tomb.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If one will enter Riverside Park just south of Grant's Tomb and walk southward, he will observe that at 121st Street, the bank below the lower walk is gullied; about 800 square feet of concrete sidewalk has caved in and been patched up with wood; and about fifty-two feet of wooden fence, braced up from below, takes the place of iron fencing.

At 120th Street are another gulley and cave-in. An area of about 125 square feet of sidewalk is patched up with wood, and a wooden fence has been nailed up in place of an iron fence. For a distance of twenty feet more the sidewalk is cracking off.

At 115th Street there is a gulley; the sidewalk is undermined and the iron fence is sinking.

At 114th Street there is a gulley filled with rubbish. The concrete sidewalk to the extent of about 180 square feet has disappeared and been supplanted with planking; and for thirty feet the fence is wooden patchwork.

At 112th Street, about 80 square feet of sidewalk and 30 linear feet of fence are patched up with wood on account of another washout.

Near by is another gulley with an undermined concrete sidewalk supported by wood.

At 110th Street the landings at the top of the stone stairs leading from the lowest to the middle level sidewalks are patched up with about 120 square feet of planking to raise the walks to the levels of the top steps.

At 108th Street, near the retaining wall by the railroad, there is a washout hole in the ground where certain pipes are exposed.

At 102d Street there are about 150 feet of wooden patchwork fence and two large patches of planking in the sidewalk.

At Ninety-ninth Street there is a patch of about forty square feet covering a washout, and the sidewalk is cracked for a distance of thirty feet more. The iron railing has not yet given way here.

A little further along is a stretch of 186 feet of wooden patchwork fence; the concrete sidewalk is undermined part of the distance and propped up with wood, and is cracked for the rest of the distance.

Most if not all of the above washouts are more than six months old and nothing has been done to repair them permanently.

The above locations are approximate, as all but one of the street signs which were in the park and were so useful have disappeared within the above area. The street signs were not attached to iron railings, lampposts, or other permanent supports, but were attached to iron rods about four feet long stuck into the ground. The first stage of removal was to pull them up and leave them on the ground. Then they were carried hither and yon, with no attempt to replace or anchor them. Then they disappeared entirely.

THE OPERA CONTEST.

A Protest Against Extending the Time Limit One Year.

Just a word concerning the extension of the time allotted for the Metropolitan Opera contest.

On behalf of those who have hurried their work, and have lost many a night's sleep in order to have their operas ready within the specified time, I should like to utter a protest against extending the time another year. It seems hardly fair to those who have not only done work that would have been much better could they have had a longer time in which to finish it, but who have already incurred the expense of having their scores copied, which is no trifling one, and composers, as a rule, are not overburdened with this world's goods. Naturally they do not feel like losing either the time or the money; consequently their operas will suffer in comparison with those that have had two years' work expended upon them instead of one. It would seem, in an equable contest, that it is not fair to change the conditions under which the contestants have been working.

May I suggest a solution that would be more just to all parties concerned? To extend the time six months instead of a year would enable those who have not finished to complete their work, while those whose scores are completed would not be at such a disadvantage.

RICHMOND'S TAXES.

Thinks Manhattan Bears the Burden of That and Other Boroughs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with surprise the communication in The Times to-day, signed "Taxpayer," in which he stated that the Borough of Richmond was "only fit for taxation and exploitation" and that its tax bills "are higher in proportion than any of the boroughs."

I suppose that "Taxpayer" is aware that in the year 1903, when the equalization of the assessed valuation of real estate in the City of New York was made, the taxes on real estate in the Borough of Richmond for 1903 were reduced by 28 per cent. below same taxes for 1902, and that the taxes paid on Richmond real estate for 1902 were not again exceeded till 1908.

I recently found in Pleasant Plains, Borough of Richmond, a striking example of the heavy tax burdens borne by Richmond.

A small farm with buildings, the assessed valuation of which for 1910 is $2,500, was offered for sale for $7,500, and this price would have been paid but immediate possession could not be obtained.

Such low assessment of real estate in Richmond is not uncommon, and I think that Manhattan has done more than its share of charity in paying the tax burdens of Richmond and the other boroughs.

Curing the Criminal.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"C. Van B." in his communication with respect (advisedly used) to "The 'Institution' of Burglary," rather spoils the theory of the "Warden of Sing Sing Prison" in the popular play of "Alias Jimmy Valentine," that crime is an instinct of the criminal, and that its status as such may no more be denied than the genius of the inventor.

However, the thing that appeals to me with greatest force is the necessity for stamping out burglary with its attendant deadly menace to society, and until "C. Van B.," in the ripeness of his observant "rambles" with "burglars and various other thieves" can show us the "more effective means of curing criminals," of which he speaks, I feel—in self-defense as it were—that my suggestion of the capital penalty should not be regarded as unreasonable.

Considering the present tendency toward "insanity" as a palliative, we might proceed to people our asylums with burglars, but there would arise the problem of keeping the expert housebreaker under such restraint.

Locks and keys have no terrors for him, and it would not do to affix a ball and chain to a lunatic—Oh, no!

The American Chantecler.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I enter a protest against the managerial favoritism that has cast a very charming, but essentially feminine, actress in the role of Chantecler? M. Rostand's brilliant, satirical drama thus named was a success in Paris largely because of M. Lucien Guitry's wonderful interpretation of the role.

That Mr. Otis Skinner was to appear as Chantecler would be joyful news, and surely there are many others would could at least adequately fill the part. Are we not in danger of being held up to ridicule? Where one expects virility and power, it seems a mockery to find the "eternal feminine," charming though she may be in Barrie's fairy tales and pretty comedies.

Winning Qualities.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your answer to the inquiry of The World concerning Mr. Bryan is certainly correct. But why not go further and say courage and devotion to principles will win in the long run, and that just at the present time every consideration requires an exhibition of those qualities by the Democratic Party?

COURT CENSURES JUSTICE M'AVOY

His Conduct in the Trial of a Damage Suit Called Unfair by Appellate Justices.

THREATENED ONE LAWYER

Declared He Would Put Him in Jail if He Persisted in Objections—The Judgment Reversed.

A judgment for $94.19, entered by the City Court in favor of Mrs. Marie Bennett upon the verdict of a jury in a suit brought by her against Isaac Harris and Max Blanck, who carry on business under the name of the Triangle Waist Company, was reversed yesterday by Justices Seabury and Bijur, in the Appellate Term of the Supreme Court. The case was tried before Justice John W. McAvoy. Mrs. Bennett sued for $2,000 damages for assault and battery alleged to have been committed by an employe of the two defendants.

Justice Seabury, who wrote the decision of the Appellate Term, in which Justice Bijur concurs, says:

"The judgment is challenged chiefly upon the ground of the alleged misconduct of the trial Judge. Disagreeable as is the task of determining the merit of this contention, it is a duty which, in justice to the rights of the defendants and their counsel, cannot be ignored.

"In the course of the examination of a witness defendants' counsel said to the witness: 'You keep on enlarging and enlarging,' to which remark the counsel for the plaintiff objected. The following colloquy then took place:

> The Court—Sustained. Counsel is censured for making foolish remarks.
>
> Defendants' Counsel—I take an exception to your Honor's remarks.
>
> The Court—If I have to sit here and listen to foolishness by counsel, and not be allowed to reprehend it. I won't stand for this by counsel, and if it happens again I will fine you or commit you, and that will be subject only to habeas corpus and not to a mere exception.

"It seems to us clear that any one experienced in the work of the Trial Term must appreciate how unnecessary this colloquy was, and that without adequate cause it placed counsel for the defendants in the position of having been censured by the court and threatened with fine and imprisonment.

"Subsequently the court undertook a prolonged cross-examination of one of the defendants' witnesses. The examination was such as to plainly show that in the opinion of the court the defendants' witness was unworthy of belief."

Here follows a verbatim report of another colloquy between the court and defendants' counsel in which the court referred to the counsel's objection as "ridiculous," and he refused to allow an exception to the questions which were already asked and answered. Counsel took exception to the court's refusal to hear him, whereupon Justice McAvoy remarked:

> The Court—No. I will not hear any more from you at all. You stand up again and make a remark to me that I think is insulting to the court. I will commit you to jail as sure as you are sittnig in that chair. I will commit you, and not impose a fine, but a commitment for the full term. I will not sit here and be insulted.

"We think," then continues Justice Seabury, "it unjust that counsel, in endeavoring to protect the rights of his clients, should be subjected to the treatment accorded to defendants' counsel in this case. Counsel was within his rights in noting an exception to the examination by the court. Nor did the fact that counsel made an objection merit the reply that his objection was 'ridiculous.'

"There were other improper remarks on the part of the trial Judge, but it seems to us that enough has been quoted to show that, in justice to the defendants, this judgment should be reversed.

"A trial in which counsel for one of the parties is held up to ridicule by the court for making proper objections, and is unjustifiably threatened with punishment by fine and imprisonment, and is denied a hearing upon relevant matters, is not a fair trial. An advocate subjected to such persistent discourtesy from the court is embarrassed in the presentation of the cause of his client, and the cause of the client is palpably prejudiced in the eyes of the jury."

NO GRAFT IN FOREMEN'S FUND

But Commissioner Fosdick Criticises Their Street Cleaning Association.

Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick sent a report to Mayor Gaynor yesterday on his investigation of the fnud collected by the Assistant Foremen's Association of the Street Cleaning Department last year for the purpose of defeating the move to place the position in the competitive civil service classification, in which he declares that he can find no evidence that the money was used for illegal purposes.

He says that of the $1,000 raised $600 was expended for counsel fees, $100 for the expenses of committees appearing before the Board of Estimate, leaving about $300 in the treasury of the association. The Commissioner criticises the action of the association, however, saying:

"The propriety, however, of city employes bringing suit against branches of the city government and urging the passage of bills at Albany in direct contravention to the wishes of the head of the department affected may be seriously questioned."

MAKES FRESCHI MAGISTRATE.

Mayor Appoints Italian Lawyer to Act During Crane's Illness.

Mayor Gaynor appointed Lawyer John J. Freschi, with offices in the Pulitzer Building, yesterday, as a temporary Police Magistrate, to sit during the illness of Magistrate Crane. Mr. Freschi, who was indorsed by the Italian Chamber of Commerce, lives at 15 St. Luke's Place and is Secretary of the Columbus Day League, which started the movement to make the day a legal holiday in this State.

A few hours after his appointment Magistrate Freschi relieved Magistrate Steinert in the Essex Market Court. The first case before him was that of John Sullivan of 111 Madison Street, who was accused of beating his father and throwing him out of the house. The father pleaded for the son's discharge on the ground that he had been drinking when the assault occurred. The new Magistrate let the young man go after giving him a severe lecture.

CORPORATION GIVES ICE AWAY

10,000 Tons for the Asking Placed with Charity Organizations.

A corporation, which does not wish to have its name known, has announced that it is prepared to give away to the poor 10,000 tons of ice during the Summer through these organizations: The Charity Organization Society, the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, the New York Milk Committee, the Health Department, the Brooklyn Children's Aid Society, the United Hebrew Charities, and the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities.

The announcement is receiving wide publicity because the corporation declares that while it made the same offer last year only 75 tons of ice were disposed of. Tickets are in the hands of the organizations named which can be cashed at any ice wagon in the city.

JAMES RADLEY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—James Radley, an English aviator who took part in the recent meetings at Wolverhampton and Bournemouth, coming in fifth for the speed prize at the latter place, intends to compete for THE NEW YORK TIMES-Chicago Evening Post prize for a race from Chicago to New York. He will sail on the Caronia in a fortnight with a new type of Blériot monoplane, equipped with a fifty-horse-power Gnome engine.

Mr. Radley is the son of a wealthy Lancashire colliery owner and is 27 years of age. After apprenticeship to the engineering profession he did some railway surveying on the Canadian Pacific line and crossed the Rockies four times in prospecting expeditions.

Mr. Radley's formal entry for the race will follow in due course.

PRUSSIAN AVIATION RULES.

No Flying Over Towns—Three Days' Notice of Any Cross-Country Flight.

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—Strict police orders regulating aeroplane flights in the Province of Brandenburg, of which Berlin is the capital, went into force to-day.

Aviators are forbidden to fly over townships in the course of cross-country flights, of which three days' notice must be given. They must also obtain certificates of efficiency, which they are to deliver to the police before they take part in competitive flights, whether across country or within an inclosure.

In the latter case competitors are not permitted to fly outside the boundaries under a penalty of 60 marks ($15).

The Parseval VI. will begin a passenger service on Thursday.

HARVARD WANTS HAMILTON.

Aviator Anxious, Though, to See Guarantees Stopped and Straight Prizes Paid.

Charles K. Hamilton received a letter from Boston yesterday stating that the aviation meet scheduled for the Harvard Stadium from Sept. 3 to 13, 1910, under the auspices of the Harvard Aeronautical Society, always had been an open tournament in which the entries of all aeronauts had been welcomed from the first. It was against the sanctioning of this meet that Hamilton protested last week to the National Council of the Aero Club, and the Council upheld his protest on Monday on the ground that the tournament was no an open one and that Hamilton's entry had not been accepted. The statement, which was made by Adams D. Claflin, manager of the meet, read:

> The Harvard Aeronautical Society meet is and always has been open to all licensed aviators. The more that enter the better, and we will especially welcome Charles K. Hamilton. He is at liberty to enter and compete for any or all the prizes. He never has applied for entrance. Mr. Hamilton was over here a few days ago and wanted a guarantee, which, under the circumstances, we could not grant. We have a contract with Glenn M. Curtiss to race his machines in the coming meet and in the $10,000 cash prize contest for a flight from Soldiers' Field, Cambridge, to Boston Light and return.
> In our contract we understand that Mr. Hamilton is to run one of the Curtiss machines, as Hamilton is under contract with Curtiss for a year. That is our understanding of the matter. Whatever trouble there may be between Mr. Curtiss and Mr. Hamilton over their contract does not concern us. However, the Cambridge-Boston meet is open to Mr. Hamilton or anybody else, and under the terms of our contract with Mr. Curtiss we expect that Mr. Hamilton will fly a Curtiss machine in the Boston tournament.

Two weeks ago J. V. Martin, General Manager of the Harvard Aeronautical Society and designer of its aeroplane, Harvard No. 1, appeared at the Garden City aviation field and asked Hamilton what he would charge for his appearance at the Cambridge meet. He was told that Hamilton's services would cost the promoters $2,000 a day. Martin said that the Harvard meet promoters could not afford to pay so high a guarantee, but said that if Hamilton would lower the figure he asked for the nine flying days of the meet Martin would guarantee that no other aeronaut flying at Cambridge would receive any larger sum as guarantee. Hamilton finnaliy accepted a ten-thousand-dollar guarantee following the receipt of several telegrams and letters from Martin and Claflin begging him "to appear, as otherwise the meet might not be a success."

It was after this agreement had been reached and Hamilton was about to return to New York that Jerome S. Fanciulli, the business manager for Glenn H. Curtiss and Secretary of the National Council of the Aero Club, told the Cambridge meet management that if any contract were made direct with Hamilton to fly at the Harvard Stadium Curtiss would obtain an injunction restraining Hamilton from flying, as Hamilton was still under contract to Curtiss. On the strength of this objection the meet promoters called off negotiations with Hamilton and refused to accept his "entry"—that is to say, his appearance under a $10,000 guarantee.

When Hamilton's protest was presented to the Executive Committee of the National Council of the Aero Club last Monday these facts were brought out. Hamilton said then that all the trouble which had been caused in aviation meets in the last few months had been through the guarantee clause, by virtue of which an aeronaut received a fixed sum if he appeared each day of the meet, regardless of the merit of his performances. Hamilton said that the National Council should provide a rule stating that in future no guarantees should be paid any fliers, but that the prizes should be bona fide purses, so that the best aeronaut appearing at a meet might be certain of carrying off the major part of the prizes.

Under the arrangements which govern so-called "open" aviation meets now, every aeronaut who appears receives a fixed sum for his services, and the tender of prizes is really a farce, as these prizes are seldom, if ever, "won" or paid.

Hamilton said yesterday:

"I think I have shown that when I agree to fly I do fly, and on the appointed hour, certainly on the appointed day or days. That is my record all over the United States. For these exhibitions—not contests, mind you—I have received $2,000 a day, 60 per cent. of which went to Curtiss as a royalty for the use of his machine. Altogether I have paid him more than $40,000 since Nov. 26 last.

"But making exhibition flights, where one is the only aviator present, is vastly different from a meet at which prizes for races, height, endurance, &c., are advertised. That is supposed to be an honest affair, with real competition instead of faking. But under the guarantee system as it is being worked to-day, if an aviator leaves the ground, even if only for a few feet, his contracted guarantees must be paid, as he has 'appeared in flight.' What I want to see is a stop put to the offering of guarantees, and honest, open contests for real—not dummy—prizes."

RESCUES BY AIRSHIP.

Harmon Plans to Demonstrate Feasibility of the Craft in Shipwrecks.

Special to The New York Times.

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Heavy winds prevented Clifford B. Harmon from demonstrating on the Hempstead Plains this evening what could be done in the matter of dropping bombs from various altitudes in a rapidly moving biplane to the deck of battleships and torpedo vessels, full-sized outlines of which were laid out on the plains.

The plan was suggested by John Berry Ryan, the son of Thomas F. Ryan.

Mr. Ryan sent a number of men down from Manhattan to paint the battleships on the ground, and late in the afternoon came down himself. Every detail was carried out, even to the American Flag flying from the stern of the vessels. The conning towers were marked plainly, and the three funnels of the battleships were placed in their exact positions and covered with air-tight papers, so an explosion would occur if struck by the bombs.

The large battleship was at the north end of the field and directly in front of the two torpedo boats. Mr. Harmon is quite sure that even when flying at a speed of forty miles an hour he could drop bombs down the funnels of the various vessels.

"This of course would cause great damage to the vessels," said Mr. Harmon, "and might even cause their demolition. I am tired of flying about for pleasure with aeroplanes, and now intend to devote my leisure time to perfecting various features that will not only be of benefit to the aeroplane and mankind, but to the army and navy as well. One thing that I will soon give my whole attention to for a time will be a model of a shipwrecked vessel, which will be placed at some distance from the starting point, opposite my shed.

"I hope to fly about this imaginary wreck and demonstrate the possibilities of a rescue by aid of the aeroplane. A light weight rope could be dropped to the deck of the vessel, to which could be fastened a rope similar to that of the breeches buoy. This in turn could be taken to the shore, and many rescues could be effected. There are many coasts where it would only be possible for an aeroplane to fly over the rocky coast to a vessel, owing to the fact that a boat could not live in the water."

Mr. Harmon will commence his shipwreck plans after he has demonstrated that the aeroplane in times of war is a machine that must be reckoned with to a marked extent.

After the various war vessels were sketched out this evening paint was used to fill in the outlines. Mr. Harmon will probably drop the bombs to-morrow evening, if weather conditions permit.

"Joe" Seymour left the quarters at the aeronautical club to-day, and will fly at Long Beach with his Curtiss biplane. J. J. Frisbie will make a balloon ascension on Saturday, and later drop to the ground in a parachute. "Diamond Jim" Brady has asked Philip W. Wilcox, the Columbia student, if he could construct for him a biplane similar to the one in which Mr. Wilcox will make flights at Pine Camp before members of the New York State Signal Corps.

"It, however, must be strong enough to hold a man of my weight," said Mr. Brady when inspecting the Wilcox machine

HENRY W. TAFT SAILS.

Optimistic for Good Times Here, Says the President's Brother.

Henry W. Taft, brother of President Taft, sailed yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. on a two months' vacation. Before sailing Mr. Taft said that he was optimistic regarding the situation in this country.

"The situation in this country," he said, "is not menacing. The things which made for prosperity are still having their effect, and everything points to a continual upward movement. After the panic of 1907 things started with a rush. There was too much boom last year, and he have not quite recovered."

Mr. Taft said he spent last Sunday with the President at "Aunt Delia's," where, between them, they had put away one of the famous apple pies.

AGAIN A CRITIC OF STEAMSHIP LINES

Mr. Delaney Rejects Explanation of Trans-Atlantic Companies, Insisting Care Is Not Taken.

OFFICERS ON DUTY TOO LONG

Corners Cut on the Ocean Track, He Says, and Speed Made Regardless of Fog—Doubts the Logs.

The criticism made in the Atlantic Monthly for May by Charles Terry Delaney of the great transatlantic steamship companies, especially in the overworking of their officers and the cutting off of corners from the official course, has caused so much controversy that the author has replied in the current issue to the criticisms passed upon him. He retreats from none of the positions which he originally assumed.

Dealing first with the hours which the officers are on duty and referrnig to the statement of Charles P. Sumner, agent for the Cunard Line, that Cunard officers are on duty for four hours and off for eight, Mr. Delaney says:

"He omitted, however, to state the very material fact that such heavenly watches as these are kept on Cunard steamships only when the vessels are well clear of the land and dangers are at their minimum. The Cunard agent furthermore prudently omitted from his denial any reference to what I said about the strain officers are subjected to when leaving dock on the morning tide before sailing day. In my remarks I kept well within the margin of truth and stated times and duties which upon investigation would prove to be strictly correct."

Mr. Delaney makes note that the Cunard carries only six officers to the White Star's seven, though its steamers are twice as big, and the White Star officers are not required to handle mail and baggage, which the Cunard oficers are required to do. He asserts that the President of the Cunard is now investigating conditions under which the ship's officers are working. He thinks, too, that it is remarkable that after the publication of his assertion that the Mauretania officers on occasions get only twenty-four hours to visit their families at the end of a voyage, both the officers of the Mauretania and Lusitania obtained longer reliefs in port than at any time since either ship was put in commission.

Turning to the length of time that an officer is sometimes on duty, Mr. Delaney contrasts the statement attributed to Capt. Cannon of the Minnetonka that he had never heard of a Captain being obliged to be on the bridge for thirty or forty hours at a stretch, with those of Capt. Wettin of the George Washington, who declares he had often been on the bridge for thirty or forty hours, and Capt. Dahl of the Friedrich der Grosse, who said that "he had been even four days on the bridge, and was alert and wide awake all that time."

Dr. Delaney asks this question:

"Is a man of about 60 years a proper person to be intrusted with the safety of some 3,000 souls, after standing in foggy weather on the bridge in a watch like Capt. Dahl's—over four days—in damp, foggy weather with the whistle at his car screaming continuously?"

Log faking was one of the principal charges of Mr. Delaney's article. He alleged that liner Captains are accustomed in order to make better time to cut corners to the endangerment of their ships and passengers. He suggests submitting this brief catechism to the agents who have questioned his statements:

"'Do you know the difference between the official log and the chief officer's log?'

"'Do you know that the chief officer's logbook is never called for by the British Board of Trade except in cases of collision or stranding? Copy logs are sent in to the company's marine Superintendent after the completion of each voyage, and these are copied from the chief officer's log by a junior officer.'

"The noon position, whether by observation or dead reckoning, is never entered in the official log-book.

"Now, if the chief officer's log stated that his ship was in latitude 42.18 N. longitude 62.52 W. on a certain day, who is to say that the ship was not in that position, and how could any official arrive at such a conclusion?

"It would be well to scan old log-books and find out—how often positions by observation are entered when vessels are approaching the 'corner.' It is remarkable how much dull and cloudy weather is perpetually hanging around this corner, and how many dead-reckoning positions are entered just there, and how daily runs always seem to be a little bigger in that vicinity."

There are two ships in the Cunard service, says Mr. Delaney, with three-quarters of a knot difference in their speeds, yet one habitually arrives from twenty to twenty-four hours and sometimes thirty hours ahead of the other. He scouts the idea that there can be any regular advantage in favor of the faster ship by reason of better weather or more competent crews, but suggests that the extra speed might be exactly accounted for by the saving of 165 miles, which is possible by following the northern instead of the southern track.

"There are many men I know of," adds Mr. Delaney, who steer every mile of the official distance; but these men, if they carry mails, usually have complaints made against them, at least on the British side, by the Post Office officials."

Speaking of the salaries paid steamship Captains and officers, Mr. Delaney points out that possibly the Commodores of the best English and German lines may occasionally reach $4,000, but the great majority of masters range between $2,000 and $3,000, according to seniority, and the chief officers of the biggest liners never exceed and seldom reach $1,400. The seventh officer has to get along on $35 a month and must spend $150 on costly uniforms to begin with. Mr. Delaney thus refers to speed in fog:

"One important point in my article seems to have been neglected by all my critics. The matter of habitual speed in foggy weather met with no denial. Perhaps the Republic incident is too recent. Perhaps also the charge proves itself, for ships come and go with clock-like regularity, fog or no fog."

He concludes by saying that his charges are aimed at no particular ship, company, or master.

Mme. Schumann-Heink Receives Ovation at Ocean Grove Concert.

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 2.—Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink gave her annual concert at Ocean Grove to-night and 7,500 persons in the big auditorium gave her an ovation when she appeared for her first number. To-night's concert was the first of the Grove's musical entertainments.

Mme. Schumann-Heink arrived with her husband, William Rapp, and their four children this afternoon in time to hear Tali Esen Morgan's children's chorus sing. This entertainment was arranged at the contralto's request. The chorus numbers 1,000 children, and Mme. Heink applauded vigorously.

Mme. Schumann-Heink's programme contained four numbers, but she responded to as many encores. Her first number was the aria from "Sapho." Her next number was a group of three songs, "The Earl King," one of her favorites; "Ah, Love But a Day," Mrs. H. H. Beach, and M. R. Lang's "Mavourneen." Then followed "Our Father," Carl Krebs, and "The Rosary." The last song, given by request, was "Abide with Me."

The streets in front of the auditorium were jammed when the concert was concluded with eager admirers. As she walked down a human lane to her auto Mme. Heink was pelted with roses.

Mme. Schumann-Heink was assisted by Franz Kohler, violinist; Clarence Reynolds, organist, and the Aida quartet.

C. R. HOPKINS TO WED ACTRESS

Wealthy Young Philadelphian, an Actor, to Marry Violet Vivian.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—Charles Roberts Hopkins, one of Philadelphia's wealthiest young men, is to be married on Aug. 30 to an actress, Miss Violet Vivian of London. The fact that an engagement existed was not known to Mr. Hopkins's friends in this city until to-day, and it came as a surprise. His wealth would have enabled him to live a life of ease, but instead he himself choose a stage career at the close of his college days.

Mr. Hopkins is the son of the late Dr. Charles Hopkins and of Hannah Roberts, daughter of the late Elihu Roberts. He was educated at Delancey School and Yale, where he took his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1907 and his Master of Arts in 1908.

After leaving college he lived in New York. He was a member of John Drew's company in "Jack Straw," and later supported Ben Greet.

Miss Vivian is also a member of Mr. Greet's company, as is her sister, Miss Ruth Vivian.

The members of Mr. Hopkins's family have always been Orthodox Friends, Mr. Hopkins being identified with the Twelfth Street Meeting.

MLLE. POLAIRE SAILS.

Will Play in Paris and Return in January for American Tour.

Mlle. Polaire, the French actress who has just completed a two months' engagement at Hammerstein's Roof Garden, sailed back to Paris yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. with the members of her company, George Baud, Mme. Dinard, a negro boy, whom she is taking back as a servant, and Polaire's thirteen-year-old dog, Fifi.

The negro boy created a great deal of comment on the ship because he carried a silver chain about his neck from which depended a silver plate on which was written that the boy belonged to Mlle. Polaire, and that whoever found him was to bring him back to her. It is evidently expected that there is some chance for the boy to get lost in Paris.

Mlle. Polaire said she was returning to the Théâtre du Vaudeville in Paris to play "La Maison du Danse" and a new piece called "Montmartre."

"I am returning in January to New York," she said, "to appear in 'Le Visiteur' and a new play called 'Cleopatre.' I shall play in many cities during a three months' tour, but only in the regular theatres. I shall not be seen here again in vaudeville."

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Thomas Ryley will produce Langdon McCormick's drama, "The Storm," with Tyrone Power in the cast, in Boston in September.

Miss Lulu Glaser will be seen this season in a musical play called "The Girl and the Kaiser."

"The Simple Life," with Charles J. Ross, will be produced at the Hackett Theatre on Aug. 15.

John Pollock has engaged a vaudeville act which will be seen in New York later in the season. "The Maid of Mystery" is the title, and the lady in question is said to have ridden through Boston streets drawn by two Arabian horses. "The Maid of Mystery" has a new dance.

Robert Ober and Maurice Drew have been engaged by Henry W. Savage to play important roles in "Madame X."

Mr. Savage is planning to have most of his companies open at the Criterion Theatre, Atlantic City. "The Wife Tamers" opens there next week, "Miss Patsy" the week of Aug. 15, and "Madame X" the week of Aug. 29.

POLICE TO THE AID OF STARVING FAMILY

Take Up a Collection and Try to Find Work for Husband, a Stranger Here.

SLEPT IN MADISON SQUARE

Mother and Two Babies Tramped Streets with Father in a Hopeless Search for Employment.

Unable to find work at his trade of paper box making in his home town, after having been idle for three months, James J. King scraped his last few dollars together, and with his wife and two children—one a boy of 2 years and the other a baby in arms—came to New York on Monday morning.

Since then the whole family has been walking the streets, and now and then buying a loaf of bread and some milk which they would eat on the stoop of some brownstone residence whose occupants are away for the Summer. On Monday night, when they could walk no more, they found their way to Madison Square Park and slept there. Mrs. King held the baby in her arms, while she leaned against the back of the bench, and the two-year-old baby slept on his father's lap.

Yesterday morning they began their weary tramp again, and all the while the father kept watch for signs indicating the location of paper-box factories. But he looked in vain, for their unguided footsteps through the unfamiliar city led them through localities where there are homes rather than factories. Afternoon found them back again in the neighborhood of Madison Square Park, and they wandered through East Twenty-second Street.

In a little while they came in front of the police station. Mrs. King was crying hysterically from weariness and hunger; the baby in arms whimpered fretfully, and the little fellow who had trudged for hours and hours holding his father's hands begged to be carried.

King could stand it no longer. The green lamps in front of the station beckoned to him and he entered. Lieut. Bauer, who was making some blotter entries, looked up as they entered. He saw before him an American family, clean, sober, and intelligent, upon whom poverty had not seared the signs of degradation.

With choking voice and tears of humiliation King told his story, and Lieut. Bauer did not wait to hear it to the end. Ringing furiously for the doorman, he hustled that functionary out for a good square meal, then he invited the family into the Captain's room, and sat them down to a spread which they devoured almost ravenously.

While they were eating, Lieut. Bauer called to several of the reserves and sent them to the paper box factories along Twenty-second Street and on First Avenue to see if he could not find a job for King, but in each of them the policeman who applied was told the same tale which had driven King from his home city to New York—dull times, slack work, not enough to keep the shops running, the laying off of many hands. He had only a discouraging report to make to King, who had looked up hopefully as he heard Bauer send the men on their errand.

Capt. Burfiend came in while the family was still enjoying the first square meal that they had eaten in the city, and the family made the same impression on him as they had made on Lieut. Bauer. Hearing their story, he and the few policemen in the house at the time made a collection, which netted $5. With this sum in hand, Capt. Burfiend sent the family to a respectable furnished room house at 142 East Fifteenth Street, for which he paid the rent in advance for a week, and promised them to do all in his power to help them to get on their feet. They come from Lowell, Mass.

There is so much to tell about the shattered hope of the Giants at the Polo Grounds yesterday that one hesitates about which of the facts to hang up first. Perhaps it would be best, just to arouse your interest, to say that at the end of the first inning the Giants were far in front by a 4-to-0 score. Yes, they went after the Chicago Cubs in the first inning, like Chief Croker coming up Broadway on his way to a three-alarm fire in Harlem. The Herculean Overall was hammered into oblivion in that one round with a cannonading of hard hits. Picture the 15,000 people at the Polo Grounds when this happened. Why, half of them just looked out to the centre field flagpole and could almost see the 1910 pennant fluttering in the breeze. Merry peals of laughter greeted the Cubs as they trooped to the bench.

Not so fast now. There is something more to be added. The Cubs began an uphill fight, going after the peerless Mathewson with about as much consideration as if he had just arrived from the weeds. In three innings they tied the score and then squeezed in an extra run and won out by a score of 5 to 4.

The downfall of Big Six was decisive. They reached him for thirteen hits, one of them a home run. He met disaster in the third inning, when four hits gave the Cubs three runs. He struck no terror in the Bruin camp; the fadeaway faded in vain before Chance's men.

Although the sky threatened rain all the time, that didn't prevent Mayor Gaynor from going up to see the Cubs and the Giants scrap it out. He walked across the diamond before the game and met several of the players. He grasped the hand of Meyers, the Indian, and told him he thought he was one of our best little backstops. Manager McGraw, Shafer, and Snodgrass, who is leading the National League sluggers, also chatted with the Mayor. He got a warm reception as he walked through the stand and took a seat in one of the upper boxes. He had a score card, a stogie, a bottle of pop, and also took the seventh inning stretch. Some fan.

For an opener John Devore grounded one to Tinker, who gobbled it up and threw it over to Chance. The first baseman stuck out his bare hand and saved Mr. Tinker a large error. Devore was out, Doyle doubled to right field, and Snodgrass walked. Although Johnny Kling was behind the bat, Doyle and Snodgrass worked a double steal. Red Murray planked the ball to left for two bases, scoring Doyle and sending Snodgrass to third. Bridwell singled to left, scoring Snodgrass. Devlin walked and the bases were crowded. Chance talked in a fatherly way to Overall and then signaled for another pitcher to warm up. Merkle drove a single through second base, scoring Murray and Bridwell. Devlin was too bold and was nailed several yards off third base. Meyers walked. Matty was the ninth man to face Overall in that round and he flied to Hofman.

Now, that's the proper way to treat the onrushing Cubs, and all would have been gloriously rosy if Matty had not weakened in the next two innings.

Chance opened the second inning with a hard clip to right field. Murray was right in the way, but it went through him, Chance going to second. Murray got the ball and relayed it to Bridwell, who got it to Devlin just in time to spear Chance as he was sliding into third. Steinfeldt flied to Devore. Schulte lifted a high fly into the right field grand stand for a home run. Tinker singled past second base and Kling fanned.

It was Kroh, a south paw, that kept the Giants at bay during the remainder of the afternoon. The left-handed hitters did not fare well against the south paw. Five scattered bangs and not a run would he permit. The Cubs kept right after Big Six in the third, and although the star boxman was hit freely no relief pitcher was sent to the rescue. Perhaps the four-run lead looked safe, but it wasn't. Kroh flied out to Snodgrass in the third. Evers singled to centre and Sheckard drove a two-bagger to right. Hofman's single to left scored Evers and Sheckard. Doyle was under Chance's pop fly and Hofman scored the run that tied the score, when Steinfeldt sent the ball to the left field fence for two bases.

Chicago won the game in the fifth. Evers drove a hot single over Matty's head to centre. Sheckard sacrificed him to second, and he scored the winning run on Hofman's safety to right. Chance then beat out a pretty bunt, but Steinfeldt hit into a double play.

In the same inning the Giants had their best chance to go to the front. After Doyle flied to Chance, Snodgrass beat out a bunt. He stole second and went to third on Kling's wild throw to centre field, which almost took a piece off Umpire Kane's head. Sheckard got Murray's fly.

Kroh then became a bit wild and walked Bridwell and Devlin, filling the bases. Merkle was the Giants' salvation. If there had been somebody besides Jimmy Sheckard in left field maybe Merkle's terrific drive would have been a two or three bagger, but as it was the Cub fielder ran far back for it until he almost ran into the fence. He almost picked it off the head of the pretty brown girl on the cigarette sign. That ended New York's hope. Kroh never gave them another chance like it, and the Cub team hastened through the other innings with speed and neatness.

Wiltse will endeavor to tame them today.

BROOKLYN WINS TWO GAMES.

St. Louis Cardinals Get Short End of Doubleheader at Washington Park.

Brooklyn beat St. Louis twice yesterday at Washington Park, by scores of 3 to 1 and 5 to 4. Bell and Lush had a pitchers' duel in the first game, the former doing the better work. Burch's single in this game with two men on bases brought across the winning runs in the fifth inning, after the visitors had tied the score.

St. Louis started off in whirlwind style in the second game, taking a lead of four runs on three hits, two passes, a sacrifice hit, and two errors. But they were unable to do anything with Barger after that, and Brooklyn played a great uphill battle, using up three visiting pitchers in their efforts to win out. Five double plays were made during the game. McElveen was hit by a terrific drive from Konetchy in the second game and had to retire. Scores:

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 2.—When the score board boy posted the name Hughes as New York's pitcher this afternoon the 3,100 fans felt that there was another defeat coming to the Naps. New York won 5 to 2. The Naps cannot beat any well, the promising Virginia Leaguer, who has done good work in the brief time he has worn a Cleveland uniform, started the game, but he had worked too hard last week and was not in shape. Before he was taken from the box four runs had been chalked up by New York Mitchell, who succeeded him, allowed only one run before he got his bearings, but after that he was a puzzle.

For the first time in years Bradley, the veteran third baseman, was not present, he having received his ten days' notice of release. Rath will play third for the present. Koestner worked out at first, Manager McGuire thinking he might make a better first baseman than a pitcher. It is rumored that Stovall and Ball will be the next Naps to walk the plank. Deals are on to replace them with fast minor leaguers.

Capt. Chase was back on first base for the Yankees to-day, and Knight went to his old place at short stop.

Fanwell had a heartbreaking start when the Yankees scored four runs. Both Daniels and Hemphill walked, Daniels stealing second when neither Larry nor Turner failed to cover second base. Knight singled to left, scoring Daniels, and the two runners advanced on a wild pitch. Cree singled to centre, scoring Hemphill, and Knight also ran home when Birmingham threw over Bemis's head. Cree ran to third on the play and scored on a wild pitch. Chase grounded to Larry and Gardner grounded to Turner. Larry also threw out Austin.

Mitchell went to the pitcher's mound in the second inning, but could not stop the run making right away. He fanned Catcher Mitchell, but Hughes singled and scored on a drive over Birmingham's shoulder that gave Daniels credit for a triple. Daniels thought he ought to make a home run and died in the attempt. Knight doubled in the third inning, but a double play cut off the rally in its infancy. Gardner singled and F. Mitchell was hit in the fourth, when another double play ended the inning without a score. Pitcher Mitchell then got into his stride and not a man reached second base afterward, only one seeing first.

The Naps started after Hughes in the first inning, but did not go very far. Knight's error put Rath on first base. Lajoie's infield hit, after two were gone, put him on third and a neat double steal put Rath home. Lajoie again helped the Naps to a run in the sixth inning when he singled. He took second while the Yanks were trying to pick a man off at third base, and scored on Stovall's single. This ended the day's excitement.

Athletics Bunch Hits at Start.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—By bunching a triple and two singles with an error in the first inning Philadelphia jumped in to a lead of three runs, enough to win the second game from the White Sox 3 to 2. Morgan was driven from the slab in the seventh inning. Blackbourne was injured in a collision with Barry in the sixth, and will be out of the game about three weeks. Score:

MAGEE WHIPS TORMENTOR.

Spectator in Philadelphia Baseball Park Punished for Vile Criticism.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—Following to-day's game between the Phillies and Pittsburg, Sherwood Magee of the home team administered a severe drubbing to a man who sat in the first row of the left field bleachers and hurled vile names and taunts at Bates, Doolan, and Magee during the entire game, calling them "boneheads" and other such epithets.

The "rooter" was warned by the players and a policeman, but he continued his attacks, and after the game followed Magee to the clubhouse, and into the corridor leading to Lehigh Avenue. Here Magee resented his attack, and, before Doolan could get him away from the man, he had landed two or three heavy blows on the latter's face, bringing the blood in streams. The men were finally separated, and Magee retired to the training quarters, while the "rooter" went to have his wounds dressed. No arrests were made. The crowd stood by and watched the fight, and praised Magee for administering a deserved rebuke to the rowdy spectator.

FUTURITY TO BE RUN ON SARATOGA TRACK

Strong Indications That Racing in New York State Will End on Sept. 1.

With only one more day of racing at Yonkers most of the interest in the sport is now centred in Saratoga, and at the course of the Empire City Racing Association yesterday the well-defined rumor that the Futurity would be run off at Saratoga created almost as much interest as the races themselves. The Futurity is the richest of the two-year-old fixtures and has been the best offering for the young horses of the Coney Island Jockey Club. With the passage of the laws that fix responsibility for betting on the directors and managers of race courses it was rumored that the Coney Island Jockey Club would not conduct its Fall meeting.

This rumor was denied at the time, but it has been revived, and, while there was no confirmation yesterday, it is probable that the Futurity at least will be decided over the Saratoga course. President Richard T. Wilson, Jr., of the Saratoga Association, has been willing to take over the dates of the Coney Island Jockey Club, and has so expressed himself, but nothing official has been announced by either the Coney Island Jockey Club or the Saratoga Association beyond the positive assurance that the club would keep its faith with the horsemen and run the Futurity.

Racing at Yonkers was fairly interesting, though the card was considerably reduced by scratches owing to an early morning rain that made the track deep and holding.

The feature race was the Frivolity, a five and a half furlong selling affair for the two-year-olds. Only four horses raced and the prize went to Danger Mark from the Newcastle Stable. Richard T. Wilson, Jr., started both Amalfi and Onager, and the other starter was P. Dunne's Crash. There was little to the contest. Danger Mark lost little time in racing to the front, and once showing the way to the field the result was never in doubt, for at the finish he was in hand to beat Crash, who outfooted Amalfi in the stretch and saved the place.

The handicap of the day was over the six-furlong distance, and it was won by Rosseaux, three-year-old brother to Roseben, who a few seasons back was one of the best sprinters in the country. He raced Colloquy into submission and then came away from the others in handy fashion, though at the end Al Muller was giving him something of a battle. The summaries:

Notes of the Turf.

Paul J. Rainey has decided to race in France, and this week his sprinter De Mund and the jumper Sanctus will be shipped abroad. De Mund has been tried through the field, and he promises to take kindly to that style of racing.

R. T. McKeever has sold the mare Jeanne d'Arc to Mattie Phillips. McKeever took her from Hildreth, out of a selling race recently. This Winter Phillips will campaign a string for J. E. Otto, a newcomer to the turf, who has made several yearling purchases. The start of the new stable will be made at Juarez, Mexico.

SAY GARAGE MAN GAVE SHORT MEASURE

Commissioner Driscoll and Garage Owners' Association Have Edward Underhill Arrested.

HE SAYS HE'S PERSECUTED

Sells Gasoline Below Usual Rate, He Asserts, and Thus Has Incurred Enmity—Held in $1,000 Bail.

The crusade of the recently organized Garage Owners' Association of New York against the proprietors of so-called objectionable garages in the city was responsible for the arrest of Edward Underhill of the Garage De Luxe at 55 East 108th Street on Monday. Underhill was held under $1,000 bail for violation of the ordinance on weights and measures.

Charles D. Chase, Secretary and Manager of the Garage Owners' Association, with other members, and also Inspector of Weights and Measures Lee J. Mills, drove to the Garage De Luxe on July 26. Inspector Mills inquired the price of gasoline and learned that Underhill sold it for 14 cents a gallon. The regular price at the garages is 20 cents a gallon. Mills bought ten gallons and on measuring it, says he found that he had received less than eight gallons.

Underhill was arrested Monday and held for a hearing this morning in the Harlem Court. The new organization has been very active of late in investigating the conditions at some of the garages about the city, and it is likely that other arrests will follow.

Mr. Underhill said last night that his arrest was simply a plan on the part of the other garage owners to put him out of business because he sells gasoline cheaper than they do. He explained the shortage in the measurement of the gasoline which Inspector Mills purchased by saying that Henry Ray, the negro boy who measured it out, made a mistake in counting up the number of gallons.

Attorney A. Derby, counsel for the Garage Owners' Association, has in his possession a circular letter which, it is said, Underhill distributes among chauffeurs. The Garage De Luxe solicits the purchase of all sorts of automobile accessories, and some of the extracts from the circular are:

> We make it a point in our business to always keep our word with a chauffeur. He can always depend on us. If we promise him a commission or a percentage or a job he always gets it. You would be surprised to learn what a lot of money we have paid out to wise chauffeurs who always pull with us and nobody else.
>
> If you know of any tires, speedometers, tubes, horns, lamps, or tools for sale, come and see us. We will buy for spot cash and you get yours.
>
> Remember you always get yours.
>
> We have helped many a down-and-out chauffeur when out of a job.
>
> If you know of any one about to buy a new car, bring him to us and get yours.
>
> Keep your eyes open and inquire around and we shall soon be making money together.
> Remember that Underhill is always the friend of the chauffeur, and always keeps his word and makes good.

William H. Meyers, a former employe of Underhill, testified before Magistrate Corrigan in the Harlem Court that he had told the proprietor that the pump was not giving full measure, and that he had replied: "Well, skin 'em a little." He declared that Underhill told him also to give full measure only when complaint was made.

Much has been said recently about the giving of short measure of gasoline by garages. Several automobile owners complained to Commissioner Driscoll, and he conferred with officers of the Garage Owners' Association, which controls more than half the garages in the city. They told him they wished to stamp out the practice and were ready to co-operate with him.

The Commissioner has discovered a method of cheating buyers of shoe laces. The matter was called to his attention by an anonymous letter and on investigation he said he found that many silk laces, marked 30 inches, measured less than 25 inches. Commissioner Driscoll also announced that in his division of the budget exhibit this Fall the name and address of each storekeeper will be marked on all the dishonest weights or measures shown.

REGATTA ENTRIES CLOSE.

Many Crews Will Row in National Races at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—From present indications the National regatta of the American Association of Amateur Oarsmen, to be held this year on the Potomac River under the auspices of the Potomac Boat Club, will be one of the greatest gatherings of oarsmen ever held in America. Two days, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 12 and 13, will be devoted to the races. Crews and individual scullers from all parts of the United States and from Canada will enter the contest.

The entries, which closed last night, indicate some excellent sport, especially in regard to the senior eights and the single sculls. Among the entries in the former are the Argonauts of Toronto, the Detroits of Detroit, the New York Athletics, the Vespers of Philadelphia, the Nassaus of New York, and the Potomacs of this city. In the single sculls are expected Cosgrove, the Canadian champion; O'Neal of Halifax, Nova Scotia, and Miller of the New York Athletics. Cosgrove has just returned from Henley, where he was defeated by a small margin in the International diamond sculls.

All the winning crews at the regatta of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen, to be held at St. Catherine's, Ontario, the latter part of this week, Aug. 5 and 6, will come to Washington for the Potomac regatta. The races here, therefore, will determine the championships of the year for the various Canadian and United States crews.

In addition to the twelve regular races the various single and double scull, four-oar and eight-oar races, there have been added junior eight and war canoe races. All the races will be rowed over a mile-and-a-quarter course, extending from a point off the Government wharf opposite Potomac Park to a point 100 yards west of the new highway bridge across the Potomac. Former regattas here have been held on a course further up the river.

One of the crews which will attract much attention will be the senior four from Winnipeg, Manitoba, which about two weeks ago won the Steward Cup at the English Henley at London.

The Secretary of the Treasury has designated the revenue cutter Apache to keep the course, which will be 500 feet wide, free from all boats not participating in the contest.

N. Y. A. C. CREWS TRAINING.

Mercury Foot Will Be Well Represented at Washington.

The New York Athletic Club will send several crews to the National Regatta at Washington Aug. 12 and 13. Coach Gianinni has been busy at Travers Island getting the oarsmen into shape. Durando Miller, who finished second to O'Neil in the championship single sculls last year at Detroit, is fast rounding into shape, and is expected to make a strong bid for the title this year. O'Neil defeated Miller by five feet last Summer. R. B. Mann, the runner-up in the intermediate singles last year, will compete in the association singles.

J. H. Tracey, R. Krapp, T. Brady, and R. B. Mann are the entries in the senior quadruple sculls. A change has been made in the senior four-oared crew. C. Kusche has taken the place of F. Morrow. With the exception of this change the quartet will consist of the same members that won the championship last year. The make-up of the crew will be F. D. Hooper, bow; C. Kusche, 2; C. F. Quinn, 3, and J. N. Boyle, stroke. This four is entered in both the four-oared events, and are members of the eight-oared crew.

If the eight-oared crew wins the championship at Washington it will be the third consecutive year, the club having won the event in 1906, 1908, and 1909. The crew showed wonderful form in a practice spin yesterday. With the exception of a few breaks here and there, the movement was nearly perfect. As they have two more weeks to overcome slight faults their prospects look very good. Coach Gianinni is making every effort to win this event. To date the men selected to row in the eight follows:

J. A. McKenna, bow; L. C. Spalding, 2; F. D. Hooper, 3; J. Boylan, 4; W. L. Brown, 5; J. N. Boyle, 6; C. F. Quinn, 7; C. Kusche, stroke, and W. T. Higgins, coxswain.

COSTER AND GOLDMAN DRAW.

Bantams Put Up Fast Ten-Round Bout at Fairmont Athletic Club.

Joe Coster and Charlie Goldman, two local bantams of different types, fought a fast ten-round draw last night in the star bout at the Fairmount Athletic Club. Coster is a clever boxer with a left-hand punch which he used unceasingly to advantage, while Goldman was a rugged youngster with plenty of stamina who continually bored in regardless of punishment.

Coster stood his man off by his clever jabbed in the first five rounds, but as the affair progressed Goldman, who refused to be stopped, reached Coster with hard blows and evened up matters by an uphill fight in the last four rounds. Goldman played for the body. Coster made a whirlwind showing in the third, scoring hard rights and lefts to the ribs and face almost without a return, the round being all in his favor. Goldman came back in the fourth and held his own, and this round ended with honors even.

Coster had the better of the fifth and sixth, but showed signs of weakening where Goldman was strong, and carried the battle to his opponent from here to having all the better of the seventh, ninth, and tenth rounds, the eighth being even. The final round was a hummer from bell to bell, Goldman trying his best to get over the deciding blow. Dave Cross, a third fighting member of the Cross family, made his début as a fighter in a four-round contest with Danney Whalen. Whalen outweighed the east sider and outpointed him from the start, the bout being stopped in the second round to save Cross.

Surprise at Sharkey A. C.

Manager Buckley of the Sharkey Athletic Club has arranged a double star attraction for the weekly entertainment to-night. This will be a ten-round final between two clever bantams and a semi wind-up, in which a pair of heavy weights will make their appearance for ten rounds. Much interest is attached to the heavy-weight bout, because one of the participants is a much touted wonder whose identity is being kept a secret and whose manager intends to hurl a challenge at Jack Johnson in a few days. Bill Brown, brother of "Dixie Kid," who has been making rapid strides as a fighter, has been selected to meet the unknown. The bantams, who will go ten rounds in the final exhibition, are Charley Harvey, the Pennsylvanian, and "Kid" Ghetto, the Harlem boy, who always puts up a good fight.

Association to Control Boxing.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—To form an association that will exercise the same influence and control over pugilistic contests that leagues do over baseball, is the scheme of A. B. Moffitt, an Oakland fight promoter, who is drafting letters to other California promoters calling for a meeting to be held soon in this city to form such an association. Moffitt says he is working on a plan of organization and by-laws which he will be ready to submit to the promoters if the meeting is arranged.

"I believe," he asserted, "that by organization we can clear away all the troubles of the fight game and put it on the same solid basis as baseball, track athletics, or any other sports."

Corbett's "Unknown" Revealed.

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., Aug. 2.—The identity of James J. Corbett's "unknown," whom the former champion expects to win the championship from Jack Johnson for the white race, was revealed to-day in a message from Albany, Mo. Miles McLeod, a giant, 27 years old and weighing 250 pounds, is Corbett's protege. The message, which is declared to be from a reliable source, was to a local newspaper man. It stated that McLeod has signed a contract with Corbett to enter the ring, and that he is now secretly receiving boxing instructions from the former champion. McLeod comes from a family of giants, having two brothers his equal in size. He is a college man and an athlete.

ON THE TENNIS COURTS.

If the splendid lawn tennis form displayed by Frederick C. Inman and Carleton R. Gardner in arriving at the final round of the New York State championship singles yesterday is any criterion then the title that lies between the two is certain to be well fought for. Inman surpassed himself yesterday. Not in any of the other rounds on the turf courts of the Crescent Athletic Club at Bay Ridge has he shown such skill as he did against Charles M. Bull, Jr., the former half-moon champion, whom he defeated, 6—3, 6—4, 6—2. The Californian, Gardner, won his final bracket by defeating Lyle S. Mahan, the former intercollegiate champion, 6—2, 6—3, 6—3. According to the arrangements made by Henry C. Martin, Chairman of the Tournament Committee, the two will decide the successor to Raymond D. Little and the holder of the honors and cup this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The summaries:

New York State Championship.—Semi-Final Round—F. C. Inman defeated C. M. Bull, Jr., 6—3, 6—4, 6—2; C. R. Gardner defeated L. H. Mahan, 6—2, 6—3, 6—3.

Special to The New York Times.

CRAWFORD HOUSE, N. H., Aug. 2.—The Crawford tennis tournament for the championship of the White Mountains went through the second round to-day. The best match was played by W. A. Carl of Boston and J. D. E. Jones of Providence. The latter was expected to go at least to the semi-finals. Carl pulled his match out by taking the last two sets in fine tennis, losing the first by 6—8. King Smith of New York won both his matches. The summaries:

North Jersey Coast Tennis Results.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRING LAKE, N. J., Aug. 2.—Interest perceptibly increased in the lawn tennis tournament which began here yesterday on the Casino courts for the championship of the North Jersey Coast. Larger crowds than were present Monday filled the verandas and lawns of the Casino, and there were a number of luncheon parties in the restaurant. In the afternoon the doubles for men were commenced, and there was some remarkably fast tennis, the net work being swift and destructive in several of the sets. The summary:

P. E. Morrell beat H. Ehrick, 8—6, 6—4; J. Stockton beat F. Truax, 6—2, 6—1; W. J. Johnson won from J. Montgomery by default; Deforest won from Townsend by default; Hoagland beat C. Mills, 6—3, 6—1; Loeb beat Van Vleck, 6—4, 7—5; Maley beat Mattison, 6—2, 6—2; W. Rosenbaum beat Bates, 6—2, 6—3; F. Hamlin beat Dubosque, 6—3, 6—2; Berg beat Stockton, 4—6, 8—6, 7—5; Mathay beat Slack, 6—0, 6—0.

The opening of the doubles was marred by a number of defaults, Rosenbaum and Pendergast, W. F. Gibbs and partner, Lowenthal and partner, Stockton and Forst, and Slack and Truax all being winners on that account. Hamlin and Adams beat W. F. Gibbs and partner, 6—1, 6—1; Boles and Reeves beat Stockton and Forst, 6—3, 7—5.

Bundy and Hendrick Win in West.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Pacific Coast and Western tennis players took the honors at Lake Forest to-day in the preliminary matches to decide who will meet Alexander and Hackett in the contest for the National championship at Newport the week of Aug. 11. The teams will meet on the Onwentsia Country Club courts to-morrow, and the winners will be named for the Newport play. T. C. Bundy and Hendrick, winners of the Pacific Coast championship, defeated Edward S. Whitney and Richard Bishop, Eastern champions, in hard-fought sets today. Waidner and Gardner, Western champions, won from the Doyle brothers, representing the South, in straight sets. The summaries: Bundy and Hendrick defeated Whitney and Bishop, 4—6, 6—4, 6—1, 4—6, 6—2; Waidner and Gardner defeated the Doyle brothers, 6—3, 6—4, 6—3.

NEW YORK YACHTS READY FOR CRUISE

Big Fleet Will Assemble at Glen Cove To-morrow and Will Race Eastward.

The annual cruise of the New York Yacht Club will start to-morrow, when the fleet will assemble at Glen Cove, L. I., at noon and will race to the eastward almost every day until the 13th.

Outside of the regular squadron runs each day, for which prizes are offered, there will be the King's Cup race at Newport on Aug. 12 for the valuable cup presented to the club by his late Majesty, King Edward VII., and on Thursday, Aug. 11, the annual Astor Cup races will be sailed. Both of these races will bring out the very cream of American sail craft, for outside of the America's Cup there are no trophies more desired than the King's or Astor Cups. Races for the Owl and Gamecock colors and for the Flag Officers' Cup will also be sailed during the cruise.

The first day's run will be to Huntington, a distance of fifteen miles, and at night a reception will be held by Commodore James on board his schooner Aloha. On Friday the day's run will be to New London, sixty-five miles, for the four cups offered by the Commodore. The fleet will proceed to Newport on Saturday, the racing boats contending for the Vice Commodore's Cups. Sunday, as usual, will be a day of rest for members and crews.

On Monday the run will be to Vineyard Haven for the Rear Commodore's Cups, and is over a course of thirty-seven miles. Tuesday the fleet will beats its way for thirty miles to New Bedford, the turning point on the cruise. The prizes offered for the day's run are the two Navy Challenge Cups, one for schooners and the other for sloops and yawls. The run will be back to Newport on Wednesday, a sailing distance of twenty-seven miles, for the two Alumni Association of the United States Navy Cups.

During the squadron run from Newport to Vineyard Haven the auxiliaries will contest for the two Aloha Cups offered by Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James. One cup is for auxiliaries of 65-foot water line and over, and one cup for the smaller boats.

The race for the Astor trophies will bring together some of the fastest vessels in the world, and is a fitting preliminary to the King's Cup event on the following day. This race will be for schooners of not less than 60 feet on the water line and for sloops of not less than 50 feet on the line, and is open to boats enrolled in any yacht club in the United States that are of the right water line length.

Istalena, Winsome, Windward, and Avenger, all boats that have made good names for themselves already this season, will probably compete. The schooners Queen, Elmina, and Corona may also compete.

After the race the fleet will be illuminated, and the next day, Saturday, the 13th, the vessels will scatter to their respective home ports.

FOR THE ALL-AROUND TITLE.

With "Sure Things" Out, This Year's Competition Should Be Close.

The all-around championship of the Amateur Athletic Union, to be held in Chicago on Aug. 13 under the auspices of the Chicago Athletic Association, promises to be the most successful meet held in some years. The officials made a good move in selecting Chicago for the meet, as to date nineteen men have entered. In the past three years the fields have been rather small. Martin Sheridan has had the title in his grasp whenever he went out for it in the last few years, but this year he has decided to stay out. Joe Horner, the University of Michigan crack, also was expected to enter, but for some reason he has decided not to compete. With Sheridan's decision to drop out the title looked like a sure thing for Horner. Without these two athletes in the meet the competition should be very close and interesting.

The entries are as follows:

Ellery H. Clarke of Boston, who won the title thirteen years ago, will be a competitor this year. Clarke won in 1897 and again in 1903. Last year he won the all-around title in the New England Association.

Nic Kennard, a former Harvard student, but now representing the Chicago Athletic Association, was second to Clark in the New England championship.

Harry Gill, all-around winner in 1900, now coaching at the University of Illinois, has unearthed two of his college men as possibilities. L. Byrd, a freshman, and A. Brundage are both good men.

W. Crawley, University of Chicago, in the dual meet between his college and the University of Illinois this Spring, won three firsts, one second, and a third. He excels in the hurdles and jumps.

E. B. Archibald, Toronto Y. M. C. A., competed in Athens and London as a member of the Canadian Olympic team. Archibald has cleared over 12 feet in the vault, besides being a walker of no mean ability.

John Bredemus of Princeton, the winner in 1908, will again attempt to annex the title.

H. W. Fitzpatrick, President of the Southern Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, has held the Southern intercollegiate high jump record for a number of years.

B. Gish of the Seattle Athletic Club has an excellent chance of winning. Although new at this style of competition Gish is a very good all-around athlete. Last year at the National championships he won 12 points for his club. Gish is a good sprinter, and has done well in the weights.

J. J. Cody, Newton Y. M. C. A.; Fred Thomson of Los Angeles, E. G. Haskins of Michigan, G. W. Philbrook of the Cleveland Athletic Club, A. Mennal, University of Chicago, and C. F. Furey of Philadelphia are the other entries.

Of the above entries eight athletes are representatives of colleges. Gish, Clark, Crawley, and Bredemus seem to be the most promising candidates for the title.

STOCKS GO UP SHARPLY.

Private Sale of Chesapeake and Interborough Relieved Market Pressure.

Wall Street, accustomed to sudden changes, was taken by surprise yesterday by the sudden recovery in the stock market from the recent depression. Two stocks which were among the weakest issues on Monday were among those which showed the largest advances yesterday, Chesapeake & Ohio and Interborough Metropolitan preferred. The sharp advances, however, were not confined to these two stocks, for in addition to a 4⅝ points advance in Chesapeake and a 3¼ point net gain in Interborough Metropolitan preferred there were shown at the close of the market such net gains as 3½ points in Union Pacific, 3⅜ in Amalgamated Copper, 2⅝ in United States Steel, 3¼ in Reading, and a number of other sharp net gains. On a smaller scale the market witnessed yesterday a repetition of the upturn, which took place on Wednesday last week.

After the close of the market it was divulged that in some respects last week's occurrences were repeated yesterday, the explanation being that large blocks of Chesapeake & Ohio and Interborough Metropolitan preferred had been taken over at private sale and a pressing situation relieved, just as still heavier threatened liquidation was removed from the market a week ago by the taking over of big blocks of Rock Island, Missouri Pacific, Wabash, and Lehigh Valley by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and other banking interests. The Chesapeake & Ohio and Interborough Metropolitan were said to have been bought by a banking house more or less closely associated with the affairs of both these companies from a man prominently identified with the latter company, and also associated with the dominant interest in the Chesapeake & Ohio. The dominant interest in that road, however, is understood to be in no wise affected by this change in the ownership of this particular block of stock.

All told there were 60,000 shares affected by the transfers from the individual seller to the banking house. Of this 20,000 shares were Chesapeake & Ohio and 40,000 shares Interborough Metropolitan stocks.

The sharp break which occurred on Monday in Chesapeake when that stock sold down to and closed for the day at the lowest price of the year was taken as an indication that a big block of that stock was pressing on the market, and it was feared that hasty liquidation might be forced by the continued pressure upon the issue. Less importance was attached on that day to the decline which occurred in Interborough Metropolitan, although yesterday they proved to have been linked in the same account.

BANK CLEARINGS FALL OFF.

Decrease in New York Offsets Gain Throughout the Country.

Bank Clearings in the United States during July showed a falling off of 1.4 per cent., compared with July, 1909, according to figures compiled by Dun's review, which place the aggregate of the country's bank clearings this past month at $13,216,4[illegible],356, exclusive of the exchanges at smaller places from which no returns were received. Compared with the 1909 July returns, the record for this past month shows an increase of 13.8 per cent.

It was in the bank clearings at New York City that the heaviest falling off occurred in July, and except for this decrease the exchanges for the country as a whole would have shown an increase. There were slight decreases in the New England and the Central Western States, but despite the falling off in these sections the clearings for the whole country outside of New York showed an increase of 4.9 per cent. for the month. A decrease of 5.3 per cent. at New York brought the returns for the whole country down to a decrease of 1.4 per cent. The New England States reflected among other factors the curtailment in effect in the textile trade. The whole average, however, was influenced by the fact that there was one less business day in July this year than in July, 1909. The average daily clearings this past month were $528,659,000, which is 2.5 per cent. above the average daily clearings of $515,779,000 in July last year.

TWO NEW RECORDS IN CIRCUIT RACING

Geers Drives The Harvester Two Mile Heats, Each in 2:04¼, at Detroit.

DETROIT, Aug. 2.—Two new speed records and some excellent sport marked the second day of the Grand Circuit racing at the State Fair Grounds to-day. Driving for the first time since his injury at Grand Rapids two weeks ago E. F. Geers, the veteran reinsman, celebrated his return to the sulky by sending The Harvester the two fastest miles ever trotted by a stallion, each mile being negotiated in 2:04¼. This time also is the best ever made by a five-year-old stallion. Croesus held the former two-heat records for stallions, and Bob Douglas, who twice finished second to The Harvester to-day, held the five-year-old stallion record of 2:06¼.

Geers also drove The Abbe to victory in the Chamber of Commerce $5,000 stakes, winning three straight heats after being beaten at the wire by Evelyn W. in the first heat.

In the 2:07 trot, which developed the new champion, The Harvester won the two heats practically as he pleased. At no time was he extended to the limit. Country Jay, by reason of his recent record-breaking performance, was popular with the crowd, but the best he could get in the fast going was a division of third and fourth places with Spanish Queen. Bob Douglas was the only near contender in the race, and The Harvester left him behind in both heats when approaching the wire.

The big field had a bad time getting away in the first heat of the Chamber of Commerce Stakes. Scoring in the sixth attempt Lady of Honor got her feet tangled in her hobbles and fell to her knees. Snow kept his seat, but the start was delayed while the harness was mended. Then Col. Forrest, who had been acting badly threw a shoe. The horses were at the post nearly an hour before finally getting away to a good start.

The leaders were well bunched all the way, and 100 yards from the finish five horses raced heads apart. As they flashed under the wire the crowd cheered Driver Geers and the Abbe, and there was keen surprise when the judges announced that Evlyn W. had won by a scant nose. The next three heats were easier for The Abbe, who led all the way, with a good margin to spare at the end. This is the fifth time Geers has driven a winner in the Chamber of Commerce Stakes. POLO ON AMERICAN PLAN.

English Have New Handicap Scheme, Giving Points to Players.

Much interest has been aroused in polo circles in England over the new scheme which has just been put into effect by the Hurlingham Club, which will change the character of provincial and other restricted tournament playing. Each polo player now has his handicap at golf, and if he believes that the committee has not appraised him at his full worth he may be consoled by the fact that he will be able to get more tournament polo at the smaller rating and be of greater value to his team.

The scheme is borrowed from the United States, but with the difference that in this country players are handicapped by goals, whereas points are used in England. It is likely that in many competitions abroad two points will count as one goal, as in the Rugby tournaments, soon to be contested. Whether the change will be an improvement upon the American system remains to be seen.

At the highest rating of ten points there are five players on the Handicap Committee's list. Eight are assessed at nine points, and there are eighteen who have received eight points. Seven points have been given to sixteen, six to thirty-three, five points to thirty-five, four points to twenty-three, three points to thirty-five, two to twenty-two, [illegible].

The King of Spain, who is an enthusiastic polo player, is placed on the four-point mark. A. U. Edwards, who is now with the English team in South Africa, receives ten points, and Capt. Bingham, Major H. R. Lee, Morres Nickolls, E. W. Palmes, and Capt. H. A. Tomkinson are rated at eight points each.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

The wheat market showed decided weakness. The news from nearly all sections was bearish, and long wheat was thrown over freely. Cables were decidedly weak over the holiday, reporting a large gain in the European visible, due to heavier world's exports, and the foreign crop news was not so unfavorable. Western receipts were again heavy, and the interior total has gained about 2,000,000 bushels in two days over a year ago. There was a large gain in the visible, both in America and afloat, while the reports regarding the yields of wheat were of an optimistic character. The Illinois Grain Dealers' Association estimated the crop in that State at 44,000,000 bushels, which is 16,000,000 bushels more than the July 1 Government indications and 14,000,000 bushels more than last year. Weather conditions were generally favorable for thrashing of Winter wheat, although the heavy showers in the Southwest, which were so favorable for corn, interrupted work in that section. Northwestern advices were of good weather for harvest, and with yields up to expectations. Canadian reports were somewhat more favorable and the Canadian market weak. The United States visible increased 3,255,000 bushels for the week; Canadian decreased 655,000 bushels. The world's total increased 4,900,000 bushels, against 2,444,000 bushels decrease the previous week and 623,000 bushels increase last year. Cash wheat quoted: No. 2 red Winter, $1.06½, nominal, to arrive, cost, insurance, and freight; No. 2 red, spot, nominal, new, $1.07¾, free on board, afloat, for export; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.25, nominal; No. 2 hard Winter, new, $1.12; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.12¼. Sales include 3,000 bushels No. 2 red, $1.06½, in elevator.

Corn was decidedly weak on the weather. The weather map showed heavy showers in Kansas and Missouri, and Monday there were showers in Oklahoma. During the last week there were good showers in Iowa. The Southwest is the section where greatest damage has been reported, and the showers came in the sections where greatest need has been claimed. The Illinois Grain Dealers' Association claimed a condition in that State of 93.5, with only 9 reports out of 532 complaining of lateness and only 6 of drought. The visible decreased 162,000 bushels, against 124,000 bushels decrease the previous week. Cash corn quoted: Western, No. 2, 71¾c, nominal, elevator, to arrive, cost, insurance, and freight, domestic basis, and steamer nominal, elevator, export basis. Sales include 7,000 bushels mahogany, 62½c, delivered; 5,000 bushels fresh shelled No. 3 yellow, 72½c, delivered.

Oats were weaker, feeling the influence of the decline in other grains and the liberal interior movement. The visible increased 442,000 bushels. Late the market was somewhat steadier on covering. Thrashing returns continue optimistic. Cash oats quoted: Natural white, 46@48c; white clipped, 48@50c.

Provisions were active and higher. The live hog movement was disappointing and there were further complaints of the quality of the hogs, and the statement of stocks at Chicago showed continued small totals, indicating distribution of product about equal to the production.

COTTON.

It was a rather exciting day in cotton, with the close showing but moderate net change. Prices were strong early on buying and evening up in apprehension of an unfavorable Government report. The report, while showing a loss of 5.2 for the month and a present condition of 75.5 compared with a ten-year average of 79.4, was not considered at the time the report was issued as bullish, and prices broke about 20 points from the high. Trade was active. Estimates on the possible meaning of the report varied from about 10,700,000 bales up to 12,000,000 bales. Argument was made that no big crop was ever raised on a condition less than 83 for the Aug. 1 conditions, although it is equally true that the crop of 1902 and the crop of 1906 were raised with a condition below 80. The 1905 crop was raised with a condition of 74.9. While these crops were small, only about 10,700,000 bales, they were on a small acreage, and yield per acre was good. Since the Government report of July 25 was made up the weather has been dry and hot in Oklahoma and Texas. These two States have about 12,000,000 acres, and material damage is said to have resulted from the heat. In other sections of the belt where the acreage growing is about 21,000,000 acres, the conditions have been much more favorable than previously for both cultivation and growth. The trade appears to admit that the crop is not likely at the best to be a bumper one, while unfavorable conditions the rest of the season might make another small crop. As it stands the crop promises less than an average outturn.

COFFEE.

Coffee showed a steady tone at the opening prices, being unchanged to 5 points higher, but late selling to realize profits resulted in a slightly heavier feeling, and final prices were 1 to 5 points net lower. Total sales were 28,250 bags, of which 6,000 were switches from September to the later positions. Havre was ½ to ¾f higher early, but later declined ¼, and at the close was ¼ to ½f net higher. Hamburg was unchanged, and in Brazil the Rio market was unchanged and Santos was 50 reis higher. Smaller warehouse deliveries abroad than anticipated, together with the recent recount in Rio stocks, have resulted in raising of the estimates on the increase in the visible supply, which it is now expected will show a gain of about 500,000 bags. The visible supply of Brazilian coffee in and afloat for the United States is 3,336,304 bags, compared with 3,573,759 last year and 3,321,682 two years ago.

COTTON CONDITION LOW

Short Covering and Rains in Corn Belt Offset Cotton Showing on Stock Exchange—More Gold Engaged.

In spite of the Government cotton report showing, with two exceptions the lowest condition figure in force at this season in twenty years, prices advanced sharply on the Stock Exchange yesterday. At the close of the trading active shares disclosed gains of 2 points or so over Monday's final prices and 3 to 5 points as compared with the low levels touched in the course of the heavy selling of the first hour of business. Much of the improvement indicated in this rise was due doubtless to the news of the engagement of some $3,500,000 gold in London for import and to advices from the West asserting that a definite end had been put to the long-continued drought in Nebraska and Kansas by the heavy rains which visited these regions over night. There was another factor in the movement, however, which, although not mentioned in the news of the day, was of direct effect. Ever since it became known a week ago that a group of financial interests concerned with railroad shares had been compelled to seek relief from the burden under which they were struggling, Wall Street has been busied making selections of other coteries of industrial and railroad folk who might possibly be compelled to seek similar relief. The development of weakness in an unsuspected quarter afforded presumptive evidence of embarrassment in many others, and there has come about, therefore, a situation inviting either complete aloofness from the market or confident and general short selling. Yesterday morning the securities in which one of the groups subjected to speculations of this sort is heavily interested displayed a degree of strength which gave point to banking assurances that no trouble whatever might be looked for in this direction, owing to the elimination of certain weakly held accounts. As a result, shorts rushed to cover; a fair amount of investment buying of the speculative kind followed, and the market turned upward quickly, rising steadily to the day's close under the continued impetus from buying of this sort. Final prices were in practically all cases the highest of the day.

While the cotton report with its condition of 75.5 on July 25 shows a loss of 5 points as compared with June, it is 3½ points up from the figure at this time a year ago, and covering as it does an area under cultivation larger by 900,000 acres than last year the indications are for a crop of around 12,000,000 bales with favorable weather henceforth. Earlier estimates ranged about the 11,000,000 bale mark. On a very much smaller acreage in 1907 a condition of 75 at this time of the year produced a crop of over 11,600,000 bales, so that granted immunity from early frosts there is no good reason why this year's larger acreage should not produce a substantial crop. It will be less than had been hoped for and less than consumptive capacity, but it will not be, at least on present conditions, anything like a failure. Now that Kansas and Nebraska have received much needed rainfall, the same statement can probably be made with equal assurance regarding the corn crop of these two great producing States. As corn everywhere else is in the best of shape a crop above the average is within the possibilities.

The $3,500,000 gold engaged in London yesterday by our bankers accounts for all save $1,000,000 of the amount brought in from South Africa on the regular weekly consignment. More interesting even than the willingness of the Bank of England to permit this gold to come to this side without contest was the equally friendly act of the Bank in forwarding during the course of the day $1,675,000 gold to South America. It will be remembered that South American demands upon us last year and early in the present year made serious inroads upon our holdings of the metal. It is therefore reassuring to find in the present instance that the English bank is prepared to assume the burden of supplying the demand from that source. The local banks reported another gain from the Sub-Treasury on routine transactions and through the receipt of payment for gold brought in last week, but held up owing to a change of administration in the local assay office. In all these matters there is, of course, ample evidence of the strengthening of reserves at this centre.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—Early recessions were followed by stagnation on the local Stock Exchange this morning, and thereafter, although the tone became decidedly firmer, transactions were few and far between, being confined chiefly to Lehigh Valley and the arbitrage issues. The same house which was credited with heavy purchases of "Valley" last week was again a conspicuous buyer to-day, lifting the price to 73 at the close.

Some Sharp Upturns in Coppers Follows Better Feeling on 'Change.

MIAMI SHOWS STRENGTH

Rises 1¼ Points from Opening and Closes ⅞ Up—Giroux Closes ¼ Above Opening.

The strength of the inside market was reflected in sharp upturns in a number of the Curb issues. Miami rose from 19 to 20¼, and closed at 19⅞, after sales of 4,100 shares. Giroux recovered some of the ground lost in recent markets, rising from 6 to 6¼ on sales of 3,000 shares. Greene-Cananea sold 1,000 shares from 6⅝ to 6¾. Goldfield Consolidated, after minor fluctuations, closed even with the opening, at 8⅜. Transactions were reported at 4,700.

Transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with opening, high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Tuesday.

A big drive-in of the shorts took place on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, with the way stocks were bid for on the advance indicating very plainly the overextended position of the bears. The advices from the West of rains in the corn belt exerted a favorable influence, commission houses reporting that the improved weather conditions had stimulated considerable odd-lot buying by customers. Sales of all stocks were large, totaling 121,400 shares, with fifty-one different issues represented on the list.

Gold Taken for New York.

Out of yesterday's gold arrivals in London this market obtained $3,750,000, of which $3,250,000 was engaged by Lazard Frêres and $500,000 by L. von Hoffmann & Co. The belief prevails in banking circles that this market will continue to get a large share of the weekly installments of gold set down in London, so long, at least, as the Bank of England does not evince a disposition to obtain a share of this gold. While it is not suggested that anything like an agreement exists between our bankers and the Bank of England in respect to these gold takings, it is the disposition of the bankers engaged in this movement to consider the wishes of the English Bank, and if that institution should in coming weeks seek a share of this gold there would be a disposition on the part of the bankers here, it is said, not to actively compete for the gold against the Bank. This attitude of course, is begotten of the desire of the New York bankers to avoid the possibility of making our gold imports a source of annoyance to the English money market.

Good Corn News.

The favorable effect upon the outlook for the corn crop of the rains which were reported in some sections of the corn belt yesterday was reflected in a decline of about 1½ cents a bushel in the price of corn. Both Kansas and Nebraska, where rain was much needed by the corn area, were visited with fairly heavy rains, which put a check, according to advices from those States, upon the damage which the recent hot, dry weather had been doing to corn. In other directions, too, favorable advices regarding the crops reached this city. The latest advices received by some Eastern headquarters of the Northwestern roads is that present indications are that South Dakota and Minnesota will send to market this year much nearer a normal yield of Spring wheat than was thought possible a few weeks ago, when estimates then current put the probable yield of Spring wheat in South Dakota at 60 per cent. of an average crop and in Minnesota at 70 per cent. Because of this year's increased acreage and of the excellent quality of most of the wheat, it is now said that not far from a normal yield will be shown in these States. In the same quarters it is said, however, that in North Dakota, which suffered most from the drought, the yield of Spring wheat will not exceed the recent estimates of 50 per cent. of an average crop.

Wages on the Western Roads.

The demands for increased wages now being formulated by the engineers on the Western railroads will not lead, an executive of one of the lines largely concerned in these prospective demands, said yesterday, to any trouble between the men and the railways. He pointed out that a grant of higher wages to these men was a foregone conclusion, and the only question to be settled, therefore, was the extent of the increase which the railroads will allow. On this score he said that the engineers have generally been reasonable in their demands and there was therefore less likelihood of a failure of the men and the railroads to reach an understanding. In any event arbitration, he said, would offer the solution should it turn out that the railroads and the engineers cannot agree on the percentage of increase which the men will get. This latest wage problem brings forward the fact, however, that the matter of wages is still one which demands further concessions by the railroads for such classes of labor and in such sections of the country as were not affected by the wage increases granted in recent months.

Sloss-Sheffield's Position.

President Maben of the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company was quoted yesterday as saying that despite flooded mines and consequent higher mining costs, coming at a time of rock bottom pig iron prices, the dividend for the period had nearly been earned. There was no reason for passing or curtailing the dividend, he said, except in the wishes of a group of speculators, who have been industrious in talking pessimistically about the property. Mr. Maben went on to say that the company owed no money and besides its surplus had about 45,000 tons of ore stored, which is clear, but what, evidently, most interested the President of the company was that it should be made plain that there was nothing the matter but rumors.

A Reminder of 1907.

The interesting information was had in banking circles yesterday that back of the sales of large blocks of Lackawanna and other stocks made last week by a man prominent in Wall Street affairs was the story of a warning given to this man in 1907, when he found himself in a difficult position, that if he was taken care of then he should take the first opportunity that presented itself to put his affairs in such shape that he would be independent of the money market. He was taken care of during the panic, but when things straightened themselves out in 1908 he held on to his holdings upon which he was borrowing money and recently, when the banks began calling in money, he found himself in very much the same position he was in in 1907. This time the only assistance he was able to command was in the shape of offers to take over his extensive holdings of some of the choicest stocks known to investors. He had no alternative but to let go.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—America obtained $3,000,000 out of the $4,500,000 worth of gold available in the open market to-day. The rest of the supply was taken for India and the Continent. The price was a half-penny higher.

Money was plentiful and discount rates were steady to-day.

With Wall Street weak and further Continental liquidation in mining shares, the stock market reopened heavy and generally lower, foreign rails and consols being the only steady exceptions.

American securities opened dull and slightly lower. Later Chesapeake & Ohio led a further decline on fears of a reduction in the dividend, and the New York opening added to the heaviness. Repurchases in the late dealings caused a partial recovery, and the market closed steadier.

Bar silver steady, 24 9-16d per ounce.

Money, 1 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 1⅞ per cent.; for three months' bills 2⅛ per cent.

Bullion amounting to £335,000 was withdrawn from the Bank of England to-day for shipment to South America.

Bar gold, 77s 9¼d; American eagles, 76s 5d.

Gold premium at Madrid, 7.80; at Lisbon, 7.50.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—Trading was dull and prices were weaker on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 97f 10c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 20½c for checks.

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—Trading was dull on the Boerse to-day.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 44½ pfennigs for checks.

Money, 3½ per cent.

Private discount rates, 3⅛ per cent.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following trade opportunities abroad. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to.

5,293. AUTOMOBILES FOR ARMY USE.—An American Consul reports that a European Government is contemplating the purchase of quite a number of automobiles, not the armored type for actual fighting purposes, but for transportation and scouting purposes. The Consul states that a high-class American machine would stand a good chance for preferment to the extent of several orders merely for the purpose of trial, and these might lead to a large order six months hence; consequently American manufacturers who are interested should take note before it is too late to demonstrate their product and make preparations accordingly.

5,295. RUBBER AND COTTON.—A report from an American Consul in a European country states that a firm in his district requests the names of American shippers of raw rubber and cotton. The applicants will pay cash in the United States and correspondence in English will be acceptable.

5,296. PETROL ENGINE FOR IRRIGATION PURPOSES.—A well-known South African merchant of good standing advises an American Consular officer that he is desirous of securing an agency for a reliable low horse-power petrol engine suitable for irrigation purposes. It should be up to ten or twelve horse power.

5,297. PROPELLERS FOR MOTOR BOATS.—An American Consular officer reports that an engineering firm in his district is desirous of ascertaining the name of the manufacturer of Roper safety propeller for use on motor boats, with full particulars as to prices, discounts, &c.

5,298. MACHINERY AND WIRE FENCING.—Communication from an American export firm advising that one of its friends in the Philippines desires to receive printed matter and prices on agricultural machinery, wire fencing, and moving-picture machines. The concern is reputed to be in good standing, and correspondence preferably should be in Spanish.

5,299. AGENCY FOR AMERICAN NOVELTIES.—An American Consular officer in a Latin-American country reports that a local business man will be glad to receive the exclusive agency for the country in which he is located of all manufacturers of all kinds of novelties. He already represents firms in the United States dealing in sewing machines, kerosene heaters, typewriter ribbons, carbon paper, and other lines. His business is wholesale and retail.

5,300. LOW-PRICED AUTOMOBILES.—A business man in a European country advises an American Consul that he is anxious to secure the agency for low-priced American automobiles that are able to withstand rough roads, good hill climbers being essential. Correspondence may be in English.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 2.—The local market did not exhibit much activity to-day. The prices were steady but the demand was slow. There were only 410 shares of stock sold and $25,100 bonds were exchanged. There was again a good demand for United Railways Securities, with prices ruling unchanged from last quotation. On a small scale of Seaboard three-year 5s there was a jump of nearly a point over previous price. Baltimore City 5s held their own at 104. Sales—Stocks, 410; bonds, $25,100.

To Holders of First Mortgage 4 Per Cent. Fifty-Year Gold Bonds of Above-named Company.

The undersigned have consented to act as a Protective Committee to safeguard the interests of First Mortgage Bondholders, and have issued a Circular Letter explanatory of the urgent necessity for immediate action on the part of bondholders and holders of certificates for bonds issued by the Central Trust Company of New York.

New Electric Contract For Rio de Janeiro.

Contract executed between the Mayoralty of the Federal District and the Companhia Brasileira de Energia Electrica, represented by its President, Mr. Eduardo Guinle, for the installation in the streets of the City of Rio de Janeiro, as well as in the rural zone of said District of canalizations for the supply of electric power for general use, for domestic use, industrial purposes, etc., according to the terms of the Municipal Decree No. 1001, of October 21st, 1904.

On the 27th of April, 1910, at the Mayor's Office and before the Colonel Innocencio Serzedello Correia, Mayor of the Federal District, and Mr. Jeronymo Francisco Coelho, Commissioner of Public Works and Highways of said office, personally appeared Mr. Eduardo Guinle as President of the Companhia Brasileira de Energia Electrica, to sign the present contract, executed by and between the Mayoralty of the Federal District and the above said company, for the installation in the streets and other places of the City of Rio de Janeiro, as well as in the highways of the rural zone of said District of the necessary canalizations for the supply of electric power for the general public use, domestic use, industrial purposes, etc., according to the terms of the Municipal Decree No. 1001, of October 21st, 1904, under the following conditions:

1st. To the Companhia Brasileira de Energia Electrica is granted, according to the terms of the Municipal Decree No. 1001, of October 21st, 1904, during the term of ninety years, the necessary permission for the installation of a distributing line of electric energy in this District, the Company being allowed to make use of the streets, squares and public highways for this purpose.

2nd. The term for the inauguration of the electric power supply will be from the date commencing with the signing of this contract, and expiring on the seventh of June, nineteen hundred and fifteen, which term will be irrevocable, unless there should occur a case of force majeure.

3rd. Even if the works are completed before the date stated in Clause 2, the grantee will not be allowed to supply electric power of hydraulic generation before the seventh of June, nineteen hundred and fifteen, said Company having, however, the right of anticipating the supply of electric energy, if same will be of thermic generation.

4th. For the purpose of the above condition the grantee will be allowed to build one, or more, power houses of thermic generation, and it will be optional for said Company to maintain same, after having started the distribution of hydro-electric energy, according to the terms of Clause No. 3.

5th. This concession is granted under the condition that the rights of third parties must be considered, especially the privilege enjoyed by the Rio de Janeiro Tramway, Light & Power Company, Ltd., for the supply of hydro-electric power in the Federal District, up to the seventh of June, nineteen hundred and fifteen; however, it is to be understood that the grantee, even before that date, can supply hydro-electric energy if the exclusive rights of the Rio de Janeiro Tramway, Light & Power Company, Ltd., will be discontinued or waived by this corporation, or the same be so compelled by a judicial action proving the invalidity of its rights.

6th. In the streets, squares, highways and public grounds, where there are aerial or underground lines for the distribution of hydro-electric power belonging to the Rio de Janeiro Tramway, Light & Power Company, Ltd., the grantee will be allowed to install its own canalizations providing no damage shall be done to the former's property.

7th. This contract is executed under the condition that the rights of third parties must be considered, without said grantee, or any of its successors, having the right of asking for any indemnization, whatever, from the Municipality, and if, perchance, third parties suffering loss or not will prevent its execution, all legal expenses will be met exclusively by said grantee, in case said parties, or the Mayoralty, will have to take steps to remove all judicial obstacles that may arise for the execution of the works, which is the object of this contract. In the terms of the present condition are included all injunctions that may be brought for the execution of this contract, either by the Government of the Union, or by the State of Rio de Janeiro.

8th. The grantee will supply, with a rebate of twenty per cent. on the price, the electric energy needed by the Municipality for any kind of its works.

9th. The binding conditions of this contract will be applied to any enterprise, corporation or company legally organized by the grantee to which the present contract will be transferred.

10th. The present concession will be cancelled, if the inauguration of the electric energy supply will not be accomplished within the term stated in the second condition, unless there should occur any case of force majeure.

11th. The grantee will be entitled to charge the following prices, per unit, of electric power for a monthly supply, to wit: up to fifteen hundred kilowatts, hour, one hundred and twenty-five reis ($0.041); from fifteen hundred up to three thousand kilowatts, hour, one hundred reis ($0.033); from three thousand up to seven thousand kilowatts, hour, ninety reis ($0.029); from seven thousand up to fifteen thousand kilowatts, hour, eighty reis ($0.026); from fifteen thousand up to thirty thousand kilowatts, hour, sixty reis ($0.019); from thirty thousand up to seventy-five thousand kilowatts, hour, forty-five reis ($0.014); and for a consumption over seventy-five thousand kilowatts, hour, thirty-five reis ($0.0115).

12th. The grantee will bind itself to pay the amount of nine contos and six hundred thousand reis ($3,200.00) for the fiscalization of the works and services in connection with this concession, making, as well, a deposit with the Municipal Treasury of twenty-five contos of reis ($8,334.00) as a guarantee for the execution of the present contract.

13th. All the technical conditions of the concession given to the Rio de Janeiro Tramway, Light & Power Company, Ltd., will be taken in totum as though they were here expressed, as they are mentioned in the Seventh Clause, letters a to z, and in Clause Twenty-four as well as in the stipulations of Clause Nine (arbitrage); tenth (amendments for infraction of contract); fifteenth (building of transformer sub-stations); seventeenth (inspection of the grantee's wattmeter); twentieth (incorporation of the approved plans of the contract); twenty-third (means for collecting from the consumers); twenty-eighth (transferring of the concession); thirty-third (rights of expropriation); thirty-fifth (reversion of the property at the end of the concession); thirty-seventh (preference, in equal conditions, for the exploration of the system at the concession's maturity); which are all stated in the contract executed by and between the Mayoralty and Mr. Alexander Mackenzie, on May twentieth, nineteen hundred and five.

14th. The property's reversion, as it is stated in the previous condition, consists of the system for distribution of energy, built according to the terms of the present concession, including its respective accessories.

15th. In case any obligation should not be fulfilled, and for which no special penalty has been mentioned, the grantee will have to pay the fine of one hundred thousand reis ($33.34). COTTON CONDITION SHOWS A DECLINE

Crop 75.5 Per Cent. July 25, Against 80.7 Last Month—Decrease No Surprise.

RAINS WERE DETRIMENTAL

Last Week's Weather Favored the Eastern Cotton Belt, but Drought Is Severe in Other Parts.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The average condition of the cotton crop on July 25 was 75.5 per cent. of a normal, according to a bulletin of the Crop Reporting Board of the Department of Agriculture, issued to-day. The average condition was 80.7 on June 25, 71.9 on July 25 last year, 83 in 1908, 75 in 1907, and 79.4 the ten-year average.

Conditions by States were:

State.	1910.	Ten-Year Average.
Virginia	80	81
North Carolina	71	80
South Carolina	70	80
Georgia	70	81
Florida	70	83
Alabama	71	78
Mississippi	71	78
Louisiana	69	78
Texas	82	79
Arkansas	73	80
Tennessee	76	82
Missouri	72	84
Oklahoma	87	81
California	98	..

While the average in the condition of the cotton crop fell below the average for June, when it was 80.7, the decrease did not surprise experts who have kept informed of the conditions that have prevailed in the cotton belt. The heavy rains which occurred east of the Mississippi during the month of July were known to be detrimental to the crop, so that the decrease in the average of the condition was not expected.

In its review for the week ended yesterday the Weather Bureau, in its weekly bulletin issued to-day, says:

"Over the eastern portion of the cotton belt much needed warmth and sunshine prevailed, and although generally dry, it was on the whole probably the most favorable week of the season. In the middle portion of the cotton belt conditions were generally very favorable, sunshine and warmth prevailed, and showers were not too frequent.

"Over Texas and Oklahoma high temperatures, drying winds, and lack of rainfall were very trying to vegetation of all kinds. Drought is becoming very severe in large portions of Oklahoma, and more moisture is now badly needed over most of Texas.

"In the western portion of the corn belt, including Kansas, Nebraska, and South Dakota, exceedingly high temperatures, with hot, dry, southerly winds, prevailed during much of the week, greatly intensifying drought conditions previously existing in many portions of those States. High temperatures also prevailed over Iowa, Missouri, and Arkansas, but some good showers occurred and conditions were generally favorable, although rain is now needed in many portions of Iowa and Missouri.

"In Illinois, Indiana, and Wyoming, States of the Ohio Valley, the weather was generally very favorable, except that some damage occurred from heavy rains and winds in portions of Kentucky, Southern Indiana, and Northern West Virginia.

"Over the Atlantic Coast States from Virginia northward the week was dry and warm, some local showers occurring in the more western portions of the States, but the ground is now getting very dry and severe drought prevails in portions of Maryland, Delaware, and New Jersey. Good showers occurred over portions of New England, giving much-needed relief.

"Over the great ranges of the West hot weather continued, and although some rains occurred, the amounts were generally too small to afford any permanent relief, except in Arizona and small portions of the adjoining States, where the usual Summer rains have proved very beneficial.

"In the irrigated districts of the West the weather has continued favorable for the agricultural and fruit interests, although water is generally becoming scarce in California and is getting low in other districts."

The Government's estimate of 75.5 as the condition of the cotton crop on July 25 was under the most hopeful of the private estimates which had been current in advance of the publication of the Government's figures, but was considerably above the National Ginners' estimate, which placed the condition of the crop under 73. On the showing made in the Government's report it was estimated in cotton trade circles yesterday that a crop of as much as 12,000,000 bales might be hoped for. This forecast, however, took no specific account of the damage which is believed to have been wrought by unfavorable weather since the date as of which the Washington figures were compiled. Texas in particular is reported to have suffered from excessive heat, and hence the condition of the cotton crop to-day, it is generally believed, must be below the figures compiled by the Government under the date of July 25.

In two years since 1899 there has been improvement in the condition of cotton between the July 25 and the Aug. 25 returns, but in seven out of the last nine years there has been deterioration, which for the whole nine years has averaged very close to 6 per cent. decline in condition between the end of July and the end of August. Beyond that date until the final report there has been deterioration in every one of these years with the exception of 1905.

The cotton trade had been counting on a cotton crop this year of as much as 13,000,000 bales in the hope that the output of the staple this year would go part way at least toward offsetting the effect upon the cotton trade of the very short crop last year, when the yield was only 10,350,000 bales, which was about 3,500,000 bales less than the 1908 crop. Moreover, it was pointed out yesterday, on the basis of yesterday's Government report the hope of even a 12,000,000-bale crop this year is based on the assumption of favoring conditions from this time on, and so far since the making up of this report the conditions at least in Texas have not been favorable.

The cotton market showed considerable irregularity yesterday, but at the close all but the August option showed small declines from Monday's closing prices. The declines in the principal options beyond August varied from 4 to 8 points, while August closed 2 points higher. Prices rose in the morning, receded on the publication of the Government report, and then rose again until profit taking was again encountered, and there was another reaction, which left the market at the close a little below the final figures of the previous day.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

The Decorative Glass Company was defeated yesterday in an attempt before the Board of United States General Appraisers to obtain lower duty on small incandescent electric light bulbs composed of decorated blown glass. Metal also entered into the construction of the bulbs, but, according to General Appraiser Sharretts, who writes the decision for the board, decorated glass is the component of chief value.

Duty was assessed by Collector Loeb on the articles at the rate of 60 per cent. under Paragraph 98, which provides, among other things, for "articles in chief value of glass." The importer set up the contention that the merchandise should be admitted at 45 per cent. as being "manufactures of glass" under the provisions of Paragraph 109, which specifies goods of this character. The General Appraiser says, on the findings of the board, the protest must be overruled.

Long chains made of gun metal links set at intervals with imitation precious stones are held to be dutiable properly as "jewelry," according to a decision handed down by T. S. Sharretts of the general board. L. W. Levy & Co., the importers, set up that the articles should be allowed to enter at rates lower than those assessed by the Collector. Classification was claimed as manufactures in chief value of metal, at 45 per cent.; also as manufacture of glass at 45 per cent., and at 10 or 20 per cent., as being either unmanufactured or manufactured articles unenumerated. The return of duty made by the Collector is affirmed.

The board overrules a protest filed by B. Denike, who objected to a return made by customs officials at Laredo, Texas. The merchandise consists of importations of zinc ore in which it is alleged that the return of lead content, as made by the Government officials, is excessive. This was the only issue raised in the protest. General Appraiser Howell, who writes the decision for the board, says that the ore is dutiable only on the lead contained in the article. The decision says that inasmuch as there was no irregularity either in the method employed upon analysis or in the sampling to determine the lead content, the finding of the Government officers must stand.

VALUE OF IMPORTS UP.

Henry M. Clapp, Acting Appraiser of the Port, gave out yesterday a statement showing the transactions in the Appraiser's office for July, the first month of the Government's fiscal year. The total appraised value of foreign merchandise aggregated $73,894,994, as compared with $69,265,948 in the corresponding month one year ago.

The official value of gems of all kinds passed by the Appraiser's office last month amounted to $3,026,115, as compared with $5,112,957 in July, 1909, and $1,249,256, the same month of 1908. One hundred and thirty-three automobiles of the appraised value of $320,317 were imported in comparison with 174 cars valued at $421,661 in July, 1909.

Mr. Clapp reports that he received last month 63,209 packages, while in July, 1909, the receipts aggregated 64,110. In 1908 they were 54,665. It is stated that invoice and appraisement orders were received to the number of 34,935, which was an increase over July, 1909.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

J. M. FISKE & CO.—Judge Hough has made allowances in the bankruptcy proceedings of J. M. Ficke & Co., stockbrokers, of 42 Broadway, to Irving L. Ernst, receiver, of $12,500, Hays, Hershfield & Wolf, attorneys for the receiver, $12,500; Standard Audit Company, $5,000 for services, and $100 each to three appraisers.

HUNTOON SPRING WATER COMPANY.—Milton C. Roach, receiver in bankruptcy of the Huntoon Spring Water Company of Thirty-fourth Street and Broadway and at Ellenville, N. Y., has obtained authority to continue the business for thirty days longer. A committee of creditors is actively engaged in carrying out a plan for reorganization of the company.

LOUIS SEIGEL & CO.—Louis Seigel, doing business as Louis Seigel & Co., manufacturers of clothing at 47 Canal Street, has made a settlement with creditors at 40 cents on the dollar, payable 10 cents each in three, six, nine, and twelve months, and yesterday Judge Hough dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed against him on June 23. Liabilities were $20,000.

MORRIS GOTTESMAN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Morris Gottesman, manufacturing furrier of 34 West Twenty-seventh Street, by these creditors: L. Friedman & Co., $119; Louis Kazurer, $405, and Joseph Lessler, $71. It was alleged that he is insolvent, made preferential payments of $600, transferred merchandise and accounts of $1,000, and on July 30 admitted in writing his inability to pay his debts. Liabilities are estimated at $5,000 and assets $1,000.

FRANK C. BEETSON.—Frank C. Beetson, proprietor of a roadhouse known as the Port Chester Inn at Port Chester, N. Y., has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $2,653 and nominal assets of $991, consisting of cash, $10; stock, &c., $777; steam table, boiler, and gas stove, $145, and accounts, $50. Of the above assets he claims exemptions amounting to $285.

It was alleged that they are insolvent, made preferential payments, and removed stock or the proceeds thereof $500. The business was started in September, 1906, by the firm of Flaumenbaum, Schneider & Tanenbaum, and Mr. Schneider withdrew Jan. 1, 1910.

STONY CREEK COAL AND COKE COMPANY.—Judgment for $10,189 was entered yesterday against the Stony Creek Coal and Coke Company of 17 Battery Place in favor of the Elkins Coal and Coke Company of 1 Broadway and Morgantown, West Va., on a note made by the Stony Creek Coal and Coke Company in this city of May 18, 1908, for $9,000, payable to the order of V. H. Youngman & Co., who indorsed it and delivered it to the plaintiff. The summons was served on Harry V. Youngman, Treasurer of the company. The company, it is said, formerly had property near Johnstown, Penn.

W. H. CALLAHAN.—Judge Hand has granted a discharge from bankruptcy to W. H. Callahan, contractor and truckman of 1,529 Parker Avenue, who filed a petition in bankruptcy on March 17, 1909, with liabilities of $10,829 and no assets. Peter B. Olney, referee in bankruptcy, had recommended that a discharge be denied on the ground of concealing property from his Trustee. On a motion to confirm the referee's report the objecting creditor did not appear, and the Judge granted the discharge for failure to press the opposition. This is said to be the first case of the kind in this district.

FRED C. MUSGILLER.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Fred C. Musgiller, wholesale dealer in bakers and confectioners' supplies at 382 Washington Street, by these creditors: Thomas Stokes & Son, $451; Wood & Selick, $28, and Birdsong Brothers, $21. It was alleged that he is insolvent, made preferential payments and admitted in writing inability to pay his debts. Judge Hough appointed John Gruenberg receiver under a bond of $1,000. It was stated that the assets are $3,000, consisting of stock and fixtures $2,000 and accounts $1,000. He has been in business twenty-three years, and two years ago claimed to have a capital of $23,000. From January, 1903, to July, 1908, he was President of the Musgiller-Mangels Company, with a capital stock of $100,000.

LEGISLATIVE BOARD INVITES COMPLAINTS

FIRST HEARING ON AUG. 30

Investigation Is Expected to be More Sweeping in Scope Than Machine Leaders Had Anticipated.

When the legislative committee appointed to inquire into alleged corrupt practices in the Legislature and the State Department met yesterday to make preparations for the public hearings soon to begin there were developments indicating that the proposed investigation may be a far more serious and thorough affair than the machine element at the Capitol had intended.

It was learned yesterday that M. Linn Bruce, before he consented to accept the place as chief counsel for the committee, insisted that he have a free hand not only in the selection of associate counsel and all other functionaries who are to assist in the prospective graft hunt, but in the conduct of the investigation itself, and that he carried his points. Moreover, it was said that certain leaders, representing both the Republican and Democratic organizations, who recently had brought pressure to bear on some members of the committee, with a view of curtailing the scope of the investigation, had met with discouragement.

The meeting of the committee yesterday was held behind closed doors at the Murray Hill Hotel. It lasted for almost three hours. After it adjourned it was announced officially that the first public hearing, to take evidence, would be held in the Aldermanic Chamber at the City Hall on Tuesday, Aug. 30, at 11 o'clock in the morning.

The principal business before the committee yesterday was the selection of an assistant counsel. For this post Alfred Hurrell, counsel of the State Insurance Department, was chosen. Mr. Hurrell, before he became identified with the work of this department, was an Assistant District Attorney of Erie County and a member of the faculty of the Law Department in the University of Buffalo. He has made an enviable record in the Insurance Department, where he was the right hand man of State Superintendent of Insurance William Hotchkiss in the latter's recent investigation of the fire insurance scandals and the general investigation into the workings of the industrial insurance concerns which has been conducted by the department for some time. Mr. Bruce said yesterday that this would render the services of Mr. Hurrell, who will serve with the committee on a leave of absence from the Insurance Department, very valuable, inasmuch as these investigations are both to be followed up by the graft investigating committee under the resolution which created it.

Mr. Bruce yesterday reiterated with the greatest emphasis that in as far as it depended upon him, he was determined to lift the lid regardless of whom the disclosures might affect. In a statement given out after the meeting Mr. Bruce and the committee joined in an appeal for the co-operation of the public. Here is the statement in part:

> The committee invites the co-operation of all citizens in assisting in the progress of its work, and to that end will welcome any charges relative to corrupt practices of public officials, and information concerning any abuses which may be known to exist in industrial life insurance and fire, casualty, marine, and other forms of insurance than ordinary life. All persons desiring to lodge charges, complaints, and information as to corrupt practices or the other matters referred to may do so with the counsel to the committee, the Hon. M. Linn Bruce, 55 Liberty Street, New York, or with the Chairman of the Committee at the Murray Hill Hotel, New York, or at Potsdam, St. Lawrence County, N. Y. Any member of the committee will also receive and report any matter filed with him.
> Attention is called to the fact that the only limitation to the filing of charges is that a charge of official misconduct against a candidate for nomination or election to an elective State office must be received before the first day of September, 1910. This does not, however, limit the committee in any way from proceeding to the fullest extent in the investigation of any such charges after that date, and charges against persons other than candidates for elective offices will be received at any time during the existence of the committee.

While the taking of testimony is four weeks off, there were many indications yesterday that the activities of the committee had begun already. While the meeting was in progress James W. Cunningham, who was a partner in the defunct brokerage firm of Ellingwood & Cunningham, appeared in response to a subpoena. It was in the books of this firm, in which G. Tracy Rogers, the traction lobbyist, appeared, that names of legislators influential at the Capitol appeared in such numbers as to pique the curiosity of State Superintendent of Insurance Hotchkiss in his investigation of the fire insurance lobby. Mr. Hotchkiss tried in vain to get control of the books.

When Mr. Cunningham appeared before the committee yesterday he assured Chairman Merritt and Mr. Bruce that the books would be at the disposal of the committee at any time they were wanted. At the present time the books are kept in a barn in New Jersey which is being watched by State detectives of New York. Mr. Bruce said yesterday there were some truck loads of ledgers and records.

Another development giving an inkling of the trend the investigation is likely to take in its early stages was furnished by the appearance of a clerk from the office of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company with a large bundle containing books and documentary evidence which he brought in response to a subpoena duces tecum issued by the committee.

Mr. Bruce said the books contained stock lists of the New York Electric Vehicle and Transportation Company and the New York Transportation Company. The latter was a holding concern for the Fifth Avenue stage line properties. In the Allds investigation it was shown that the firm of Ellingwood & Cunningham had sold large blocks of stocks for a number of legislators in April, 1900, on a rising market, when a bill was pending before the Legislature giving an omnibus franchise to the stage company, calculated to boost the value of its stock immensely. The bill was railroaded through the Assembly, which in those days was dominated by S. Fred Nixon, the Speaker. It actually was rushed through second and third readings within an hour over the protest of conscientious members of the lower house. This move was engineered by "Lou" Bedell, Odell's Assemblyman, who, that year, was Chairman of the Railroad Committee.

The books and records already in the committee's possession and others that may be subpoenaed later will be examined by expert accountants. Announcement was made yesterday that L. H. Conant, of the firm of L. H. Conant & Co. of 30 Broad Street, had been retained in that capacity by the committee.

The services of an actuary to aid in the difficult task of investigating all insurance companies others than those doing a life insurance business, which under the wording of the concurrent resolution creating the committee will be one of its functions, have been obtained also. In that capacity Prof. Albert W. Whitney, who for the last eleven years has occupied the Chair of Mathematics and Insurance at the University of California, has been engaged. Prof. Whitney is one of the foremost experts in the country. It was explained yesterday that the committee went so far from this city in its quest for an actuary in order to procure the co-operation of a man free from all local entanglements.

While the plan and procedure of the committee and such important details as the latitude to be granted to counsel appearing for witnesses or persons under investigation was discussed at considerable length at the meeting yesterday, the subject was not exhausted. The programme of the investigation will be taken up again at an executive meeting to be held a week from next Tuesday at the Murray Hill Hotel.

WYMAN BOY IN A HOSPITAL.

Lad Whose Parents Thought Him Hypnotized Appears to be Paralyzed.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 2.—While the strange conduct of 17-year-old Hollis J. Wyman, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Stephen W. Wyman of Cherry Valley, Mass., has not been explained, the lad was located in St. Francis's Hospital to-day, where his condition is serious. He seems paralyzed on the left side, and physicians intend making an inquiry into the cause of the lad's condition.

Assistant Prosecutor William R. Piper to-day hunted up Mrs. W. D. Starr, who lives on a farm near Pennington, and demanded to know where the boy was. He told her that her harboring of the lad would result in criminal action against her and the woman told him that the boy had gone away the previous morning in company with her son. While the Tssistant Prosecutor was looking for her boy to question him, the woman admitted that the Wyman boy had gone to a Trenton hospital.

Dr. William Wilber refuses to allow the boy to be questioned now, but the Assistant Prosecutor got out of him that he did not want to go back to his father's home.

Mrs. Starr said that he told her that he had refused to go back to Cherry Valley because his parents beat him so badly. The boy is in good hands, and the Starrs say they are not trying to hold him in any way nor have they so tried.

MET ROOSEVELT, COLLAPSED.

But It Was After Shea Ran Two Miles to Tell of Honor.

For the honor of shaking hands Monday night with Theodore Roosevelt, Tice Shea of Belvidere, N. J., nearly paid with his life. He was so eager to tell the news to his friends that he ran two and one-half miles into the city and dropped unconscious just as he was about to gasp out the great news. It took two doctors four hours to bring him around.

Shea was out in the country road watching the danger lamps which have been strung up there since the road was closed when along came Col. Roosevelt with Lawrence Abbott, son of Lyman Abbott, in their touring car, on the way to the Delaware Water Gap. They did not know the road was closed until they saw the lamps. Then they stopped as they saw Shea and asked him what to do. Suddenly one of the men in the rear seat stretched out his hand and said:

"My friend, you are shaking hands with Col. Roosevelt."

Shea was too surprised to say a word in reply, but when the car had disappeared he emerged from his trance and began his run. Shea suffers with heart disease, and he has been warned again and again against unusual exercise.

HURT IN TOY AUTO CRASH.

Ten-Year-Old's Steering Gear Went Wrong and He Ran Down a Car.

A miniature automobile accident in the Bronx last evening ended in the ten-year-old chauffeur, Vincent George of 403 East 153d Street, being carried off in an ambulance to the Lebanon Hospital, suffering from cuts about the face and knees. Something had gone wrong with his steering gear, he explained ruefully.

Driving west in 153d Street with a playmate of his own age in his scarlet toy automobile, he bore down on a Melrose Avenue trolley car that was waiting to take on passengers. He tried to turn and skirt the obstruction, but his wheels went straight forward, and his machine, a tricycle in disguise, crashed into the rear of the trolley car.

Vincent landed on his head, while his companion, who rolled out the side, took to his heels and has not been seen thereabout since.

POSTMASTER GENERAL HOME.

Mr. Hitchcock Went Abroad for a Short Rest and Found It.

After a brief trip across the Atlantic for a rest from office cares Postmaster General Hitchcock returned to New York yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse.

"I was in need of a rest after putting in some hard work over the Postal Savings Bank bill, so I slipped away," he said.

The Postmaster General watched with interest the process of chuting the mail from the steamship to the mail boat Postmaster General while the steamship was coming up the bay. On the way across he watched the handling of the mail. He would not say whether there would be any changes in the system of delivery because of his observations on shipboard.

MILK WAGON DITCHES AUTO.

One Man Fatally Hurt in a Collision at East Hackensack, N. J.

One man was probably fatally injured as the result of an automobile accident in Cedar Lane, East Hackensack, N. J., when the car, owned and driven by Howard S. Leete of Tenafly, overturned in a ditch after a collision with a milk wagon late last evening. He is James Todd of Newton, who was carried into a near-by house suffering from broken ribs and arms and internal injuries.

Patrick Hearn and John Desmond of Tenafly, who, with Leete and Todd, made up the party, all received bruises and slight scalp wounds. The driver of the milk wagon whipped up his horse and disappeared in the darkness, leaving the least hurt of the four to find his way to the home of Henry D. Cannon, where they were cared for.

VETERANS THANK SULZER.

Spanish War Survivors Acknowledge His Services for Raising the Maine.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 2.—That Spanish war veterans in their present uniforms may be mistaken for bandmasters, letter carriers, livery drivers, or bellboys is the declaration made to-day by retiring State Commander Maurice J. Simmons of New York City before the seventh annual encampment of the New York State Department of Spanish War Veterans, now in session here. The commander recommended a new regulation uniform.

Resolutions commending Representative William Sulzer for his services in connection with the proposed raising of the wreck of the Maine and his part in Congress in behalf of Cuban liberty were adopted. His name was presented for honorary membership.

THREE FIGHT IN RESTAURANT.

Proprietor Dying After a Disagreement with Two Customers.

Morris Millar, a young restaurant keeper at 331 East 101st Street, sat behind his counter looking at the row of empty tables at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. An hour later he was in the Harlem Hospital cut about the face and hands and with a knife wound in his heart that will prove fatal. Abe Epstein and Morris Malaga, respectively of 342 and 302 East 101st Street, had entered the restaurant in the meantime.

How the fight started no one knows, for the two men will not and Millar cannot speak. Attracted by the uproar Patrolman Merner found Millar unconscious and his customers cut about the face and hands. Table knives had been their weapons, and cups and plates, snatched from the counters, their missiles. Tables were overturned, leaving a picture of confusion for the reserves of the East 104th Street Station to view.

The three were placed under arrest, charged with felonious assault, and after being patched up by Dr. Fulton of the Harlem Hospital the two less seriously injured were taken to the police station. An untouched meal for two was found in disarray on the table. Epstein and Malaga are painters.

AGAIN ASK GOVERNOR TO REMOVE GRESSER

Far Rockaway Folk Find Him in Albany Defending First Attack.

SAY MAYOR RULES QUEENS

Residents of That Borough, After Visiting City Hall, Say He Defends Gresser, Lest Cassidy Return to Power.

Residents of Queens County, contemplating the strange turns which the long-prosecuted graft hunt has been taking in the last few days, have reached the conclusion that their borough is being governed at long range by Mayor Gaynor. In some the news caused confidence. Others, believing that the long-range programme is impracticable, have rebelled against it.

Leaders in this group went yesterday to Gov. Hughes to file eighteen new charges against President Gresser and to declare that an effort to manage the borough from Mayor Gaynor's office can prove at best a poor substitute for the work of reformation the people could accomplish if given a chance to exercise their power.

The day also found Gresser in Albany seeking a conference with the Governor upon the first set of charges filed by a Citizen's Committee several weeks ago. Mr. Gresser went to Albany with his son, Lawrence T. Gresser, and John N. Booth, his executive secretary, who has defended Mr. Gresser many times since he has been under fire by Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick.

The protesting committee which followed Gresser up the Hudson represented the Progress Club of Far Rockaway, a non-political organization whose Board of Governors recently voted to take an active part in politics. On the committee were Charles A. Brodek, Harry T. Hutchberger, William S. Pettit, Alois Gutwilling, Joseph L. Steinan, D. L. Starks, P. A. Conne, Julius Price, Samuel Kupie, Oliver Whitson, and Valentine W. Smith. The charges they presented to the Governor were:

That Gresser levied campaign funds among the employes of Borough Hall and that the collectors who assembled these funds were Cornelius Burke, for the Sewer Department; James H. Johnson, for the engineers, and Joseph B. Nelson for the clerks.

That he wasted public money by keeping Harry Irving on the pay roll although he did no work and tended bar in a saloon at Far Rockaway.

That he appointed corrupt subordinates and kept them in office after their corruption and incompetency had been made known to him, in some cases by their indictment.

That payments were made to Inspectors of Sewers who could not tell the location of the streets where they had been laid.

That he audited vouchers for fraudulent repairs professedly made to four contractors who were actually a railroad conductor, a saloon keeper, a laborer, and a butcher; the address given by all being that of Gresser's campaign manager, former Under Sheriff John M. Phillips.

That vouchers for postage stamps used in President Gresser's private office were repeatedly raised from $5 to $50 each.

That fraudulent bills for repairs in the Court House were issued by President Gresser personally, and a fraudulent order was issued for $9,260 for "extras" for a heating plant in the same.

That he allowed the construction of public roads for private interests, a road being built to an Edgemere hotel which contributed $250 as a bonus for the work.

The charges were filed yesterday afternoon, and it was said that still another set is being drawn up by taxpayers in Flushing, who will go to Albany in a few days to protest against using Gresser as a mouthpiece by which to govern the borough from the City Hall.

That Mayor Gaynor had decided to assume direct personal command in Queens was made known first by several Queens citizens, who interviewed him and who stated that they found him positive in his conviction that Joseph Cassidy would step in if President Gresser stepped out, and that of the two evils he thought President Gresser was decidedly the lesser.

This impression was strengthened when it was learned that the city administration was in favor of dismissing the indictment against Gresser, and that Mayor Gaynor sanctioned the course of District Attorney De Witt in arguing for its dismissal.

The Mayor's actual statement was that Mr. De Witt might be well advised in his action, as he was a judicial as well as a prosecuting officer, and was under obligations to advocate dismissal if he thought the evidence insufficient to convict.

It became known on Monday that President Gresser had a conference with Mayor Gaynor, in which he practically agreed to accept Gaynor appointees for all vacancies due to Grand Jury action or to resignations to be called for by Mayor Gaynor.

The appointment of Walter H. Bunn of Richmond Hill to succeed Joseph Sullivan, the Corona saloon keeper whose resignation as Commissioner of Public Works was asked for, was rated as the first of the Gaynor appointments, and it was said that about twenty more were scheduled to follow.

The chief interest following the developments of the last few days has been whether Queens is to see such a reformation as the City Hall has caused in the Weights and Measures Bureau, the White Light district, and the Police Department, or is to work out its own problem in its own way, with Gov. Hughes in action as to the Borough President, and Special Deputy Attorney General on the ground to see that those indicted are properly tried.

SHOOTING ENDS ROMANCE.

Poverty Came First—Then Woman Now Wounded Turned Man Out.

Mrs. Annie Bros, a middle-aged Hungarian woman, ran crying from the tenement house at 315 East Twenty-third Street yesterday afternoon, the blood streaming from a bullet wound in her face. Beneath the stairway in the hall the police found Joseph Janboros, an elderly man, with whom the woman lived. The woman was removed to Bellevue Hospital, where her condition is not serious, and the man was locked up on a charge of felonious assault.

Janboros explained that he had been a prosperous grocer in Vienna when he met the Bros woman last Fall. He says she persuaded him to sell his business and sail to America with her. All went well until his little store of capital began to dwindle hopelessly. Then, a week ago, he says, she shut the door in his face.

Yesterday he made one last appeal to her, and then, the police say he admits, he drew the revolver, which he had bought earlier in the morning.

Eludes His Nurse and Jumps from a Bridge Into the Seine.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—The body of the man who committed suicide by jumping into the Seine a few days ago has been recovered, and has been identified, according to the police, as that of a wealthy American, William Marvin.

The man was about 41 years of age. In a fit of melancholia he eluded his nurse, rushing in his nightdress to the Auteuil Bridge, from which he jumped.

FINES BOY AUTOIST $100.

Shedlinsky Ran His Car Into a Girl in Avoiding a Railroad Gate.

Charged with assault in the third degree, 18-year-old Elihu Shedlinsky was fined $100 yesterday in Special Sessions, Jamaica, L. I., for having run down a girl while he was driving his father's automobile. The boy is the son of Henry Shedlinsky, a wealthy Summer resident of Grove Avenue, Far Rockaway.

According to his own story, he was driving along Atlantic Avenue, Far Rockaway, when the gates at a crossing were lowered suddenly in front of his car. To avoid crashing into the gates he turned to the left and struck Miss Rose Bremen of Rockaway Beach, who was standing beside the gates, waiting to cross the tracks when they should open.

"Shedlinsky," said Justice Ryan, "the court is going to impose a sentence of $100 fine. If your father were before us in connection with this case I should vote to send him to the penitentiary. Any man who would turn over a powerful engine to a boy 16½ years of age, which you say was your age when you first commenced driving your father's car, hasn't the proper regard for the rights and lives of others."

THE COMMISSIONER OF WEEDS

Mr. Tully Finds Many Brooklyn Streets Overgrown and So Reports.

T. De Quincy Tully, anti-vice, anti-saloon, and anti-other things crusader, who recently was appointed by Borough President Steers of Brooklyn to be "Commissioner of Weeds, without pay," has found that Brooklyn should be known not as the "Borough of Churches" but as the "Borough of Weeds."

The office was created especially for Mr. Tully by President Steers. Mr. Tully's esthetic sense had been outraged by the presence of weeds in Brooklyn's streets. Yesterday he made his first official report. In this he named hundreds of places throughout the borough where weeds of many varieties had pushed their way up through the paving blocks and were flourishing.

A force of nine men was sent out from the Highways Department to wage war on the weeds which had been trailed down by the zealous "Commissioner" Tully. No other borough in the city has a "Commissioner of Weeds."

INVITE SUGAR WORKERS BACK.

Strike Leader Declares, However, That They're Not in Need and Won't Return

The American Sugar Refining Company yesterday sent word to its former employes through circulars printed in various languages requesting the men to return to work. When Hugh Frayne, general representative of the American Federation of Labor, saw the circular he declared that the strikers would not accept the proposal to return.

He said that the men were not in distress, as the union was taking care of them. He stated also that if the sugar company, through its representative, along with Father Farrell and Michael Regan, the mediator of the State Department of Labor, could come together, there was no doubt in his mind that the matter could be adjusted satisfactorily and the strike ended.

Everything was quiet around the sugar refineries yesterday, and new drivers were hauling the product under the protection of a large force of police.

ELEVEN HURT ON BRIDGE.

Two Collisions on Williamsburg Span Tie Up Traffic.

Two separate car collisions on the Williamsburg Bridge occurred in the rush hour yesterday morning, and besides causing injuries to nearly a dozen persons, thousands of others were inconvenienced and there was a blockade which lasted for more than half an hour. The first collision was at 7:20 o'clock, when a bridge local, carrying about fifty passengers, crashed into a crowded Ralph Avenue car on the Manhattan side of the bridge. Both cars were going down a slope, with the Ralph Avenue car in the lead.

Eight passengers—seven men and one woman—of the local car were more or less hurt by broken glass, but none seriously. While the cars behind the two colliding ones were becoming stalled, another bridge local at the Manhattan tower ran into a crowded Sumner Avenue car. Three passengers in the local car were slightly hurt. The eleven injured were attended by an ambulance surgeon from Gouverneur Hospital.

WIFE SUES J. F. MENDELS.

Charges Him with Cruelty and Marrying Her for Her Money.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., Aug. 2.—Mrs. Emma W. Mendels, daughter of W. S. Wright, a former New York amusement man, to-day filed suit for divorce against James F. Mendels, son of E. S. Mendels, a New York broker. She charges cruelty and desertion.

Mrs. Mendels is a graddaughter of Mrs. Cynthia Kearney, widow of the late Edward Kearney, one time Sachem of Tammany Hall, and the founder of the firm of Van Tassell & Kearney, of which his son is now President. Until Mrs. Mendels came to Reno with her father last February, her home was with her grandmother, Mrs. Kearney, at 44 West Fifth Street.

Mrs. Mendels charges that her husband married her only for the purpose of obtaining her money, and that he pawned her jewelry, her mother's jewelry, and even the jewelry of their infant son.

MELLEN MUST EXPLAIN RATES.

Commerce Commission Calls on Him to Answer Commuters' Complaints.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The Inter-State Commerce Commission to-day directed President Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to show before Sept. 1 the reasonableness of certain increased commutation rates on his road from New York City to Connecticut suburbs. The commission indicates that otherwise an order will be issued modifying those rates.

The advanced commutation rates on the New Haven went into effect June 4, and since that time a number of complaints have been made to the commission. The advanced rates were a part of a general increase in commutation rates into Long Island, New Jersey, and above the city in New York State. Of course the commission's jurisdiction extends only to those increases that affect traffic crossing a State line.

At about the time these increases went into effect the roads having a commutation traffic in New Jersey towns simultaneously advanced their rates. There was a hearing on these advances, but the roads were able to make such a showing as to the cost of operation that the commission refused to suspend the increases, though promising a later investigation of the rates. This investigation will begin Aug. 10.

SWIMS HALF MILE FOR HELP.

One of Party in a Disabled Boat Off Rockaway Saves His Comrades.

Thomas Carey, his son Charles, Thomas Cummings, and Edward McAvoy, all of Manhattan, and members of the Dalcassian Fishing Club of Rockaway Beach, went out yesterday afternoon in a thirty-foot motor boat, and, rounding Rockaway Point, headed for the ocean. The boat was running through a fairly rough sea off Belle Harbor when the engines stopped.

The boat drifted about, one man trying to keep its head to the sea, while the others tried vainly to start the engines. Finally the anchor was dropped, and it looked as though they would have to remain off shore all night if their vessel did not fill and sink.

They were a half mile off shore, but Cummings swam ashore and notified the life-saving station of the predicament of his comrades.

A lifeboat was sent out to them, and the disabled boat and its occupants were towed back to Jamaica Bay.

DRISCOLL NOW GETS AFTER THE ICEMEN

"IMPOSSIBLE," THEY REPLY

Commissioner Takes Issue on This Point and Gives Them Until Aug. 11 to See Things His Way.

Following the pushcart peddlers, ham packers, and fish venders the ice dealers soon will be forced to give 16 ounces to the pound.

Commissioner Driscoll of the Bureau of Weights and Measures sent a letter yesterday telling the ice men what he expects of them. He also had a conference with representatives of the biggest firm of ice dealers in the city, who went to tell the Commissioner that it was impossible to weigh out ice as it is sold, especially the "Hygeia" brand, which is made up in cakes of fixed sizes.

The Commissioner listened and then said a few things himself. He agreed that there was no use of weighing ice—that is no use except for one little matter: All men were not honest.

"And besides," the Commissioner added turning to the spokesman of the committee, "one ice firm, which we need not mention, has a practice of doing what ice men call 'pulling' ice. They yank a 300-pound cake out of the freezing tank when it has put on about 275 or 280 pounds of ice, and that's about the amount customers get unless they demand full weight.

"I stopped one company's ice wagon this morning. The man was delivering 'Hygeia' ice.

"'What are you selling that cake to weigh,' I asked the driver, and he replied: '300 pounds.' I flashed my own pair of scales on him and it tipped 'em just at 281 pounds. Nineteen pounds is pretty good profit, isn't it?"

The committee started to go away without pressing their assertion of the folly of trying to sell ice by weight.

"And there's another point," the Commissioner added. "Even if you've been dead fair when you load your wagons, by the time you've hawked the stuff all around the hot streets the last purchaser hasn't much of a show for his money.

"Now, the big dealers have got to do just what the fellow with a single cart and one old, lame horse has to do. He's going to play fair on the weight question. And, gentlemen, if you don't like the law and carry it into a city court be prepared to carry it with your lawyers all the way to Washington.

"And then be prepared for some more things, too, for we'll write a new law and have it shaped right up to the form the best court decision calls for. You might as well come to camp now as any time."

The letter Commissioner Driscoll sent out soon after his callers departed read as follows:

> Mayor's Bureau of Weights and Measures.
> Aug. 2, 1910.
>
> Gentlemen: I desire to call your attention again to Section 388B of the Code of Ordinances, this particular section having gone into effect, along with others, on July 11, 1910, and which reads as follows:
>
> "No person shall sell or offer for sale, ice in any manner other than by weight, and the same shall be weighed immediately before delivery, under a penalty of $50 for each offense."
>
> I shall expect your wagons will be equipped with scales and prepared to carry out this law by the 11th day of August, at which time I shall begin to make inspections with a view to determining just who is violating the law with regard to this section. Yours very truly,
>
> CLEMENT J. DRISCOLL, Commissioner.

After Mr. Driscoll is through with the ice situation he will turn to that of the "computing scales." It is said that many merchants have put in computing scales at $200 each on a guarantee from the selling companies that they would make $1 or more a day "velvet" for the merchants. As several firms discarded perfectly good scales which cost only $15 a set to put in the two-hundred-dollar kind, Mr. Driscoll is taking much interest in the problem. In his recent trip West Mr. Driscoll visited the factories of several computing scale companies to learn just how they turn out their product. He expects as a result to be able to devise a set of rules for the interior construction of the scales that will compel them to show honest figures.

On one set of the self-figuring scales he weighed twenty small packages separately, and at 12 cents per pound the packages figured up a value of $1.36 cents. When put on the scales altogether, so that the marginal weights in half ounces on each package could not be thrown to the weigher's advantage, the goods were worth only $1.23.

An amendment to the present ordinance will be devised to meet the situation, and after it has been signed all computing scales in the city will be condemned until altered to meet requirements that will guarantee their accuracy.

RAIDS HUSBAND'S BUNGALOW.

Mrs. Belle C. Ellsler Finds Another Woman There—Both Arrested.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, N. J., Aug. 2.—Mrs. Belle C. Ellsler of 303 West Ninety-second Street, Manhattan, wife of William C. Ellsler, a theatrical man, led a personally conducted raid upon her husband's bungalow in the Young Orchard Hill section of the Atlantic Highlands early Monday morning. The unexpected visit of the wife led to the arrest of the husband and a woman, who said she was Mary E. Seymour, an actress. Mrs. Ellsler will sue for a divorce.

Mrs. Ellsler, accompanied by two private detectives, came to Atlantic Highlands on Sunday night. After locating her husband's bungalow she obtained reinforcements in the shape of Chief of Police Jesse Lawrence, Jr. The party found the front door of the bungalow open and passed inside. One of the sleeping rooms was locked. Forcing the door the pair were found inside. They were brought before Justice G. C. Williams, waived examination, and were put under $300 bail, which was furnished by William Sandlass of Highland Beach.

Mrs. Ellsler, who is a singer, said that her husband left her early in the Summer. She returned yesterday to Long Beach, where she is spending the Summer.

WIDER MAY GET OFF LIGHTLY.

He Will Plead To-day to Single Indictment Against Him.

Julius Goldman, of counsel to the New York agency of the Russo-Chinese Bank, was in consultation yesterday with Acting District Attorney Moss concerning the prosecution of Erwin Wider, the defaulting cashier, who is in the Tombs under indictment.

Mr. Moss announced that he would call upon Wider to plead to-day to the single indictment so far found charging the larceny of 100 shares of Baltimore & Ohio stock.

Wider's attorney, Leon B. Ginsberg, is said to be anxious that his client should plead to this indictment before any others can be returned against him, as under the "first offenders" law the most that Wider could get, if he pleaded guilty, would be an indeterminate sentence of from five to ten years.

Mr. Moss would not deny the report that he is endeavoring to learn the whereabouts of some $400,000 of the stock that Wider took from the bank. The total of his losses is said to not much exceed $200,000, while the amount he is supposed to have taken from the New York Agency of the Russo-Chinese Bank is $660,000.

ASKS CONDUIT RIGHTS.

Electric Lines Co. Eues for Chance to Get Telephones Here.

Ex-Judge Alton B. Parker and Edwin Louis Mooney appeared yesterday to argue before Supreme Court Justice Bischoff for and against the application of the New York Electric Lines Company for a writ of mandamus against the Empire City Subway Company to compel it to lease conduits in its subway system.

The application threatens the mononoly of telephone service now enjoyed in New York City by the Bell companies, and if successful would give the independent telephone companies long-distance entry into New York. Justice Bischoff reserved decision, giving Mr. Mooney till Sept. 1 to submit briefs.

Ex-Judge Parker outlined the history of his company's franchise and the refusal of the Empire City Subways Company to grant it permission to use its conduits. Mr. Mooney attacked the Electric Lines Company, saying it was being used as a blind for the stock jobbing schemes of the Great Eastern Telephone Company, a Dakota corporation, which had made unsuccessful attempts to enter New York City.

SEER'S GUESS PROVED RIGHT.

But It Didn't Reveal the Whereabouts of Missing Man.

Mrs. Lena Rosenberg of 230 East Eightieth Street reported at Police Headquarters last night that her brother-in-law, Herman Rosenthal, a real estate dealer, had been missing since July 25 from his home, 916 Madison Avenue, Asbury Park, where he lived with his wife and four children.

On July 25, she said, he started to go to New York, promising to return that afternoon. His family have not seen him since. A fortune teller told his wife that her husband had taken a train and met a friend, with whom he parted at a boat. This guess was verified when the friend was found and said the boat was at the Cortlandt Street Ferry.

Rosenthal is 53 years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall, has dark hair shot with gray, and wore a blue suit with gray striped trousers.

Yacht Club Steward Dives Overboard After Six-Year-Old Youngster.

Six-year-old James Collins of 184 West 101st Street got beyond his depth while paddling about in the North River at the foot of 106th Street last evening and sank. A boy companion saw his danger and ran shouting for help along the river front until he reached the Bloomingdale Yacht Club at the foot of 102d Street.

Peter Gunderson, steward of the club, heard the lad's cries and ran out and dived in after the Collins boy, who had just sunk from sight again as Gunderson came up.

Gunderson brought the child ashore unconscious and he was taken to J. Hood Wright Hospital by Dr. Weil. He will recover.
